BARBECUE POLITICAL RALLY TO BE HELD HERE THURSDAY

ALL CANDIDATES ARE INVITED TO ATTEND OVER 200,000 VISITED FLORIDA LAST SEASON

ALL DAY CELEBRATION TO BE HELD ON OLD FORT GROUNDS AND FREE DINNER WILL BE SERVED.

Arrangements are now being made for a gathering of political candidates at a big barbecue and fish fry dinner to be held here next Thursday, June 1, and this occasion will furnish an opportunity for the voters of New Smyrna and the southeast section of the county to see, meet and hear practically all of the candidates for county offices, as well as many of the congressional and state candidates.

Up to this time replies and promises have been received to indicate that at least 40 aspirants for political nominations in the state and county primary to be held June 6th will be here that day to address the voters and mingle with the people of New Smyrna and vicinity where the political situations can be thoroughly discussed by candidates and voters.

The picnic, barbecue and all day political celebration will be held on the old fort grounds and a general invitation is extended to everybody, men, women and children, to attend the celebration and enjoy the good time. The big free dinner will be served at noon and there will be plenty for everybody.

A platform will be erected on the grounds, from which the speakers will address the voters, and an effort is being made to have the DeLand band here to furnish music for the occasion. The speaking will begin in the forenoon and be continued after dinner. Late in the afternoon a base ball game will furnish further entertainment.

MRS. SARAH SAWYER DIES

REMAINS ARE SENT NORTH.

Mrs. Sarah R. Sawyer died Tuesday night at the sanatorium at Hawks Park. She had been taken to the hospital that morning from her home in this city in the hope that an operation might relieve the dropsical condition from which she had suffered for a number of years.

Mrs. Sawyer was a woman 82 years of age, but although an invalid had the appearance of a much younger woman. She was bright and keen of intellect, and very interesting to those who knew her best.

She came here about two years ago in company with her brother M. T. C. Perkins, who cared for her a great deal of the time. Several months ago she purchased a place at the corner of Magnolia and Douglass streets, and recently remodeled it, making a comfortable and convenient home. Although never in good health she was usually able to be about a part of the time, but recently had suffered more than usual. Death came just as she was being prepared for the operating table.

She was born in Danville, Vt., but lived in Indianapolis before coming here. The body was prepared for shipment and was sent to Indianapolis yesterday to be buried beside her husband. Her brother accompanied the remains.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Judge Bert Fish, candidate for state senator, will address the voters and citizens of Volusia county at the places named below on the following dates:

Lake Helen, Monday, May 29, 7:30 p. m.

Pierson, Tuesday, May 30, 7:30 p. m.

Oak Hill, Wednesday, May 31, 7:30 p. m.

New Smyrna, Thursday, June 1, Barbecue.

Daytona, Friday, June 2, 8 p. m.

Port Orange, Saturday, June 3, 7:30 p. m.

DeLand, Monday, June 5, 8 p. m.

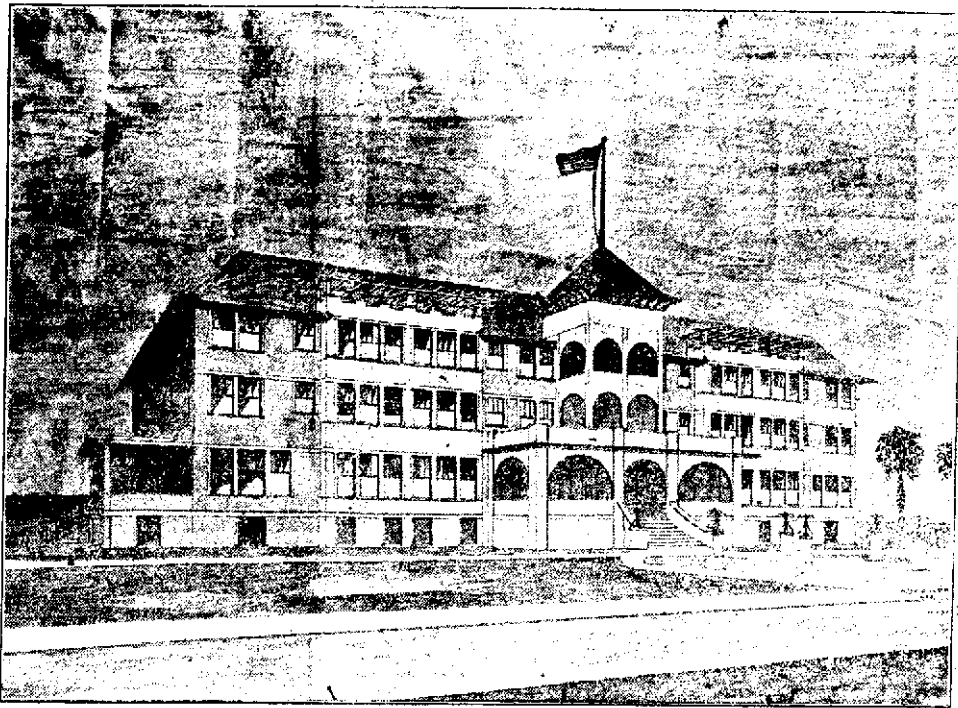

I earnestly urge all candidates to be present and speak at these meetings, and I particularly request James E. Alexander to be present and speak at all of these meetings.

Ladies are cordially invited.

During the week, if opportunity permits, I will address the voters at any other places where public meetings may be held.

BERT FISH,
Candidate for State Senator from Volusia county.

W. B. Eckler, Architect, New Smyrna.

Construction work on the new hotel, now being built by the Rio Vista Hotel company, is progressing rapidly, and the above picture shows how the new hotel will look when completed.

The brick walls of the new building are now practically completed and the contract for the carpenter work will be let in the next few days. Estimates on this work are now being obtained by the directors.

As the hotel building takes on more definite shape more interest and confidence in the success of the hotel company is being manifested and more stock is being taken by business men who believe the new hotel will be a decided boost to this city and community. There is every prospect that the plans of the company to have the building completed, furnished and ready for guests by the first of next January will be successfully carried through.

The new hotel is located on the river front between what would be 11th and 13th streets. If the streets were numbered south from Canal street. The hotel lot has a frontage of 500 feet on the river, this lot extending through to Magnolia street. In addition to this the hotel grounds will include all of the block west of Magnolia street. The building is three stories high, with a substantial basement, with a frontage of 138 feet on the river and two wings, 96 feet in length, extending westward toward Magnolia street. The grounds in front of the building will be made attractive and beautiful, with a gradual slope from the building to the seawall, where a substantial pavilion and dock will be established. Between the hotel building and Magnolia street will be a circular automobile drive, giving an entrance from Magnolia street, and these grounds will also be made attractive and beautiful.

On the grounds west of Magnolia street will be located the tennis courts, croquet grounds, and all other recreation grounds. The plans of the company also call for a golf course to cover 50 acres of ground to be constructed along the railroad track immediately west of the hotel.

CARRIGAN HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

BLAZE STARTS FROM GASOLINE STOVE IN BASEMENT AND BUILDING IS BURNED TO THE GROUND SATURDAY.

Fire evidently originating from a gasoline stove in the basement, entirely destroyed the home of James Carrigan at Coronado last Saturday, just after the noon hour. A few of the furnishings were removed from the house, but the building was entirely consumed.

When first discovered by a neighbor the blaze could have been extinguished if sufficient help could have been gotten together, but the inability to spread the alarm and fight flames at the same time gave the fire a good chance to get a start.

Telephone calls for help from this city called a number of men across the river, but by the time they arrived there was nothing that could be done but watch the flames eat their way through the building.

This is the third serious fire that has visited Coronado during the last few weeks. The first one was when a strong wind carried the blaze from a scrub fire across the peninsula to the beach and burned up eight cottages. The second one was the destruction of the Atlantic hotel.

The Daytona-New Smyrna road is now partly closed to traffic while the new bond district road is being constructed.

At a big barbecue and political rally at Okeechobee last week with about 2000 people in attendance, the corner stone of the handsome new high school building was laid.

ing enthused over that section he is spending $1,000,000 in the building there of a winter home and the beautifying of its grounds. Carl G. Fisher, one of the leading manufacturers of Indiana, was a tourist to Miami. He too, fell in love with the attractions and promptly undertook the reclamation and development of nearly 1,000 acres of overflowed lands, with plans looking to the building of a city, into which he has poured a vast amount of capital.

MUCH CITRUS FRUIT HANDLED THIS YEAR

REPORT OF TREASURER SHOWS LOCAL PACKING HOUSE IS IMPORTANT BUSINESS FACTOR IN THIS CITY.

That the Smyrna-Hawks Park Citrus Growers' association, a branch of the Florida Citrus Exchange, is an important business factor of New Smyrna is clearly shown by the following report of Treasurer E. A. Latham recently compiled for the season 1915-16:

Total number of boxes of fruit shipped through the Smyrna and Hawks Park Citrus Growers' association the past season under the "Goldenrod" brand:

Oranges	20,248½	$40,664.04
Grapefruit	5,600	11,202.80
King oranges
and Kumquats	234	676.76
Tangerines	522	1,314.07
	26,604½	$53,857.68

In addition to the above the association packed and shipped under private brands 11,079 boxes, making a grand total of 37,733½ boxes.

The average price per box, netted by the growers, were for oranges, $2.00; for grapefruit, $2.00; for King oranges and kumquats, $3.00; for tangerines, $2.50.

The local exchange was established two years ago, and for two seasons fruit has been handled through the packing house here. The amount of fruit shipped this year is against a total of 31,000 boxes shipped the first year the packing house was in operation.

The sub exchange, which was also established two years ago, with headquarters at Titusville, was moved here last fall, and during the season a total of 41,852 boxes, which netted f. o. b. $81,836.07, were handled through this branch in addition to that accounted for in the local exchange.

The last season was a prosperous one for the fruit growers and the local association is justly proud of its second year's record.

R. S. BLANTON WEDS OMA CHAMBERLAIN

TWO WELL KNOWN AND POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE JOINED IN MARRIAGE AT ORLANDO THIS WEEK.

Wednesday at Orlando Miss Oma Chamberlain, of Bowling Green, O. was united in marriage to R. S. Blanton, for the last two years principal of the New Smyrna school.

Both these young people are well and favorably known here. Miss Chamberlain was a popular teacher here one year ago, and much to the regret of the patrons went to Orlando last year to fill a better position. She has visited here several times this year, and has a host of friends to wish her much happiness.

Mr. Blanton has successfully managed the school here the last two years, and it is regretted by his many friends that he is not to return for another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Blanton are spending a few days at Mr. Blanton's home, Knights, Fla., from where they will go to Mrs. Blanton's home in Bowling Green, O. They plan to spend the greater part of the summer in the north, returning to Live Oak in the fall, where they will reside.

Yesterday's Orlando Sentinel gives the following account of the ceremony:

"Miss Oma Chamberlain, of Orlando, and Robert S. Blanton, of Knights, Fla., were united in marriage last evening at the Baptist parsonage, Rev. Edw. T. Poulson, D. D., officiating. Immediate relatives only attended the ceremony. Mr. Blanton is principal of the schools at New Smyrna and the bride has been a teacher in the Orlando schools. This fall the happy couple will make their home at Live Oak where Mr. Blanton becomes principal of the high school. Mrs. Blanton formerly lived at Bowling Green, Ohio."

The foundation of the new high school building at Titusville was laid last week. There will be 14 class rooms, four laboratories for domestic science, three shops for manual training, an auditorium to seat 600 people and a gymnasium.

CLOSING EXERCISES ATTENDED BY MANY

THEATRE TASTEFULLY DECORATED AND SPLENDID PROGRAM MARKS CLOSING OF NEW SMYRNA PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The closing exercises of the public school were held Friday night at the Palace theatre, when a class of five girls and one boy was graduated from the twelfth grade.

The theatre was decorated in the class colors, pink and gray. The class motto "Out of School Life, Into Life's School," made in Spanish moss and pink oleanders extended across the front, and back of it the stage was arranged to represent the out of doors. Ferns and greens were banked tastefully about giving it a most comfortable appearance.

The class appeared on the stage from either side and were accompanied by Principal Blanton and the high school teachers, the retiring and newly elected secretary of the local board, the ministers, and the lecturer of the evening.

The program was composed of the salutatory and valedictory given by Floyd Murray and Fearn Hibbard, each of whom represented this fine class in a most creditable way, a piano solo by Mrs. E. L. Greer, and a vocal solo by Miss Irma Greer, each executed in the usual entertaining manner, and an address by Dr. H. W. Cox of the state university of Florida.

Rarely has it been New Smyrna's good fortune to listen to such a splendid address at the commencement season.

Dr. Cox's theme was dreams in youth and their fulfillment, and was embellished with many pretty word pictures to develop it. It contained much good food for thought, not only for the young but the old as well.

Mr. Blanton deserves much credit for securing Dr. Cox, as his services as a commencement lecturer are much in demand throughout the state.

The presentation of diplomas was made by G. L. Branning, and Rev. A. Bell and Rev. O. T. Uselman assisted in the opening and closing. The exercises were free of charge and the theatre was filled to capacity with patrons and friends of the school.

The young people receiving diplomas of graduation were: Fearn Hibbard, Floyd Murray, Lois Gause, Bytha Remington, Harriette Crane and Genevieve Mathews.

School Year Successful.

The commencement exercises last Friday night without doubt mark the closing of the most successful year in the history of the New Smyrna public school.

Although it had been expected that a new building would be ready for occupancy before the closing of the year, and this had been one of the inducements in bringing Principal Blanton back for another term, it was early seen that this would not be possible.

Nevertheless, Mr. Blanton and his corps of assistants labored untiringly for the interests of the school, and succeeded in raising the general standard in many ways.

One of the most commendable marks of improvement has been in the matter of regular and punctual attendance. Every grade has shown a decided improvement in the general average. This in itself is one of the best indications of advancement.

In the matter of general deportment of pupils, it is also said that there has been a general raising of the standard of good behavior.

The Parent-Teacher club has proven itself a substantial support for the faculty, and has aided materially in many ways. The payments on the piano purchased last year were assumed by this body, thus relieving the teachers of the responsibility of raising the money.

Through the efforts of Mr. Blanton and the high school pupils quite a sum was spent for library books, and through the assistance of county superintendent Sheppard, the laboratory equipment was increased considerably.

The general condition is better in every way and it is to be hoped that next year's faculty will not be disappointed in having a chance to occupy the new building early in the school year. We have a school now that when properly housed, will rank with any of its size in the state.

Lawrence Pace was in the city Monday from Jacksonville.

Candidate for

A TAX PAYER SAYS, "VOTE FOR JUDGE STEWART."

Last but not least is Judge Stewart. By his bulldog tenacity and scent like a bloodhound he has unearthed all of the rascality of the court house ring and saved the tax payers thousands of dollars. Pepper has been thrown on the trail. All kinds of obstructions used to induce him to let go his hold, but all to no purpose. He has made all kinds of charges in public and private; a man of property and if the charges that he has dug up and published were not true he would have had heavy damages to pay. The ring's utter silence is double proof of the rottenness in our public affairs, and do you realize that he has done this for you? Show your appreciation by your votes for a fearless upright man. Christ chased the grafters out of the temple. It is up to you to chase them out of the court house.

STATE OF KENTUCKY
ROCKCASTLE CIRCUIT COURT
AUGUST TERM, AUGUST 18th, 1885.

At a meeting of the Mt. Vernon bar at the courthouse on Wednesday August 19th, 1885, Judge M. H. Owaley was called to the chair and W. M. Fish, clerk of the Rockcastle circuit court, was made secretary. The following resolutions were offered and adopted:

Whereas, Isaac A. Stewart a former member of this bar and county attorney of this county has become a citizen of Florida;

FIRST. Resolved, that it is the sense of the members of this bar that Isaac A. Stewart is a lawyer of honesty and ability, a faithful and efficient public servant and a citizen of good repute among the people who know him best and as such he is cordially commended to the good people of Florida;

SECOND. These resolutions will be spread on the order book of this court and the clerk will forward to Mr. Stewart a copy.

Adjourned: M. H. Owaley, chairman; W. M. Fish, secretary; Samuel M. Burdett, John K. McClary, James G. Carter, committee; W. M. Fish, Clerk of the circuit court.

NEWSPAPERS HARD HIT WITH PRICES

Concerning the tremendous rise in prices of every thing used around a newspaper plant an Ohio paper says:

Ever since the momentous August of 1914—especially in the last six months—the skyrocketing of the prices of necessities around a newspaper plant, has gone on with a beauty of consistency which arouses absolutely no enthusiasm among publishers throughout the country who have to foot the bills. Products essential to the publication of newspapers have jumped in price all the way from 10 or 15 to 3,000 and more per cent.

War, directly or indirectly, is given as the reason for this enormous increase in the publisher's bills. And should the war continue for some time, the market skyrocketing promises to go to heights even beyond the present astonishing prices. Nowadays it is next to impossible to obtain market quotations for even so short a time as "next week."

Press rollers, which are made chiefly of glue, glycerine and molasses, have gone up, so manufacturers notified the consumers last week. Pure white eighteen per cent. Glycerine, the quality used in newspaper plants is not the pure white glycerine one buys in the drug store, but a quality less refined—has taken one flying leap from antebellum price of 19 cents a pound to 54 cents.

Rags, which are being bought up by the powder manufacturers eagerly and are needed also by paper manufacturers in a cleaned and more or less sterilized form are a necessity in the mechanical department of newspapers. The prices of rags has jumped just 100 per cent. or from three cents to six cents per pound. Writing paper is an important item in a publisher's paper bill and it is worth noting that this item has gone up 25 per cent.

But it is when the consumer of anything to do with dyes or any other department of the chemical section of printing or photographic reproductions goes out with his shopping list that his hair grows gray. Metal, which the art department of a paper cannot get along without, cost $4.00 a pound before the war. Now it costs $50.00 a pound. Increases of 1,000 to 3,000 per cent and more loom up all over the printing plant.

As an ink manufacturer explained a day or two ago the acids and dyes and everything else used in coloring inks especially exploded from 1,000 to 3,000 per cent in a jiffy, once the exports from Germany had been blocked. Blue that cost 58 cents before the war now cost $14.00 and $15.00 per pound, with increases in yellows also all the way up to 3,000 per cent. And, what is more of moment, manufacturers of inks say that prospects of filling demands in the future look doubtful.

Violet coloring, used in the manufacture of inks, printing paper and wall paper has advanced from 60 cents per pound to $30.00 a pound, or an increase of 5,000 per cent.

Bulletins tell us that the limit has not been reached, and that should the war cease tomorrow, it will require not less than two years for the supply to be made ample to bring the prices to normal again.

Since the above was written printers and publishers have been informed of another increase of about 25 per cent on plain white print and poster papers, and several brands of bond papers are either priced beyond reach or eliminated from stock.

If prices continue to soar at the present rate for a few more months, newspapers and stationery will have to be classed among the luxurious necessities.

Instinct of the Mudfish.

The remark this instinct which causes the mudfish to roll himself in a ball of mud when the dry season approaches is a wonderful provision of nature, intended solely, it would seem, to prevent the extinction of the species. The most interesting fact about this fish is that it breathes by means of its gills when in its native element and by means of lungs during its voluntary imprisonment in the mud cocoon.

Why Tennyson Wrote No Letters.
Tennyson once told Sir Henry Taylor that he thanked with his whole heart and soul that he knew nothing of Shakespeare but his writings and that he knew nothing of Jane Austen and that there were no letters preserved either of Shakespeare or of Jane Austen; that they, in fact, had not been "ripped open like pigs."

WOULD YOU AVOID RED BUGS?

The first lap of the annual scratch is scheduled to begin soon after you make the first trip to the blackberry patch. Although the bureau of crop estimates has not reported the acreage of red bugs this year, a personal exposition will convince anyone that the crop is plentiful. This is one crop with which no problems of distribution are connected, as a self-conducted tour among the habitations of this sociable organism will prove.

J. R. Watson, entomologist to the University of Florida experiment station, suggests the following precautions for those who are wont to wander through neglected fields, briar patches, shrubbery and weeds. A bath in hot water containing plenty of soap or salt, after one has visited the foregoing haunts of red bugs, will rid him of their company. Probably the best method is to dust flowers of sulfur in the stockings, around the belt and on other parts of the body or clothing which are apt to collect red bugs. Naphthalene may be used instead of sulfur.

Itching may be relieved by application of ammonia, soda, a six per cent solution of formalin, alcohol, camphor, or peppermint in the swollen places. Red bugs do not stay on human beings long because man is not their natural host. Those who are unaccustomed to entertaining them need not be alarmed at the first attack. Eventually they will not demand so much attention.

Foundation of Cotton.

When the Leasowe lighthouse, England, was built on the sandy Wirral shore the builders were puzzled by the lack of a suitable foundation for the masonry tower. An ingenious way out of the difficulty was effected. In the vicinity an incoming ship, laden with a cargo of cotton, had gone ashore and had become a total wreck. The cotton was useless for its intended purpose, so the bales were salvaged and dumped into the sand at the point where the lighthouse was to be erected. The heavy mass settled into the sand, and under compression became as solid as a rock, while its permeability was assured by its complete immersion. The stability of this strange foundation may be gathered from the fact that the tower erected thereon stood, and shed its welcome light regularly every night, for about a century and a half, only being extinguished two or three years ago, as it was no longer required.

POSTMASTER LINCOLN

What Happened When He Was Called Upon to Square Accounts.

On May 7, 1883, says F. F. Browne in "The Everyday Life of Abraham Lincoln," Lincoln was appointed postmaster at New Salem, Ill., by President Jackson. The duties of the position were light, for there was only one mail a week and the remuneration was correspondingly small.

The office was too insignificant to be considered politically, and it was given to the young man because every one liked him and because he was the only man willing to take it who could make out the returns. He was exceedingly pleased with the appointment because it gave him a chance to read every newspaper that was taken in the vicinity. He had never been able to get half the newspapers he wanted, and the office gave him the prospect of a constant feast. Not wishing to be tied to the office, since it yielded him no revenue that would reward him for the confinement, he made a postoffice of his hat. Whenever he went out to be put the letters in his hat. When a person who expected a letter met the postmaster he found also the postoffice, and the public official, taking off his hat, looked over and delivered the mail wherever the public might find him. He kept the office until it was discontinued or was removed to Petersburg.

A small balance due the government remained in Lincoln's hands at the discontinuance of the office. Time passed on and he had removed to Springfield and was practicing law, having his place of business in Dr. Henry's office. Meanwhile his struggle with poverty was unabated, and he had often been obliged to borrow money from his friends to purchase the bare necessities. It was at that juncture that a government agent called to make a settlement of the old postoffice accounts. The interview took place in the presence of Dr. Henry, who thus described it to Mr. Browne.

"I did not believe he had the money on hand to meet the draft, and I was about to call him aside and offer to lend him the money when he asked the agent to be seated. He went over to his trunk at his boarding house and returned with an old blue sock, in which a quantity of silver and copper coins was tied up. Untying the sock, he poured the contents upon the table and proceeded to count the coins.

"The government agent found that the pile contained the exact amount of the draft to a cent and in the identical coin that Mr. Lincoln had received. He never under any circumstances used trust funds."

National Defense and International Peace

Are You Ready to Play Your Part?

THE power of a nation in time of need is the producing power of her industries. America must find out what this producing power is and then develop it. The capacity of every plant must be gauged. The ability of every man must be known. For War is Mechanical. It is Electrical. It is Chemical. It is Mining. Manufacturing. Transportation. It is EVERY phase of Engineering fused into a single industry—

"THE NATION'S DEFENSE."

Thirty thousand Engineers today are serving YOUR COUNTRY without pay. They are making a survey of YOUR COUNTRY'S industrial Resources. They are helping YOUR COUNTRY TO FIND ITSELF—and You! They are charting the channels of commerce. Sounding each source of supply. So that, should the Day break when War must come—YOUR ARMIES in the field will be but the crest of a Wave of Industry, as wide as the American Continent and as deep as the American Soul.

That YOUR COUNTRY may know what the Engineers are doing, the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World have pledged their services to the President of the United States. And this advertisement, published free by this paper, is part of a nation-wide series to secure YOUR co-operation with the Engineers.

"WHAT CAN I DO?"

This is, doubtless, the question you are asking yourself. Here is the answer: If you are a manufacturer co-operate fully with the Engineers so they can do their job quickly and efficiently. If you are a working man help your employer to help the Engineers and be prepared, if so needed, to be a Soldier in industry, behind the firing line, which is just as important as being a soldier on the firing line. If you are a business man or a professional man, or whoever you are, help mobilize "GOOD WILL" behind this patriotic task of the Engineers in behalf of National Defense and International Peace.

Professor Floyd says that field corn planted at intervals of several weeks will give roasting ears during most of the summer. The corn with white kernels is preferred by most people.

Okra is a true hot weather plant and with proper care will bear all summer. The aphid or plant louse is troublesome but can be controlled by the use of tobacco extract.

The eggplant is another hot season plant and is very easy to raise. Peppers are about as easy to raise as eggplant and are cared for in about the same manner.

There are several types of beans that are adapted to the summer garden, such as pole, lima, both bush and climbing, and the old fashioned butter beans, known as the sierra bean, that came from South Carolina.

Almost every garden contains sweet potatoes but they are usually late maturing ones. If early slips are used a much earlier crop can be had. By sending to some grower who makes a business of raising slips for early markets one can have potatoes in June. The triumph and jersey are two of the early types of sweet potatoes.

During the hot months a mess of greens sometimes tastes good and a planting of collards will satisfy this hunger.

"DEEP WATER." Our Slogan

It is up to the people of New Smyrna and this vicinity to keep up the work of exterminating mosquitoes, following out the suggestions made by Dr M E Heck assistant state health officer who recently made a survey of this city and the surrounding territory to locate the mosquito breeding places. With a little care and trouble the breeding places within the city limits can be entirely done away with and new ones destroyed as soon as they appear and New Smyrna will be much freer of these insect pests than it has ever been before. If each property owner and tenant will make it a point to go over his premises regularly to see that the work is kept up and suggest to his neighbor to do the same thing the good results will soon be noted. If city pride doesn't appeal to you in this matter personal comfort should Voters of the fifth congressional district who want to see New Smyrna Corrado Hawk's Park and all other part of the district grow and prosper along with the rest of Volusia county will be sure the man they elect as their representative on the board of county commissioners is a man who will use his every influence to hurry through the building of the roads provided for in the special bond issue voted last fall. The completion of these roads is a matter of importance to the people of this district and the voters of the district should make it their business to know how each candidate stands on this important matter before casting their ballots in the primary June 6th.

RUMORS OF CAR LINE
ORLANDO TO THE COAST

C E Denig of Narcoossee was a visitor in this city yesterday and brought the news that rumors are persistent that an electric car line is to be built from Orlando across Osceola county to the East Coast. Mr Denig states that parties interested in the proposed line have been conferring with persons in St Cloud with a view to passing through the Wonder City. Mr Denig and other Narcoossee people are trying to get in touch with the promoters and want to route the car line through their section—Kissimmee Valley Gazette

BLANTON TO BE PRINCIPAL OF SCHOOL AT LIVE OAK.

R S Blanton for the last two years principal of the New Smyrna public school left here Saturday for Live Oak to confer with the school board there in the matter of selecting teachers for the next year. Mr Blanton has accepted the position of superintendent of the Live Oak school. This is a promotion for Mr Blanton being a considerable larger school and paying a better salary than the position here and is justly deserved by him. His many friends here are wishing him much success.

MARRIAGE CEREMONY

NEITHER BRIDE OR GROOM
COULD SPEAK OR HEAR BUT JOINED IN WEDLOCK NEVER-THELESS.

How would you perform a marriage ceremony where both of the contracting parties are mutes? This was the problem that confronted Miss Sadie Hiserodt, clerk in the office of County Judge J Lee McCrory last Friday, when Eugene Hogle, of Omaha Nebraska, and Miss Lily Golden Holland, of Daytona Beach secured a marriage license and requested Miss Hiserodt by virtue of her office as notary public to perform the ceremony.

Not to be thwarted Miss Hiserodt wrote out the form of the ceremony on a typewriter and gave each of the contracting parties a copy of the ceremonial form. She then went through the ceremony the same as if the bride and groom could hear her and pointed to the passages as she read. When the question was asked of the flax-haired bride "Do you take this man to be your lawful wedded husband?", she smilingly assented with a bow. Both the mutes are well educated and all the communications between Miss Hiserodt and the bride and groom were made with pad and pencil.

The bride was not asked to "honor and obey," it being the practice of the county judge's office to omit these words from the marriage ceremony.

ORMOND

ORMOND May 27 Miss Margaret Shaw is spending the week at Winter Park and while there will attend the commencement exercises at Rollins College. Benjamin Shaw who is a recent college graduate will accompany his sister home on her return.

Dr John M Richmond, Mrs J Chasmond the Rev W J Gre and Mrs D W Dwyer and Dr and Mrs Conley of Ormond City were guests at a dinner given at Lake Helen on Thursday day of last week.

Mr and Mrs J G Duh and daughter Dorothy leave for the north on Wednesday expecting to spend the summer in Ohio and possibly DuPont. They then return home.

Mr and Mrs Frank L Platt entertained delightfully at their home on Edinboro street on Wednesday evening of last week. After an elaborate luncheon was served the guests enjoyed whilst the remainder of the evening.

A very handsome bride set was awarded Mrs Mildred McCarty winner of the ladies prize. John A Reddy carrying off the gentlemen's favor a package of the cigars. Those present were Mrs Undermy mother of the hostess Mr Annie Watson Mrs Mildred McCarty Miss Emma Weatherbee Mr and Mrs John A Reddy and Miss Lucy Reddy.

Mr and Mrs Blair accompanied their mother to her home in Clarinda Iowa leaving on Wednesday of this week.

Mrs Casper Baker with her daughter Miss Marion and son Edw n left on Saturday morning for their home at Sewickley Pa. Edw n graduated last week from the Daytona High school, and Ormond may well feel proud of the young man's record and standing in his class. He took a prominent and most creditable part in the commencement week program.

Mrs J D Price entertained the Ladies Aid society at Hammock home on Wednesday and as always when entertained at this beautiful home spent a very delightful afternoon.

Mr and Mrs Peter L Webb who have been spending the winter with Mr and Mrs George N Higby on Pine street left in their auto for Jacksonville on Saturday morning taking the boat from there to Baltimore and again taking their car and driving to Warren Ohio stopping at Sewickley Pa for a short visit with Mrs Baker and family.

Those interested in the case of little Lewis Stanton, son of Mr and Mrs J P Stanton who had been at the children's hospital Jacksonville for some weeks will be glad to know that the heavier part of the plaster cast has been removed from his limb the surgeons now feeling very much encouraged over the results of the operation. Miss Ella Foulke is still in Jacksonville where she can be in touch with the brave little lad every day.

Alfred G Weatherbee left for his summer home at Westboro, Mass., on Wednesday, going by way of the Savannah Line. Miss Weatherbee and her sister, Mrs L C Pinkerton with Lewis and Helen, expect to join Mr Weatherbee later in the season.

Mrs A D Sheppy and Mrs Blackburn, of Washington, D C who have been spending several weeks at the Vining cottage on Palmetto street, left for the north on Saturday last. It is hoped that these delightful ladies will be in Ormond again next season.

The commencement exercises of the Ormond public schools were held in the auditorium of the Memorial building on Thursday evening of last week. After the invocation, which was given by Dr John M Richmond, a miscellaneous program was rendered. This included songs, piano solos, duets, recitations, tableaux, drills, etc. These were all excellent, the Sunflower, Shepherds and Japanese drills all being especially well rendered and beautiful. A farce in one act, entitled "Jumbo Jum" then followed, young Jack Delaney, who took the negro character of "Jumbo Jum" being particularly funny, but all the parts were well taken. Mrs Arthur Adams made the presentation of the class, after which Dr Richmond, in the absence of the principal, awarded the diplomas to the eighth grade graduation class. The class consisted of Gladys Dressner, Pearl Adams, Myrtle Hull, Marie

TITUSVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

WILL GIVE PLAY HERE.

For the benefit of the local Woman's Club the students of the Brevard county high school will present a play here tonight (Friday) at Guild hall. It is the Greek comedy Pygmalion and Galatea and includes a cast of nine characters. The young people come with the highest recommendations from their home town where it was presented a few weeks ago, and no doubt will furnish an evening of pleasure to all attending. The doors will be open at half past seven the performance to begin at eight o'clock.

THANKS

Dr M Mahar wishes to thank the members of the senior class of the New Smyrna high school for their very beautiful and acceptable gift, presented to him for assisting them in their class play. He wishes to state that it was a pleasure to be with the class and that he at all times found them bright and willing. He takes this means of thanking the members of the class and wishes them every success and a bright and prosperous future.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors who were so kind to us both in words and deeds during the sickness of our wife and daughter. We thank you for the beautiful flowers sent and assure you that your many good deeds will never be forgotten.

The Most Healthful Carriage for Baby

We believe you will not find anywhere a carriage better designed to protect baby's health than the Heywood-Wakefield Sleeper shown in this picture.

It has rubber-tired wheels and light, flexible springs which insure easy riding. The large, comfortable body gives baby plenty of room to sleep, and there is no bumping to jar his delicate nerves and make him fussy and fretful. The carriage is equipped with a reversing gear so that it can be pushed from either end.

In beauty of design and style, this Heywood-Wakefield will compare favorably with any other make of baby carriage. Come in to see it and the other new models we have just received.

Guild Party at Coronado—

Mrs. F. M. Allen royally entertained the Grace church guild, Wednesday at the Coronado Beach hotel for the entire day, and every lady present had a most enjoyable time.

Luncheon was served in the new dining room through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty, who had assisted Mrs. Allen in arranging and preparing the bountiful repast.

Several of the ladies went over in the afternoon and expected only "light refreshments" for theirs, but when called to the table at four o'clock, found it loaded with good things such as only Mrs. Allen knows how to prepare. The morning guests were also served again and all did ample justice to the feast, excepting Mrs. Canova. (?)

The unfortunate ones who remained at home unwillingly know well what they missed for it is always a treat when Mrs. Allen entertains the guild.

The new hotel is a gem, and just what New Smyrna needs at the beach, and the genial host and hostess are ever ready to make all their guests happy. Success to them and to the Coronado Beach hotel. The guild hereby returns thanks for the happy day spent there and hope to be invited again every year. * * *

Eighth Grade Exercises—

The closing exercises of the eighth grade were held at Guild hall last Friday afternoon, and a class of four boys and eight girls received certificates of graduation from the grammar school. The stage was prettily decorated in the class colors, green and white, and the whole program carried with it the dignity of a high school commencement.

Each member of the class had an original part on the program, which was well delivered. Musical numbers were furnished by Maud Roach, Ruby Yarbrough and Kathryn Lutz. Mrs. W. C. Chowling and Miss Ira Skipper also assisted with the music.

Miss Welch, the teacher, spoke individually of each member of the class, assuring the audience of their preparedness to enter high school.

Such exercises are an inspiration to those in the lower grades to continue on, and an incentive to the graduates to enter high school. A good sized audience was present. The members of the class were: Eva Mae Rogers, Ruby Yarbrough, Maud Roach, Alta Webster, Susie Barrette, Louisa Lamboley, Ruby Alfred Newberry, Edwin Sealf and Thayer, Carroll Rowe, Carl Langford, Kathryn Lutz.

Junior League Holds Meeting—

After several weeks without a meeting, the Junior Civic League was called together Monday by their former chairman, Mrs. W. B. Eckler, and responded with a good attendance. Mrs. Van Dusen entertained with a talk on Cuba. The league is at present without a head and no arrangement has been completed for its continuance. It is very much regretted that Mrs. Eckler feels that she cannot continue the work since she was a general favorite with the members, and accomplished a great deal.

Ocean House Closes—

The Ocean House closed this week with no announcement as to its operation next season. W. J. Lewis and Jack Sams, who have operated it the last two seasons, have bought the hotel at Stuart and will take charge next fall. During the summer they will run a summer place at Oyster Bay, N. Y. The Ocean House will probably not remain closed as it affords a good opportunity for tourist and commercial trade.

Cooper to Leave City—

W. A. Cooper, who has been manager of the telephone exchange here for some time, has resigned his position and will leave the first of next month for California, where he has accepted a position and where he will make his future home. During their residence here Mr. and Mrs. Cooper have made many friends, all of whom regret to learn of their plans to leave New Smyrna.

W. C. T. U. Enjoy Outing—

The members of the local W. C. T. U. were the guests of their president, Mrs. John Silsby, at her home at Coronado yesterday. The day was spent in visiting and talking over the work of the organization. A picnic dinner was served. The affair was one of the pleasantest socially that this organization has enjoyed.

Dr. Fogarty in the City—

Dr. J. N. Fogarty, candidate for congress from this district was a visitor in the city for a few hours Wednesday, stopping over here on his way to Daytona, where he was scheduled to speak that night. Dr. Fogarty will be here again next Thursday to attend the big barbecue.

Bells Go to St. Petersburg—

Rev. A. Bell and family left Tuesday for St. Petersburg, where they will make their home in future. Rev. Mr. Bell's resignation as pastor of the local Congregational church took effect April first, and they have decided to return to St. Petersburg, where they own a home.

A NEW KIND OF A PLUMBER

In the construction of ordinances governing plumbing, the frequent use of Trade phrases and names that are necessarily used will naturally confuse anyone not familiar with sanitary plumbing.

We have both undergone an examination by the Master Plumbers association of the state of New York where we attained the High Standard of Excellence.

If there is any point that is not entirely clear to you, if you will call on us we will gladly without cost or obligation on your part explain it to you and will understand it, and also give you a practical demonstration of the point involved.

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1916.

We pay our deepest respects. All honor to these boys and girls who acquitted themselves so nobly. This is a most important event in the history of their lives. It is not only an honor to themselves, but reflects much credit to their parents as well as their teachers, and should be a stepping stone to higher and greater things, satisfied with no less ambition than attaining the highest degree of efficiency.

It means much to a person to be prepared for the position which they are to fill in this busy world. It means much to be in position to talk intelligently about the kind of articles you are selling. We sell only the best and therefore like to boast of the stock of goods we carry, because we know they are sure to please the most particular person. Our prices are right, therefore this feature is sure to please the most careful buyer. A call at our store will be appreciated, whether you make a purchase or not.

Where the Teachers Went—

With the annual closing of school there was the usual exodus of teachers, most of them going to their homes in other places.

R. S. Blanton went from here to Live Oak, where he will occupy the position of principal next year.

Miss Ellen Wallace, high school, went to her home in Gainesville. She was accompanied by Miss Harriet Welch, eighth grade, who will visit her for a time and then go on to her home in Greencastle, Ind.

Miss Rosalie Dorth went to her home in St. Petersburg. She was accompanied by her mother who had spent the winter here with her.

Mrs. Mattie King, seventh grade, is still here.

Mrs. C. W. Murray, sixth grade, is at her home in Hawks Park. She will later visit in New Jersey.

Miss Annie Pattillo, fifth grade, has gone to her home near DeLand.

Miss Lenora Frier, third grade, will visit at Palatka and Gainesville for a few days and then go on to her home at Lee. Later she will attend the state university in Gainesville.

Miss Susie Darby, fourth grade, has gone to her home at Starke.

Miss Frances Dilzer, second grade, and Miss Alice Read, first grade, are at their homes here.

Pastor Voted a Vacation—

At an official board meeting of Trinity Methodist church Wednesday evening it was voted to give Pastor O. T. Uleman a vacation during the month of June. During that time however, the pulpit will be supplied each Sunday. Mr. Uleman will spend his vacation visiting relatives and friends in and near Cincinnati, Ohio. Mrs. Uleman and her mother and the children will remain here.

New Officers Named—

removal of Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Capo to St. Augustine by electing Gwendolyn Roach, secretary, Mrs. C. G. Herrick, treasurer and Lindsley Rowe, librarian.

Picnic Party at Eldora—

A jolly party made the trip to Eldora, Tuesday, in the boat, Pyxie. The security of men in the crowd allowed the ladies to have their own way, and it is said that the two male attendants were badly imposed upon, however, they have already signified their willingness to take another such trip. The party was made up of Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Capo, Mrs. E. L. Groer and daughters Irma, Eva and Rosebud, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Crane and daughters, Mary Louise and Harriette, Mrs. Maurice Ashton, Mrs. Arnold Pursley and Mrs. W. R. Healey.

The day was spent in fishing and frolicking, and dinner was served on the boat.

B. Y. P. U. Social Postponed—

The B. Y. P. U. social that was announced for this evening, Friday, to be held at the home of Miss Ruth Tucker at Coronado, has been postponed one week, when it will be held at the same place.

Mrs. E. A. Kelly and daughter, Mrs. Kate McKeown, who have, as usual, been spending the winter at the Ocean House, left Saturday on the return trip to their home in Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Woodward closed their winter home on the river front, Saturday and left for their home in Hendersonville, N. C.

Plans are being made for a big union Sunday school picnic to be held soon. The plans will be announced next week.

WINNERS OF MEDALS IN SCHOOL CONTEST

in the world but he consented, as he said, out of courtesy.

About a week later he had another invitation to spend the evening with this crowd of young men. This continued for some time. Each time the card game grew a little nearer gambling. One evening our young friend lost heavily and had spent all of his salary so could not pay back this money which he had lost. He had promised to pay the one to whom he had lost the next night. How was he to get the money? He did not know but it was simply strong in his mind that he must have it.

The next morning a wealthy gentleman came into the bank to deposit a large sum. Before the customer had gone he wondered why he could not borrow part of this money. No one would know the difference and he would return it in a couple of days at least. Oh, blind that he was to yield to this temptation. That evening he paid out this sum but lost even more before he stopped playing.

This time it did not puzzle him quite so much about where the money was to come from. Why not borrow the rest that he needed? His salary would come in a week or he might even win enough the very next night to pay it all back.

The next day he got the necessary sum from the bank and the next evening the same thing happened. However, this could not continue.

When he went to work the next morning he was told all about the case. He had been caught up with and was arrested. He was given five years in prison.

Just think of it! A young man's promising career ruined. Why? Because he was not true to himself. If he had heeded conscience and said no the very first time he was invited out with doubtful company he would perhaps have had a prosperous career and have been a well liked man.

It was not a great thing that he was called upon to decide at first. But it is not the great things that make the foundations always. It is an array of small things which make the wonderful things of the world.

A man must be able to rely on himself if he is ever to do anything worth while. We can not go through the world on another's back. We must think and act for ourselves. In our own thoughts lie our success. Then if we are afraid of them how can we ever accomplish anything? If we have failed once, do not make it worse by being a coward. Meet the defeat squarely and you will be strong enough to find the remedy.

Every one of us loves to have a great many friends. Emerson tells us that one of the two essential things for friendship is truth. He says we must not be afraid to think out loud to a friend. Then if we are to be true to them we must first of all be true to self.

If you have not been entirely truthful in your thoughts before, now is the time to begin this truth. Let every man be brave. Every one hates a coward. Of course we are brave in the way the word is usually taken but had you thought before that it was cowardly to fear conscience? Well, if you had not, it is. So do not do it again.

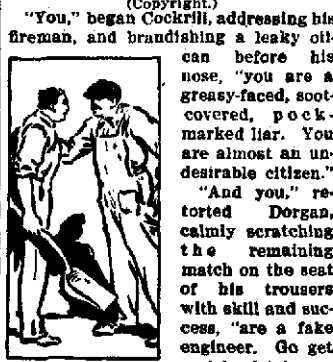

Let us all practice this truth in the little things which come up every day and we will find that we will be honest in every thing else, and then as honesty is the best policy our life will be a happy one. With these many friends life will be a success well worth the living, for if we are true to self, we cannot be false to anyone.

CIVIL WAR IN THE CAB

By FRANK CONDON.

(Copyright.)

"You," began Cockrill, addressing his fireman, and brandishing a leaky oil can before his nose, "you are a greasy-faced, soot-covered, pock-marked liar. You are almost an undesirable citizen."

"And you," retorted Dorgan, calmly scratching the remaining match on the seat of his trousers with skill and success, "are a fake engineer. Go get a job driving a truck. Throttle-pull on a Brooklyn parambulator. Hire out to the push-cart trust. Bah!"

"You run this old cow-killer into the turntable pit one day. You forget you ever heard of injectors the next. You let her water fall two feet below the glass, and she drops a crown-sheet."

"And then you try to Adam it off on this poor Eve," pointing to the fifth button of his waistcoat. "I get called up on the carpet, and accused of negligence on duty. And me peacefully and innocently eating lunch when it happened."

"Yes, eating lunch," Cockrill went on, trying to be calm and judicial; "eating it on that very seat where you're sitting now. 'Twas your fault, and you know it; and if I didn't defend you, and plead for your job with tears in my eyes, you'd been fired, you good-for-nothing loafer. Then you go and blame it all on me!"

"Weren't you under the engine?" asked Dorgan, with frigid politeness. "Hadden't you just left the cab? Was I any where around when you left?"

"You were. As I remarked a minute ago, you were sitting in the same position you now occupy."

"I was not," said Dorgan. "You were," retorted Cockrill; "and if you get me any madder than I am I'll drop this can and lick the everlasting blazes out of you."

"Yes, you'd drop the can," said Dorgan scornfully, "and pick up the shovel. You couldn't lick a stick of candy. You're wrong about my blaming it on you, anyhow."

"Our genial and lovable superintendent, John Flathead McKinney—worse luck to him—asked me distinctly who was to blame, me or you; and who did I say? Who did I say, you ungrateful, bum engineer?"

"You said me, of course," responded Cockrill. "You turned and betrayed me and lied about me, and I ought to have you fired. I think I will yet."

The rattle of mutilated English overcame even the sharp hissing of steam in the engine-cab. Fireman and engineer were having it out for the sixty-first time, and it was now four weeks since the locomotive had blown off an upper sheet.

The roundhouse door swung open on creaky hinges, and attention to duty prevented further war for the moment. Cockrill opened the throttle, and the big engine glided softly into her stall.

In the perpetual dusk of the roundhouse a fat, red-faced man picked his way among the tracks and over the pilots. It was Superintendent McKinney.

"Where's Cockrill?" he asked of a wiper.

"He just came in, sir," answered that mental person. "His engine is on the last track."

McKinney strode forward, and Cockrill saw him coming.

"Shut up, now," he cautioned the suddenly mute Dorgan. "Here's the old snake himself, with more questions to ask."

The cinders crunched under McKinney's tread. "Are you up there, Cockrill?" he asked.

"I am," replied the engineer.

"So am I," put in Dorgan, his sarcasm totally lost on the florid superintendent, who climbed heavily into the cab.

"Now," began McKinney judicially, when he got his breath, "for the last time, I want to find out about that crown-sheet. That thing cost one hundred and eighty dollars to fix up, and I want to find out why it happened, and which of you let it happen?"

"Mr. McKinney," Dorgan broke in contritely, "there's no use obscuring the issue, as they say in law. I am to blame. I did it. Mr. Cockrill here had nothing to do with it any more than you. If there's any punishment, I deserve it, and I'm ready to take it."

Before he had finished the "t" in "it," Cockrill's voice filled the cab.

LEIDERSDORF LOCATES IN BUSINESS IN MILWAUKEE.

Friends of Max Leidersdorf have received cards announcing his engagement in the real estate business in Milwaukee with a partner of several years standing there. His many friends here wish him much success in his new business venture. Mr. and Mrs. Leidersdorf who resided here several years left Daytona where they have spent the last few months for the north a short time ago intending to locate in Milwaukee if conditions were favorable. They expect to spend a part of their winters in Daytona.

Child's Birthday Party

Little Margaret Lee Ranew celebrated her fifth birthday Wednesday and in honor of it gave a party to her little friends in the afternoon. Many enjoyable games were played and pictures of the group taken after which refreshments were served. Those present were Katherine Robinson, Elizabeth and Virginia Chowning, Sherwood Spencer, Gertrude Phyllis and Helen Nelson. W. C. Cole Jr. and Carl McCullough.

In a recent letter from Jesse Kroon renewing his subscription to the News and calling for a change of address he says: "As you note I am not at La Jolla but the change was for the better in every respect. We like Porto Rico and are happy and contented especially since we have learned if not to master the language enough of it to help us."

Mr. and Mrs. Kroon went to Porto Rico a little over a year ago where Mr. Kroon took charge of a big orange grove. He has a similar position in their new location and then many friends here are glad to hear of their continued success.

Reception for Essayists

The W. C. T. U. gave an informal reception Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. A. Jernigan to the pupils of the New Smyrna high school that took part in their prize contest with a temperance essay. Those present were Misses Alma Disbennett, Julia Dilzer, Ruth Jones, Ruth Courtney, Claribel Godfrey and Lindale Rowe. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. E. L. McAuley. Mrs. Silsby gave a few interesting selections of reading and a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon was spent by the writers.

This is the group of young people in which Miss Alma Disbennett won first prize and Miss Julia Dilzer second a few weeks ago.

ALLANDALE

ALLANDALE, May 22.—The Allandale Improvement association has been granted a charter by the circuit court, and is now in a position to start carrying out its plans for the betterment of Allandale. There are so few members here now but little can be accomplished until in the fall when the people return.

The library building has been progressing nicely. The frame is up and the roof is on and as soon as the doors and window frames arrive the cement blocks will be put up. The building will be very attractive and quite an addition to this place.

Mrs. M. O. Hill, mother of A. C. Hicks passed away last Friday night and was laid to rest on Saturday. Funeral services being conducted by Rev. H. S. Phibbs, pastor of the First Baptist church of Daytona. Mrs. Hicks was in her 89th year and had been in fairly good health up to the time of her recent illness being taken to her bed about a month ago.

Work on the new road is going on in a satisfactory manner and will be pushed now that the start has been made.

Allandale appears deserted still there are about 10 families here yet.

at this time Miss Gussie has many friends here who earnestly hope she may speedily recover her wonted health. Mr. Hunt, Kenneth and Mrs. J. J. Wells Jr. expect to start for Long Island on Wednesday.

Mrs. Clara Zimmerman came from Jacksonville on Monday for a short stay.

Mrs. G. W. McDonald who with Mr. McDonald recently went to Logan Utah in a letter just received writes they had a pleasant trip, but that the weather is very cool. Fruit trees were in bloom and were being sprayed for insects and the night before the letter was written, the spray froze solid on the trees and hung in icicles and many people were afraid of a short crop.

The school house was crowded on Thursday night at the closing exercises of the Port Orange school, by an enthusiastic audience who appreciated the well rendered program, and vigorously applauded the various numbers. The members of the graduating class were Miss Hazel McDonald who gave a fine recitation that was well received, and Harold Lamphear, Henry Morgan, and Albert Yelvington who received diplomas. Mrs. Adams, the principal in well chosen words presented the class. J. B. Case in response dwelt on the earnest, well directed efforts of the pupils, and the efficient work of the teachers that resulted in the well merited diplomas being bestowed upon the faithful pupils.

Miss Bertha Wellman who so ably conducted the primary division of the school during the past term, left on Saturday for her home. She has been engaged for next year Miss White, who taught the intermediate department for the past year, also left on Saturday for her home, she having likewise been engaged for the next term of school. Mrs. Adams will leave for Tallahassee in a few days to attend the graduating exercises of the Women's college, where her daughter is to graduate.

The showers are coming very seasonably, and all vegetation is growing fast and coming out in fine green colors, and nature is rejoicing in the abundant rains that promised a cessation of the long drought.

Chaffie fishing is on. Several large ones having been caught recently.

Bruce Perkins is reported seriously ill, which his friends regret to hear.

Herbert Carrow has moved into Mrs. Milburn's cottage, opposite W. L. McDonald's on Dunlawton avenue. J. H. Bennett has moved his family to Wilbur for the present as he is working on the hotel at that place.

There was a dance with quite a large attendance at Vase hall on Thursday night of last week.

Two cars of asphalt have arrived for the new road. Cars of crushed rock of various sizes, sand and other material have been coming in for several days.

Uses and Abuses of Fertilizers

6 FERTILIZERS AND THE HOME GARDEN.

The Last of a Series of Six Articles

A farmer that we used to know quite well always put on his garden plot a sack of guano and three or four loads of stable and other kinds of barn yard manure. His garden covered about one fifth of an acre and was good land to begin with. In fact, he had selected a good, rich spot of ground for his garden. The fertilizer he applied amounted to a thousand pounds per acre and the barnyard manure to about seven or eight tons. Of course, he grew a good garden, as most people do, and yet he often wondered why his garden was so much better than other parts of his farm. He was a good farmer and made plenty of everything, and to spare. He knew that he made liberal applications of fertilizers and manures to his garden, but was never quite willing to acknowledge that these made all the difference in the yields.

Our gardens are usually the richest spots on the farm, and are so only because we make them so by fertilization and cultivation. Every acre in the average farm could be made just as rich if we tried to make it so. We do not consider sufficiently the factors which make fertile land. We do not strive to do intensive farming, but rather make it as extensive as our acres will allow. When we wish to make an additional bale of cotton or bushel of corn, we take in more land instead of enriching what is already under cultivation.

Dr. L. H. Bailey has given in his book, 'The Principles of Vegetable Gardening,' some valuable suggestions on the use of commercial fertilizers. The kind and amount of fertilizers, he says, are to be determined by several circumstances: (1) The earliness or quickness with which the crop is to be obtained; (2) the intensity of the operations to which the man is committed; (3) the character of the land as regards tillage and texture; (4) the character of the land as regards richness in plant food; (5) the kind or species of crops to be raised. Whatever the condition of the land or the nature of the crop, it must be fertilized if the gardener meets with success. Competition in the truck growing business can be met in no other way than by liberally fertilizing the ground on which the crops grow. Dr. Bailey has wisely said that fertilizers must be applied in excess of the actual needs of the plants. It is impossible to distribute a very small quantity of fertilizers over a large area.

Vegetables are such rapid growing plants that one need not fear that much of the fertilizer will leach out through the soil on account of rain. If it is applied close to or in the drill row, all of it should be saved. The plants will absorb it before it gets away. The formula generally recommended consists of a complete fertilizer, though the acid phosphate and nitrogen should come from different sources, even in the same fertilizer applied at any given time. The mixture for gardens should be composed of as many kinds of ingredients as possible, carrying the three fundamental elements of plant food—potash, nitrogen and phosphoric acid.

Voorhees recommends heavy applications of such mixtures to the commercial gardens and to truck patches. He says 1,000 to 5,000 pounds per acre of such mixture should be applied to asparagus, and as much to beets and turnips less than that to peas and beans. With any amount an after application has been found profitable. This is sometimes called the second application which is not generally a complete fertilizer, but is composed of nitrogen or one of the other elements alone. The second application of fertilizers may be composed of ammonia and acid, or other formula to suit the immediate crop.

Garden vegetables need large applications of fertilizer because any check in their growth produces inferiority in quality. It is said by Dr. Bailey that any delay in the growth of lettuce or radishes will generally cause a punkent flavor or sharp taste that is undesirable. It cut down the market value. The way to remove any cause for this is to fertilize well and properly and then cultivate. The turnip is made very inferior when there is a check in growth. The vegetables that are thus stunted seem to revert to the original type from which they were derived, especially with regard to taste, and hence should be carefully looked after in regard to fertilization and cultivation. Fertilizers should be applied to the vegetable garden as early after the spring breaking as possible, as the soil ought to be saturated with rich plant food before the plants begin to grow very much. Then they will grow much more rapidly and make far better vegetables. The second application should be made about the time the young plants are half grown. This is as definite as a statement regarding this practice can be made. For all prize crops, a third and fourth application is made, and with telling effects. No one can deny that the vegetable garden is the one place in which large dividends can be made from the use of commercial fertilizers.

HOW CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS STAND ON FEDERAL OWNERSHIP OF EAST COAST CANAL

Secretary H. I. Hamilton of the Florida East Coast Canal Association Asks Each Candidate to Declare Himself so People of East Coast and Fourth District May Be Guided Intelligently in Casting Ballots.

Without question the most important proposition now before the people of the Florida East Coast is the question whether the United States government can be induced to take over and operate the East Coast canal. The matter has been agitated for some time without definite result and the people most interested in the matter realize that without some strong influence at Washington the chances for having the government purchase and hold the inland waterway along the East Coast is remote.

With the idea of determining just how the candidates for congress stand on this matter, H. I. Hamilton, secretary of the Florida East Coast Canal association, which has strongly endorsed the proposition of government ownership of the inland waterway along the all East Coast route, wrote each of these candidates asking for their stand on this important matter, the letter of the secretary to the candidates being as follows:

Dear Sir:

We want you to state plainly your stand on the question of Federal ownership of the Florida East Coast Canal. You know that this association is comprised of all the counties along the East Coast of the state from one end to the other, in fact every county in the Fourth District except Ocala, Orange and Seminole come within the workings of this association. It has many members and friends from one end of the state to the other and we need relief in our transportation facilities. We believe that in as much as the ALL EAST COAST route is 86 miles shorter than any other, is all sea level, doing away with the necessary lock or locks of any other route, and in all salt water, doing away with the possible obstruction from floating vegetation on fresh water routes, it is far more advantageous to the people living along the East Coast of the state and will be of far greater saving capacity to them than any other route could possibly be.

We therefore ask you, will you if elected to serve as a member of Congress use your every influence at all times both on the floor of the House and out, to secure favorable action on this project from the Engineers and Congress?

Your prompt reply to this letter will be appreciated.

Yours very truly,

H. I. HAMILTON, Secretary.

The replies from some of these candidates are given in the parallel columns herewith. Evidently the question of whether the people of the East Coast are to be seriously considered in their demands for an adequate inland waterway to give them the same competition in freight rates enjoyed by some other sections of the state, did not appeal to the candidates for United States senator, as the only reply received was a curt note from the clerk to Senator Bryan, saying the senator favors "the government taking over an inland waterway from Jacksonville to Key West."

Voters of the fourth congressional district, which is mostly the East Coast section, should read these replies carefully, and in reading them it will be noted that but one candidate announces strongly and definitely that he will use every effort to bring about a favorable report from the board of engineers and an appropriation from congress to turn over to the people of the state the free use of the East Coast canal.

Voters are urged to read these replies carefully in order to be fully informed as to what to expect from a representative in congress as regards the most important matter before the people of the East Coast at this time.

A government-owned inland waterway along the East Coast means lower freight rates and better business for all cities and towns and the Florida East Coast Canal association is using every means to bring about a favorable report from the board of army engineers.

Fogarty Favors Ownership.

Key West, Fla., May 4th, 1916.

Hon. H. I. Hamilton,

New Smyrna, Florida

Dear Sir:

In response to yours of May 3rd, I am pleased to state that of all the candidates in this race for Congress, from the fourth congressional district, I was the first who publicly declared for the federal ownership of inland waterways. In making this declaration, I had in mind, more particularly than any other project or water route, the East Coast canal. I am unalterably opposed to private ownership of waterways, either in our district, state or nation. You can assure your membership that should I be honored by their vote to the seat in Congress, that they will then be able to boast of a friend at court. My every effort will be directed along such lines as will bring about a favorable report of the corps of engineers and a sufficient appropriation by the act of congress to turn over to all people of our state the free use of the East Coast canal. I do not understand how anyone, after understanding conditions of exorbitant freight rates exacted from the people of the East Coast, could consistently oppose any move toward a federal ownership of the waterway in question.

You can count on my undivided support in your behalf along these lines. Hoping that your association will see fit to give to me an undivided support in the coming election, realizing that a vote for me means a vote for yourselves, I am

Very truly yours,

J. N. FOGARTY.

Reply from W. J. Sears.

Kissimmee, Fla., May 15, 1916.

Mr. H. I. Hamilton,

New Smyrna, Fla.

Dear Mr. Hamilton:

Yours received last Saturday, upon my return to the city, in reply thereto, will state that I wrote Mr. H. L. Rood, editor of the News, stating fully the stand I took on the matter mentioned in your letter. As your present Congressman and as your future Congressman, I may be wrong, but I take the position that I should not commit myself until this matter has been thoroughly gone into by the proper department and their report made. I will be in New Smyrna and speak on afternoon of May 26th, and will be glad to go into the matter fully with you. I have about one hundred letters to write today so that I can leave for the East Coast tomorrow.

With kind regards and best wishes, I am,

Very truly yours,

W. J. SEARS.

The part of the letter to Mr. Rood referred to by Congressman Sears above is as follows:

"I believe you know me well enough to know that I am not a grandstand player, nor do I advocate measures solely for the purpose of getting votes. I will, therefore, frankly state to you the position I have taken on the matter of the canal proposition, and this was done long before I dreamed of having opposition, and therefore, with no ulterior motive; and in fact same was stated to those interested in the Sanford-Jacksonville route. That position was as follows: While I would naturally prefer the route which would come nearer my home town, it was not a matter for me to consider from a personal view point, and that to do so in my judgment would make me unworthy to represent the District. This being the case, I would not commit myself until I had an opportunity to go into Lake's Numerous Replies.

Sanford, Florida, April 29, 1916.

Hon. H. I. Hamilton,

New Smyrna, Florida,

My dear Mr. Hamilton:

In replying to your letter of recent date, relative to the development, etc., of the Florida East Coast Canal, I beg to state briefly and emphatically, my position:

This matter, as you are aware, has first to be passed upon by the United States Engineers, who report to the Secretary of War, and his recommendation is laid before Congress for its action, and the records of recent years show that Congress acts pretty much in line with the recommendations of that Department in the matter of harbors, waterways, etc. Therefore, you will of course realize that until such a recommendation is made, there is little that a Congressman can do. Already, (I am informed), a Commission has been appointed to report on the advisability of the government's taking over the East Coast canal, and should its report be in favor thereof, I shall be glad to use my best efforts to see that the Commission's recommendations are carried out. To all who know the actual condition of the East Coast canal; that, as it stands, it is of no use or value to the people of that section, it must be evident that such a measure as would ensure its proper development is a step that will benefit not only the East Coast, not only the Fourth District, but the whole state of Florida.

Trusting that I have made my position clear, and thanking you for calling my attention further to the matter, which, by the way, you will recall, I have already stated definitely

Health and Politics

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH BULLETIN

At the first thought you may say there is no connection between the two but it's there just the same especially in Florida

In as much as most men and women are selfish—they won't sacrifice personal comfort and convenience for the general good—it becomes necessary to make laws (and to enforce them) by which the greatest good for the greatest number shall be secured

Some housekeepers won't keep their premises clean, they insist on scattering garbage all over the back yard to invite flies and spread disease, and unless the law intervenes to protect the neighbors, they become a nuisance and a menace to the community

Laws are of no particular use if they are not enforced. Once a law finds place on the statute books it is there for the protection of the people, and no public official charged with the administration of laws has the right to choose which shall and which shall not be enforced. A good many officials are like the slovenly housekeeper and there is no law to compel them to their duty excepting the power of the people who elected them to their office

It is essential that such men can be placed in office as will legislate intelligently for the public good. They may be entirely honest but if they are ignorant and can't or won't absorb wisdom, they have no right to hold office. It is a duty that the voter owes himself and his neighbors to see that his legislator, his sheriff and county commissioner are honest, intelligent and progressive. And there is quite as much to be feared from ignorance as from crookedness

It is the duty of every voter to inform himself as to the attitude of every candidate for office toward the health matters of Florida. Every candidate from aspirant for the governorship to those who want to be constables, should be asked to declare himself in public utterance on health matters. Each should state whether the administration of the state health department in his opinion, has been satisfactory, and whether or not he is willing and will, when called upon, support reasonable measures for the protection of public health in the state. There should be no trading for votes by candidates where the health of the state can possibly be made the basis of exchange or influence. If the people of Florida are dissatisfied with the conduct of the health department through its progressive and successful management of more than twenty five years, let them express themselves to that effect in their votes. If the candidates, representing the people favor a change, let them be honest and fearless in saying so. Make them tell the voters what they believe could be enacted into law to improve present conditions in the health status of Florida.

Florida's state board of health has been instrumental in securing the enactment by various legislatures of a considerable number of laws, whose sole and unselfish object is to conserve public health. These laws have been the results of years of close study of the conditions that they aim to remedy. Some of these laws are practically dead because they have not been generally enforced. The state board, not being clothed with executive authority, is powerless to force the observation of these laws, powerless beyond the power that belongs to every citizen to bring notice and proof of violation to the attention of administrative officials. Oftentimes and repeatedly it has entered such complaints and it has asked those in power to enforce the laws which would bring relief from avoidable evils and its complaints have been ignored

The board asks co-operation among the voters of Florida at the elections in June to secure the selection in every county in the state of men who appreciate the fact that health is the biggest asset that the public or the individual possesses or can possess who will conscientiously and actively and aggressively remember this fact after election as well as before and who will have the welfare the healthfulness of their communities as a burden on their souls as long as they hold public office

IT WAS A TOUGH STEAK.

But the Restaurant Man Easily Fixed It When the Kick Came

It happened in a downtown restaurant. A well dressed—as he always must be to make a good story—young man ordered a steak. The waitress rather pretty—which qualification she must possess in writing a story of this kind—tilled the order, and the young man started in to devour the feast which had been set before him

The young man had no sooner started in on the steak than he discovered that he had a kick coming, and as the restaurant proprietor passed he stopped him by saying 'I can't eat this steak, entirely too tough. I wish you would see that I get better meats when I come in here'

'Too bad! That steak looks all right. But let me get you another.' And the aforesaid proprietor took the steak, the silverware which had been served with it and departed. He soon returned with a steak which looked exactly like the first one. The young man picked up his knife and started at his second order. 'Fine!' he said as his knife cut it apart without the least effort. The customer was pleased beyond words, and that he enjoyed the steak was evident, for he left only the plate. As the reporter passed out he met the proprietor again and this is what was said.

'That steak was all right, but the girl made a mistake in not giving him a sharper knife. All I did was to put the same steak on another plate and bring him a sharp knife. You have no idea what a difference a sharp knife makes with a steak from a beef of questionable age.'—Columbus Dispatch.

To the College Boy.

When you enter college keep in mind the sound advice that a wise college president has offered to such as you. 'Follow the preparatory school rules for the first year,' he says. 'Keep up the momentum that the school has given you rather than take advantage of your new liberty all at once. Watch the upper class men. See how they have improved or abused the freedom of the college life and the opportunities at the college and then deliberately make up your mind what kind of man you want to be.'—Youth's Companion.

Can't Be Done.

'Mrs. Giddy has invited all the members of the sewing circle to a luncheon and matinee party.'

'Doesn't she know they have been something about her something awful?'

'If course she does. That's the reason she's trying to square the circle.'—New York World.

THE FLORIDA CITRUS EXCHANGE A POTENT FACTOR IN INDUSTRY

Nine out of ten of the citrus growers of Florida, whether affiliated with the Florida Citrus exchange or not, will state that they regard this organization as the most potent factor for the general good of the industry that has ever existed in Florida. A similar attitude toward the exchange is held by bankers, merchants and business men generally, even though they may have no direct association with the body. Newcomers to Florida often are puzzled by the freedom and apparent sincerity with which favorable expressions regarding the work of the exchange are made on every hand, when these are considered in connection with the comparatively small volume of fruit marketed by the organized growers.

Persons who have lived in Florida for a sufficiently long time to be personally familiar with the development of the citrus industry in the past twenty years, recall that, following the freeze in 1895, the production of oranges in Florida for some years was not on a sufficiently large scale to make the marketing of the fruit present any problems. Grapefruit was practically unknown and the orange crop was the only one in the citrus field that offered anything to be sold at the north. The supply did not at all meet the demand, and growers had no particular trouble in disposing of all they had for sale. Before the freeze, the orange production of Florida had reached such a volume as to make the marketing a matter of considerable concern, and just a year or two previous, an organization had been formed to handle the matter.

In less than ten years after the time of the freeze, Florida orange production had "come back." In fact, it had reached a volume greater than that had been attained in the old days. With no system whatever in the marketing, the question of securing returns that would make the crop profitable became serious. The growers could sell their fruit "on the tree" to speculators who advanced a few cents per box early in the season. These speculators sometimes were able to dispose of the fruit later at a great profit, sometimes they were not so fortunate; sometimes the growers got more than the amount advanced; more often nothing else. If the grower did not choose to dispose of the crop in this way, he could consign it to a commission house in some northern city, depending upon the honesty of the latter for the returns.

In many cases, there were no returns. A few growers producing superior stuff, went north and established marketing connections which enabled them to get, in a fair average of instances, enough out of their fruit for their groves to be profitable. As the production increased, the number of crops sold at prices which gave the growers adequate returns for their investments and labor, decreased proportionately. Finally, grove owners awakened to the fact that their efforts were contributing to the prosperity of the manufacturers of materials, which they used in the production of citrus fruits and to that of the transportation companies, which carried the fruit to the market, as well as enriching commission men and speculators, but returning very little to themselves.

Following this awakening, there was discussion all over the state as to the best means for the protection of the growers. A committee, composed of a score or more of the most intelligent men in the industry, made a trip of investigation to California. In that state the same problems had been confronted and in large measure, solved, through the California Fruit Growers' exchange. Upon their return from the Pacific coast, the Florida investigators determined to follow out the same general plan of operation. The Florida Citrus exchange was formed as a result of this determination, its basic law differing only in some minor details from that of the California organization.

Two growers generally came into the exchange, expecting it to prove the salvation of the industry without other activity on their part than turning over to it their fruit to be sold. At that time, the average of the grade and pack of Florida citrus fruit was very much below that of California and far behind the standards of today. The exchange found itself confronted with the problem of selling fruit not properly prepared for market through sales force that was lacking in equipment and training, and under the handicap of great expectations on the part of the growers which it was out of the question to realize upon. The results were disappointing, many growers withdrew from the organization, and it entered a period of severe struggle.

It was necessary first to educate the growers in the matter of properly preparing their crops for market. To retain even a small percentage of these in the organization, required that it should get considerably better prices for their products than could be obtained through outside marketing agencies. That this was done, year after year, is a remarkable tribute to the justice of the idea on which the exchange is founded, as well as to the business ability of the men who have directed its destinies. Controlling in the past two or three years not much to exceed 20 per cent of the fruit grown in Florida, the exchange has been marvelously successful in putting the industry upon a substantial basis. Unquestionably it is responsible in a large degree for the constantly increasing demand for Florida oranges and grapefruit, as it is for the growing tendency to the maintenance of equitable prices. Growers not directly affiliated with the organization, participate in these benefits almost as fully as those who are members and the human nature, which manifests itself in the disposition to take advantage of them so long as possible without contributing to the defrayal of their cost, is the principal reason why no larger proportion of Florida citrus producers have joined the exchange.

The headquarters of the Florida Citrus exchange is in Tampa. It is the largest single business in the state of Florida, having an annual turnover at this time of approximately $5,000,000. The business is conducted on careful lines, under the supervision of the board of directors, composed of one member from each important citrus county. Twelve of these directors meet monthly or oftener. Capable employees under bond, careful audit of the books monthly by the directors and audits by outside experts, protect the growers absolutely in the handling of the funds. Each grower receives an account sales for his fruit which, in definite detail, shows him just what it was sold for, just what has been the cost of selling, just what the central office has retained for the cost of its operation, and just how much he nets. The exchange is different from most every other marketing agency in that, instead of making a flat charge to cover administrative expenses only and not including other items of outlay connected with selling of fruit, its retain covers all these expenses, averaged for the season. While apparently its marketing charge is higher than that of some of the private agencies, careful investigation has shown that in reality it is lower.

Has Well Arranged Sales Department. The detail work of handling the business of the organization is not the most important or most interesting of its functions, however. The sales department also registers cost of buying and disposition of the product of the members, in a vast and complicated organization in itself. Among the duties of the sales department is the development of demand for Florida oranges and grapefruit. Naturally, this requires educational effort with the consumer. For some years, the exchange has conducted an advertising campaign with the end in view of building up a greater consumer demand for citrus fruits, grown in Florida. This demand is the foundation of all its other work, as obviously the wholesale dealers will not care to stock, nor the retail dealers to buy fruit about which the consumer is uninformed and indifferent. The advertising of the exchange is doing along several lines, each having been carefully tested out before any considerable amount of money was put into it. Great care is exercised to see that as consumer demand is developed, there is such distribution as may be depended upon to take care of its supply. Magazines are used in a limited way, daily newspapers more extensively. Window display material, cut-outs, signs, recipe books, etc., are liberally employed. Unfortunately for the exchange, but fortunately for the state at large, the good results of the advertising and sales effort cannot be confined absolutely to the products of the members of the exchange. In telling of the superior merits of Florida oranges and grapefruit, it is not wholly practicable to convey the idea that quality fruit can be had only when exchange brands are bought, even if this were strictly true. It has been a difficult matter to educate the average consumer to the exact meaning of the Florida Citrus exchange or to keep in mind the name as a means of identifying the fruit which it ships. In the past season, the use of a trade mark phrase, "Seedswest," short and easily remembered as a synonym of the name of Florida Citrus exchange, has gone a long way to a solution of this difficulty. Many people, who could not remember Florida Citrus exchange, or who did not understand just wherein the organization differed from other marketing agencies for Florida fruit, now make all their purchases of "Seedswest" oranges and grapefruit and the disposition in this direction apparently is increasing rapidly. The idea of buying fruit grown by a co-operative body of producers conveyed in the advertising, more and more each year has been found to have a great deal of appeal to consumers. Still, the grower outside the exchange remains the beneficiary of its promotion work to a considerable extent. His marketing agency can undersell the exchange, in sections where the latter's work has built up a demand for Florida fruit, to the extent of a few cents a box and still, if complete returns are made to the grower, he will figure that he comes out as well or better than if he had shipped through the exchange and borne his proportionate part of the cost of developing demand.

In the marketing methods of the exchange, as little as possible is left to chance. Every day the salaried and bonded representatives of the organization in all important citrus markets, telegraph a synopsis of the situation in that territory. These wires cover the conditions, actual and prospective, of the market. Detail the amount of fruit on sale and in transit for that point, etc. On the information gathered in this way, the sales manager bases his offerings for the next day. If in any city the demand promises to be in excess of the supply fruit is diverted from other points. Market centers, to which there appears to be going an excessive supply, are relieved by those diversions. If the dealers of any town are indisposed to pay prices that are considered fair and which are in line with those prevailing elsewhere, fruit may be withdrawn after it has been offered for sale and still further diverted if it is impracticable to hold it for better market conditions. Much the same methods now are in use by the independent agencies, though none of these has as complete or aggressive organization as that of the exchange, and all of them are largely depending upon its pioneer work to build the demand for Florida fruit which they fill in part.

What of the future? Will a certain proportion of the growers continue to bear the burden? May these growers not grow weary in well-doing, and conclude that they will no longer make possible the prosperity of their neighbors? Undoubtedly there is a tendency in this direction, and many exchange growers are impatient with the present situation. The moment that they consider in detail just how this can be modified for their benefit and protection, they come up squarely against a stone wall, however. If they should abandon in any considerable degree the educational work that they are now doing, or the organization for marketing efficiency which they have built, conditions unquestionably would revert to the former low level. Growers now outside the exchange, as well as those in the organization and the state at large, would suffer alike. The industry would go on the rocks, and there would be no profit in the growing of oranges and grapefruit until a new organization of like purpose and performance grew up. Most of the exchange growers figure that in taking any such step as this they would be cutting off their noses to spite their faces, hence the prevailing policy of going ahead and trying to persuade the co-beneficiaries of the movement to become directly affiliated with it and assist in bearing the expense of its maintenance. Some recent events are considered by prominent exchange men as indicating that there is reason to believe that the patriotic appeal of the organization will not much longer fail to be heeded by at least one-half of the growers of Florida.

What the Florida Citrus exchange really means to the state hardly can be estimated in dollars and cents. A faint indication is found in a comparison of the prices secured by the organization for the fruit of its members with those obtained by the privately owned marketing agencies, in such of the markets of the country as have a system which gives official figures on all citrus transactions. While the claims of the friends of the exchange, based on these comparisons, are, of course, disputed by the partisans of the other marketing agencies, the preponderance of evidence apparently is very strongly in favor of the former. If the average grower's returns of the growers in the exchange are but 25 cents a box more than the corresponding average of the unorganized growers, it is clear that the exchange is a profitable investment for the former, since the per box assessment for educational and selling work is very much less than that sum. The broader view of the matter is that which takes into consideration the better prices secured by all growers, regardless of whether or not they are affiliated with the exchange by reason of its existence. A keen business man of this city who has varied and successful experience, recently made the statement that, comparing the condition in the citrus industry today with those which prevailed previous to the organization of the exchange, he was firmly of the belief that as a result of the efforts of the organization, the growers of Florida this year were receiving not less than $4,000,000 more for their orange and grapefruit crops than they would have received if the old order had been in existence.

Wise Precaution.
A certain politician desired a diplomatic appointment, says the Washington Star. A friend, in surprise, said to him: "But you don't even speak the language of the country!" "Well," replied the determined applicant, "a man isn't nearly so likely to make indiscreet remarks, if he has to get a lexicon and look up the meaning of every word he utters."

J. LEE McCORORY

Candidate for County Judge

To the Democratic voters of Volusia County:

I am again a candidate for County Judge, and if you believe I have discharged the duties of that office faithfully, honestly and impartially, I again ask for your support in the primary of June 6th. I was first elected as your County Judge in the year 1900 and am now serving my fourth term. I first entered public life as Mayor of the little city of Oglethorpe, Macon county, Georgia. I was the first County Solicitor of Macon county, Georgia, and served as such County Solicitor under Hon. W. H. Fish, now the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia.

I was a member of the Board of Public Instruction of Volusia county, Florida, from 1897 to 1900, inclusive.

I have served six years as one of the local trustees of the DeLand schools. I am a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and have served as steward and Sunday school superintendent for more than 30 years.

I was never accused of crime but once in my past life, and that was on the 4th of April 1873, when I stole the daughter of a Methodist minister and the old Justice who passed sentence upon me committed me to hard labor for the term of my natural life, which sentence I have been performing to the best of my ability for more than 43 years.

During the last 42 years I have led somewhat of an active business and professional life, and I have never charged a widow or a minister of the gospel one cent for any professional work I have ever done for them. I have charged the estates of deceased husbands a legal fee only for administration papers upon such estates, but in many, very many, instances where the estates were small I have not charged them a penny; in many other instances I have cut the legal fees to one-half. Again I have on numerous occasions, at my own expense, traveled to various sections of this county to transact business pertaining to the duties of my office, where my actual expenses were not more than covered by the fees received for such services. I am a poor man, and worth little more than when I took the office of County Judge. No man can make more than a living out of this office.

I am over 66 years of age and I have tried to live an honest and upright life. I have been your County Judge for several years, during which time, of course, the duties of the office of County Judge have not permitted me to build up a law practice or to lay aside anything for the "rainy day." The people of Volusia county have been kind to me in the past and I appreciate it from the bottom of my heart.

I am not entitled to your votes because of these things, but I know I have tried to discharge the duties of my office honestly, fairly and impartially. I have tried to live a manly and upright life, and if you feel that I have done these things and that I am capable still of making you a fair and honest Judge, I ask for your support and influence for another term.

Yours sincerely,

J. LEE McCORORY.

FLORIDA CITRUS EXCHANGE

The Florida Citrus Exchange is composed of the citrus fruit growers of Florida who believe that they have the capacity and the ability to market their own product so that it will yield them adequate returns for their investments and labor.

Other growers who are of like mind are invited to join the Exchange, in the management of which each one of them will have equal voice with every other member. The Exchange is absolutely a co-operative organization. It is operated solely for the profit and benefit of its members.

SIMMONS OF DELAND FOR MEMBER STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

What the Volusia County
Record says about him:

This week J. P. Simmons announced as a candidate for member of the state executive committee from Volusia county. In his announcement he assures us he will uphold only such actions of the committee as will strengthen the Democratic party. We believe him. We believe him for he is well known in this community for honesty, industry and sobriety. We have known Mr. Simmons for some time. We have heard of him in the church, in business, in school and can say of him that he is a young man who looks life in the face, not seeing men as trees walking, but with that love and charity which sees goodness in all mankind. He believes that if you wish to succeed in any enterprise excel in what you undertake. There is a right way and a wrong way in doing everything and we believe Mr. Simmons possesses that tact which makes each act and word tell for good. He was born a Democrat, and that is to his credit to start with. He moved to Volusia county when 18 years old. He attended Stetson University and graduated from the college of law in 1914 and has been in the legal practice since that date, besides being actively associated with other business in the county for five years. Mr. Simmons is a progressive young man and accepts truth wherever he finds it and reflects nothing because of its source.—Volusia County Record.

FINANCIAL SENSE

Take Care of What You Earn and Then Invest It Wisely.

The greatest financial genius I ever knew and the richest man I ever knew personally once said to me:

"There is no greater financial genius possible than taking care of what you earn, and there is no better or surer way of taking care of your surplus than to invest it in sound securities paying 5 or 6 per cent. And such securities are easy to find any day of any year. So any man may be a financial genius if he will exercise the simplest common sense."

I protested that it would be said of such a man that he was narrow and selfish.

"Nonsense," the financial genius replied. "I have money invested in railroads, in packing houses, and in manufacturing enterprises. Could money be invested more usefully? Yet it is as safe as government bonds and pays a better rate of interest. I invest my own money, but a man without financial experience may secure safe investments without difficulty. If a man has a bank account his banker will find safe investments for him. Bankers are men of financial experience, and 99 per cent of them are intelligent and honorable. There is no excuse for a busy man neglecting his savings. Many women, when they come into possession of money, lose it because they invest it in schemes bankers would not trust, or else the woman loan their money to men who could not borrow money at a bank. Everything in life is simple and easy if we would only accept experience and be careful of big and sentimental notions. Financial sense is knowing that certain men will promise to do certain things and fulfill. Therefore when you invest your savings get security. And it is no more trouble to get good security than it is to get bad if you are guided by common sense and experience."—American Magazine.

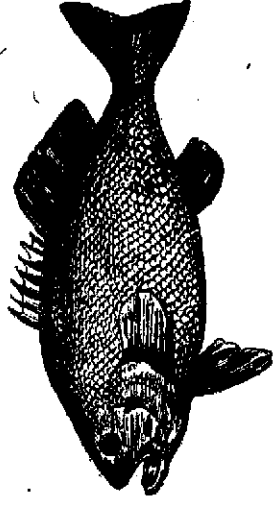

Fat Crystals

If small quantities of butter, lard and beef fat be separately boiled and slowly cooked for, say, twenty-four hours, the resulting crystals will show very marked differences under the microscope. The normal butter crystal is large and globular. It polarizes brilliantly and shows a well marked St. Andrew's cross. That of lard shows a stellar form, while that of beef fat has a foliated appearance. In course of time, as the butter loses its freshness, the globular crystal degenerates and gradually merges into peculiar rosette like forms.

"And what is your favorite motto?" asked the reporter who was interviewing the candidate for congress. "Put yourself in his place," replied the candidate.

A Forgetful Poet.
Arthur Colledge related that the poet Coleridge once journeyed from Highbury to Ilkworth to visit a nephew, Sir William H. Colledge. It was very cold weather, and the poet had on a double breasted waistcoat which met just below his neck. It was discovered that he had got no shirt. His nephew remonstrated with him, to which the poet replied, "I'm very sorry, William, very sorry, but I've forgotten my shirt." Upon this Sir William kindly lent him his uncle's shirt, and said the speaker, "I regret to say that very necessary garment was never returned to its original owner."—London Saturday Review.

Tiger Means Swift.
The Tiger appears in the book of Genesis at Hiddalek, one of the four "heads" into which the river of Eden was parted. The name by which we know it does not exactly mean "tiger," but both "tiger" and "Tigris" mean in Persian swift as an arrow. "Euphrates" is a Greek version of the Persian infinitive, which signifies "the good abounding," and represents the old Asiatic belief or belief akin to our verb "pour."—London Standard.

FORREST LAKE

Candidate for Congress, Fourth District

In offering himself as a candidate in the Democratic Primary of June 6th to represent the Fourth District after March 4th, 1917, Forrest Lake of Sanford has given the people of the Fourth District an opportunity to elect a big, broad-minded man to look after their interests. His platform is best and most expedient for his people.

He has ever been an advocate of a square-deal for labor. His work in the Florida Legislature shows that he has never lost an opportunity to advance the interests of the working man. He was one of the main advocates of, and fighters for, the creation in this State of a Child Labor Inspector, and the work of the official at the head of that office has proven conclusively his benefit to the State.

The exceeding friendly manner in which the people generally and especially the laboring man have welcomed his advent in this race is much pleasing to Mr. Lake; and from the many utterances that all will be heard from labor and from all classes and all organizations, it is confidently expected that all will rally to his standard and unite in giving him a most hearty support in return for what he has done for the State.

Forrest Lake is no unknown man. His three terms' experience in the Legislature has given him a wide acquaintance throughout Florida; and that acquaintance has in countless instances resulted into the warmest of friendships.

He is a man who has been a success in his every undertaking; and his prominence in business in the State today shows not only his sound business ability, but the high regard in which he is generally held by the business world.

He is making this race on his own merits alone. "Friendable for all, engaging alliance with none" is his motto. Not merely a motto to be hung on a wall, but a rule of conduct that has been strictly adhered to through his campaign. Those who know him realize that his campaign has been a vigorous one, for he is a fighter; but nothing in this campaign has been a common mud-slinging which is sometimes injected into politics during a heated race.

From Key West to Jacksonville have come sincere and strong assurance of support; and he is without a doubt the leading candidate for this office in the race today.

TROUBLES OF A DOUBLE

By CARL SALOMON.

Blair had just pulled on his overcoat and was on the point of leaving the safe, when a heavy hand fell on his shoulder and a hearty voice shouted in his ear. "Hello, Jenkins! Going to meet with the boys tonight?"

He turned and faced a jovial looking man whom he did not remember having ever seen before. "Who do you think I am?" he snapped. "My name is Blair."

The other looked surprised, then sheepish. "Gee, me," he apologized. "I thought you were a friend of mine. You're just his build. But, come to look closer, your hair is darker than his."

Haughtily Blair stalked out, having gathered an unfavorable impression of his double from the unpolished manner of his professed friend. Further, at rather galled him not to be able to choose his own double, for Blair prided himself on the irreproachable character of his friends, as well as on his own impeccability.

He soon forgot the matter, however, and was thoroughly surprised a few days later, when he was again accosted by a stranger. He was hanging by the strap of a crowded elevated train.

"I should hope so. Yet come to think of it, there is a certain likeness in your bearing. Besides, he wears a coat that you do."

"You give mine to the janitor tonight," declared Blair, as a load was removed from his mind.

Origin of the Argentine Flag.
Mr. Fraser, in telling of the origin of the Argentine flag says: "The patriotic spirit of the Argentine is tepid alongside the hot-blooded nationality of Argentina. It is daily incited in the schools; the blue-and-white striped flag is honored on every occasion. When the Argentines were in revolution against Spain in 1810 and needed a banner to flaunt against the red and orange of the enemy, they got pieces of blue and white cloth (intended for garments) from an English warship lying at Montevideo, and made a flag of it. So the Argentine flag, like much of Argentine prosperity, is due to Great Britain." Mr. Fraser holds that, in proportion to the population, there are as many millionaires in Argentina as in the United States.

POSTMASTER LINCOLN.

What Happened When He Was Called Upon to Square Accounts.

On May 7, 1853, says F. F. Browne in "The Everyday Life of Abraham Lincoln," Lincoln was appointed postmaster at New Salem, Ill., by President Jackson. The duties of the position were light, for there was only one mail a week and the remuneration was correspondingly small.

The office was too insignificant to be considered politically, and it was given to the young man because every one liked him and because he was the only man willing to take it who could make out the returns. He was exceedingly pleased with the appointment because it gave him a chance to read every newspaper that was taken in the vicinity. He had never been able to get half the newspapers he wanted, and the office gave him the prospect of a constant feast. Not wishing to be tied to the office, since it yielded him no revenue that would reward him for the confinement, he made a postoffice of his hat. Whenever he went out he put the letters in his hat. When a person who expected a letter met the postmaster he found also the postoffice, and the public official, taking off his hat, looked over and delivered the mail wherever the public might find him. He kept the office until it was discontinued or was removed to Petersburg.

A small balance due the government remained in Lincoln's hands at the discontinuance of the office. Time passed on and he had removed to Springfield and was practicing law, having this place of business in Dr. Henry's office. Meanwhile his struggle with poverty was unabated, and he had often been obliged to borrow money from his friends to purchase the barest necessities. It was at that juncture that a government agent called to make a settlement of the old postoffice accounts. The interview took place in the presence of Dr. Henry, who thus described it to Mr. Browne.

"I did not believe he had the money on hand to meet the draft, and I was about to call him aside and offer to lend him the money when he asked the agent to be seated. He went over to his trunk at his boarding house and returned with an old blue sock, in which a quantity of silver and copper coins was tied up. Untying the sock, he poured the contents upon the table and proceeded to count the coins.

"The government agent found that the pile contained the exact amount of the draft to a cent and in the identical coins that Mr. Lincoln had received. He never under any circumstances used trust funds."

Starfish.

The starfish contains nearly 5 per cent of nitrogen and a small quantity of phosphoric acid.

SUMMER GARDEN VARIES DIET.

Why not plant a good summer garden? Many people think it impracticable to raise summer vegetables in Florida. W. L. Floyd, professor of horticulture in the University of Florida, suggests gardens to furnish a variable diet during the hot summer months. A large number of vegetables grow well during summer and everybody should have at least some of them

Professor Floyd says that field corn planted at intervals of several weeks will give roasting ears during most of the summer. The corn with white kernels is preferred by most people. Okra is a true hot weather plant and with proper care will bear all summer. The aphid or plant louse is troublesome but can be controlled by the use of tobacco extract.

The eggplant is another hot season plant and is very easy to raise. Peppers are about as easy to raise as eggplant and are cared for in about the same manner.

There are several types of beans that are adapted to the summer garden, such as pole, lima, both bush and climbing, and the old fashioned butter beans, known as the sieva bean, that came from South Carolina.

Almost every garden contains sweet potatoes but they are usually late maturing ones. If early slips are used a much earlier crop can be had. By sending to some grower who makes a business of raising slips for early markets one can have potatoes in June. The triumph and jersey are two of the early types of sweet potatoes.

During the hot months a mess of greens sometimes tastes good and a planting of collards will satisfy this hunger.

HOW CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS STAND ON FEDERAL OWNERSHIP OF THE CANAL

the matter thoroughly and until the matter had been thoroughly investigated by the engineers and officials of the government. Then after a careful study of the report my vote would be cast in favor of the route, which I believe would be of the most benefit to my District, and which I believe would be the most practical one for the government to adopt.

Bryan's Clerk Writes.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 6, 1916.
Mr. H. I. Hamilton,
New Smyrna, Fla.,

My dear sir:
In the absence of Senator Bryan, I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of May 3rd.

Senator Bryan has not been in Jacksonville, for several days, but I expect to see him during next week and will call your letter to his attention.

Regarding the matter of taking over the Florida East Coast Canal, I beg to call your attention to a paragraph in his campaign literature which is as follows:

"I favor the government taking over and maintaining an inland waterway from Jacksonville to the lower East Coast of Florida."

However, I am sure he will be glad to give you a plain statement regarding the position he will take on the matter in which you are interested.

Sincerely yours,
J. L. KELLY, Clerk.

The mayor of DeLand, by order of the council, has issued a proclamation for a special municipal election to be held May 30, to decide whether the city shall contract a loan of $35,000 for the purpose of widening and paving the city streets.

St. Augustine, Fla., May 1, 1916.
Honorable Forrest Lake,
Sanford, Fla.,

My dear Mr. Lake:

I have yours of the 29th also copy of letter of 29th to Mr. Hamilton. I note in your letter to Mr. Hamilton, in the first paragraph where you say, "I beg to state briefly and emphatically my position," and I read your letter through and the only thing that I find stating your position is where you say, "I shall be glad to use my best efforts to see that the commission's recommendations are carried out," that is all I see in this letter that states your position and it really strikes me, Mr. Lake, that you have not defined your position sufficient for us to get right square behind the position.

You will recollect that I asked you in the presence of Mr. Hamilton, if you would give our Canal association a letter stating your position to the effect that you would stand for the purchase, maintenance, etc., of the F. E. C. Canal from Pablo Creek to Biscayne Bay, and you stated that you would.

The canal proposition as you know as it has been discussed via the head of the St. Johns River, is a very indefinite proposition for us to get behind, unless we know your stand in the matter.

I really and truly have not asked Mr. Fogarty or Mr. Sears to commit themselves in any way on this subject, although I am quite confident that Mr. Fogarty would be glad to support it, if we were desirous of having him do so but being exceedingly friendly to you, I wanted to see you carrol all the votes possible, but unless you were to come out flat-footed and state your position relative to the purchase, maintenance, etc., of the canal from Pablo Creek to Biscayne Bay, I do not believe that I could get those men in the southern end to turn about much for you; on the other hand, I think if you will give me that letter as you agreed to do, that we can put quite a few votes and it will be my pleasure and desire to do this. Even though you do not give us this letter in question, I expect to support you, but I feel as though I could have our secretary address the influential men and make it very beneficial to you when the vote is counted. Of course, I may be mistaken in this, but an attempt on my part could do no harm. I do not feel as though you have defined your position only as you have stated and it sounds rather indefinite.

Wishing you well, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

A. W. CORBETT.

Hamilton Demands Stand.

New Smyrna, May 3, 1916.
Hon. Forrest Lake,
Sanford, Fla.,

Dear sir:

Your letter of April, 29th received, and carefully read and I must say that it is well worded. It is not at all in accord with the way you talked to Mr. A. W. Corbett and myself in St. Augustine, nor the way you talked to several of the boys in my office here in New Smyrna. They know what you said and have read your letter and believe me you have got to put yourself in plainer language than your last letter before you can get their votes.

You know Mr. Lake that this association is comprised of all the counties of the East Coast of Florida and takes in every county in the Fourth District except Seminole, Orange and Osceola. We have many friends who are not members and we are in position to assist very materially the man whom we wish to represent us, but that man must not hide behind the English language when he tries to tell what he will do for us.

Now then come out in the open. The majority of your District is on the East Coast and not on the St. Johns River. We are not fighting any other man's project but we want relief on the East Coast and by way of a system that will afford the greatest relief. It is not enough for you to say that you will support a favorable report of the Engineers. Will you use your every effort to make that report of the Engineers favorable? Will you use your influence in the House with other members of Congress for their support of Federal ownership of the East Coast Canal? In other words, if elected to a chair in the Federal Congress will you use your every influence in every way that you can and at all times for the Federal ownership of the Florida East Coast canal?

Your reply to these questions will

Statement from Secretary.

New Smyrna, May 3, 1916.
Hon. Forrest Lake,
Sanford, Florida,

Dear Sir:

Your statement in my office a few days ago that the people of the interior of the state believe me to be a large stock holder in the Florida Coast Canal and Transportation company sent here for the purpose of unloading the Canal on the Federal Government at a big price and then kissing goodbye to Florida is founded on absolute falsehood and misrepresentation.

I came to Florida four years and a half ago to make it my home. I had been in Florida three winters before that time. I had never heard of the Florida Coast Line Canal and Transportation company until I came here. I do not know a single stockholder in the company. I never owned a single share of their stock and I don't want to. The work I am doing as secretary of the Florida East Coast Canal association is for the good of the whole state of Florida and the decided benefit of the East Coast. As an individual this means nothing to me. I own my own home, which happens to be on broad river, but I haven't a single acre of land to be benefited by the improvement of this waterway. I have no financial interests to be enhanced thereby, I am not making a dollar out of the association while working for them. I have been many times called a d---n fool because I have spent my own money and given my time for the good of the state and the good of the people and get just such thanks for my efforts as you handed me the other night from the people of Sanford and other places in the interior.

If this letter is of any use to you among your people you are at liberty to use it.

Yours very truly,

H. I. HAMILTON, Secretary.

Notes Missing Paragraph.

Sanford, Fla., May 4th, 1916.
Hon. H. I. Hamilton,
New Smyrna, Fla.,

My dear Mr. Hamilton:

I was surprised this morning in looking over copy of letter that had been sent you, I find that one of the most important paragraphs in my letter had been left out by my stenographer in Sanford. Am therefore sending you another which will state more clearly my position.

Very truly yours,
FORREST LAKE.

Repeats Previous Reply.

Sanford, Fla., May 4th, 1916.
Hon. H. I. Hamilton,
New Smyrna, Fla.,

My dear Mr. Hamilton:

In replying to your letter of recent date, relative to the development, etc., of the Florida East Coast Canal, I beg to state, briefly and emphatically, my position:

This matter, as you are aware, has first to be passed upon by the United States Engineers, who report to the Secretary of War, and his recommendation is laid before Congress for its action, and the records of recent years show that Congress acts pretty much in line with the recommendation of that Department in the matter of harbors, waterways, etc. Therefore you will of course realize that until such a recommendation is made, there is little that a Congressman can do. Already, (I am informed) a Commission has been appointed to report on the advisability of the Government's taking over the East Coast Canal, and should its report be in favor thereof, I shall be glad to use my best efforts to see that the Commission's recommendations are carried out. To all who know the actual condition of the East Coast Canal; that, as it stands, it is of no use or value to the people of that section, it must be evident that such a measure as would ensure its proper development is a step that will benefit not only the East Coast, not only the Fourth District, but the whole state of Florida. I shall therefore advocate to the full extent of my ability the Government ownership of the East Coast Canal from Pablo Creek to Biscayne Bay.

Trusting that I have made my position clear, and thanking you for calling my attention further to the matter, which, by the way, you will recall, I have already stated definitely in my platform, as evidenced by the enclosed copy, I am,

Sincerely yours,

FORREST LAKE.

A TRAGIC RETREAT

When the Afghans Lured the British into the Jaws of Death.

Of 16,000 Persons Who Left the City Under Pledge of Safety Only One Man, Except a Few Prisoners Taken, Escaped Massacre.

In this wondrous day of wire and wireless we learn, half across the world, the events of the day almost instantaneously, and the very elements carry abroad the news. It is more than romance; it is miracle, but a miracle that may banish forever from the pages of the future historian and romancer one of the most dramatic figures of the past—the messenger bringing first news from the battlefield.

Long even before Phidippiades, of Marathon ran to Athens from the immortal battlefield, cried "Victory!" and fell dead the messenger held a place in myth and chronicle that he has maintained for centuries. Sometimes he is merely the swiftest rider or runner, sometimes a hero of the fight, chosen as an honor to bear glad tidings; sometimes a hard pressed refugee, sometimes even a lone survivor.

Lady Elizabeth Thompson Butler, the distinguished woman painter of wartime scenes, of which "The Roll Call" is most famous, once illustrated in a less known painting one of the most tragic episodes in the history of modern England—the arrival of Dr. William Brydon at Jalalabad, Jan. 13, 1842. Her terrible little picture shows the young Scotch surgeon, dazed, desperate, exhausted, clinging half-conscious to his wearied horse as the walls of the city loom in sight.

He had come from Kabul, through the mountains, in midwinter, one of a retreating army of British and native troops, accompanied by swarms of attendants and camp followers. With them at first were also nine Englishwomen, wives of officers, including Florentia, Lady Sale, wife of Sir Robert Sale, the commander at Jalalabad, and his daughter. There were also fourteen children. A long, intricate and hideous series of blunders, treacheries and murders had brought the tremendously outnumbered British in Kabul to the point where evacuation of the city and acceptance of a promised safe conduct to Jalalabad seemed to their leaders the best that could be hoped for, and the retreat began.

But the Afghans did not keep their word, and soon there were no leaders. Before the march was half over many were slain and conditions were so hopeless that the others yielded to a proposal to surrender the commanding general himself, General Elphinstone, together with the women and children, into the care of the Afghan chief, Akbar Khan, as hostages, but not until the Kurd Kabul was passed.

The gorge of the Kurd Kabul is a five mile ravine between high mountains, so narrow, lofty and grim that in winter the sun scarcely reaches its depths. That January it was deep in snow, the rocks were glazed with ice, and upon every mountain slope, in every crevasse, behind every boulder, lurked the fanatic Afghan tribesmen, with their long guns and long knives. Weary, crowded, half crippled by frost, the confused and formless masses struggling through the gloomy canyon soon lost all semblance of an army, as the slaughter soon lost all semblance of battle. It became simply the massacre of a rabble, and the snow grew red.

"Three thousand men," says the historian Sir J. W. Kaye, "fell under the fire of the enemy or dropped down paralyzed and exhausted to be slaughtered by Afghan knives. And amid these fearful scenes of carnage, through a shower of matchlock bullets, rode English ladies on horseback or in camel panniers, sometimes vainly endeavoring to keep their children beneath their eyes and then losing them in the confusion and bewilderment of the desolating march."

After the general became a captive with the women the rout and slaughter increased in horror. The Jagdalluk pass succeeded the Kurd Kabul; a dark, steep, winding track ascending high among frowning crags, and barricaded at its narrowest point. It was a trap. The fugitives were caught beyond escape. A mere handful emerged alive.

Within sixteen miles of Jalalabad only six of these remained. Before those sixteen miles were covered five of the six had been killed by straggling marauders.

Dr. Brydon alone, one man out of 16,000, reached the goal and bore the awful news.

Later, when England awoke and avenged, the women and children and a few prisoners were rescued. Dr. Brydon himself lived to share and survive the famous siege of Lucknow, another terrible episode in his country's

POISON KILLS BLISTER BEETLES

Blister beetles, sometimes called Spanish flies, old fashioned potato bugs and yankee bugs, feed on a number of plants. They are most destructive in cultivated plants, such as potatoes and tomatoes. They may be controlled by spraying with lead arsenate. J. R. Watson, entomologist to the University of Florida experiment station, recommends 1½ pounds of lead arsenate powder or 3 pounds of the paste to 50 gallons of water. Zinc arsenite may be used instead of the lead arsenate. Paris green, 1 pound to 50 gallons of water and 1 pound of quick lime, may be used on plants that are not easily burned.

It is necessary to spray thoroughly because these beetles will avoid the poison unless the plant is covered. Since the larvae feed on the eggs of grasshoppers, it may not be desirable to spray them. On limited areas they may be driven out of the patch with a brush or whip made of twigs. They may be hand picked or collected in a pan containing water overlaid with kerosene.

A company of movie actors have just completed at Stuart the scenes for Westward Ho! This is Henry W. Savage's latest production, and he claims Stuart to be an ideal place for making the scenes.

History, but one as honorable and inspiring as the retreat from Kabul was humiliating and disastrous. Youth's Companion.

Concentrated Sun Rays.

Archimedes once arranged a number of mirrors so as to bring the rays of the sun to a point called a focus, which means a hearth. The heat thus gathered together from the sunshine is said to have been sufficient to set fire to the Roman ships, which were besieging the harbor of Syracuse.

NEW FLORIDA INDUSTRY MAKING FAST PROGRESS.

The growth of the Florida Soft Phosphate & Lime Company's business has really been phenomenal, and the success of this home industry has been commented upon in flattering manner by the Florida press. The company's mines are at Phoslime, Fla., and its general offices are located in Ocala. The company now occupies new and larger offices and as a business enterprise is constantly developing. J. D. Rooney, the enterprising salesmanager, is well known in southern business and development circles and his connection with the Florida Soft Phosphate & Lime Company is of interest to many friends and acquaintances in Florida and adjoining states. His publicity and selling campaign in behalf of Phoslime has been notably successful.

Phoslime can be used to advantage in the growing of the following plants: Corn, cotton, citrus trees, spinach, lettuce, beets, okra, salsify, celery, onions, parsnips, cauliflower, cucumber, eggplant, cantaloupe, asparagus, cabbage, rhubarb, peas, pumpkins.

BARBECUE POLITICAL RALLY TO BE HELD HERE THURSDAY

ALL CANDIDATES ARE INVITED TO ATTEND

ALL DAY CELEBRATION TO BE HELD ON OLD FORT GROUNDS AND FREE DINNER WILL BE SERVED.

Arrangements are now being made for a gathering of political candidates at a big barbecue and fish fry dinner to be held here next Thursday, June 1, and this occasion will furnish an opportunity for the voters of New Smyrna and the southeast section of the county to see, meet and hear practically all of the candidates for county offices, as well as many of the congressional and state candidates.

Up to this time replies and promises have been received to indicate that at least 40 aspirants for political nominations in the state and county primary to be held June 6th will be here that day to address the voters and mingle with the people of New Smyrna and vicinity where the political situations can be thoroughly discussed by candidates and voters.

The picnic, barbecue and all day political celebration will be held on the old fort grounds and a general invitation is extended to everybody, men, women and children, to attend the celebration and enjoy the good time. The big free dinner will be served at noon and there will be plenty for everybody.

A platform will be erected on the grounds, from which the speakers will address the voters, and an effort is being made to have the DeLand band here to furnish music for the occasion. The speaking will begin in the forenoon and be continued after dinner. Late in the afternoon a baseball game will furnish further entertainment.

MRS. SARAH SAWYER DIES REMAINS ARE SENT NORTH.

Mrs. Sarah R. Sawyer died Tuesday night at the sanatorium at Hawks Park. She had been taken to the hospital that morning from her home in this city in the hope that an operation might relieve the dropsical condition from which she had suffered for a number of years.

Mrs. Sawyer was a woman 82 years of age, but although an invalid had the appearance of a much younger woman. She was bright and keen of intellect, and very interesting to those who knew her best.

She came here about two years ago in company with her brother M. T. C. Perkins, who cared for her a great deal of the time. Several months ago she purchased a place at the corner of Magnolia and Douglass streets, and recently remodeled it, making a comfortable and convenient home. Although never in good health she was usually able to be about a part of the time, but recently had suffered more than usual. Death came just as she was being prepared for the operating table.

She was born in Danville, Vt., but lived in Indianapolis before coming here. The body was prepared for shipment and was sent to Indianapolis yesterday to be buried beside her husband. Her brother accompanied the remains.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Judge Bert Fish, candidate for state senator, will address the voters and citizens of Volusia county at the places named below on the following dates:

Lake Helen, Monday, May 29, 7:30 p. m.
Pierson, Tuesday, May 30, 7:30 p. m.
Oak Hill, Wednesday, May 31, 7:30 p. m.
New Smyrna, Thursday, June 1, Barbecue.
Daytona, Friday, June 2, 8 p. m.
Port Orange, Saturday, June 3, 7:30 p. m.
DeLand, Monday, June 5, 8 p. m.
I earnestly urge all candidates to be present and speak at these meetings, and I particularly request James E. Alexander to be present and speak at all of these meetings.
Ladies are cordially invited.
During the week, if opportunity permits, I will address the voters at any other places where public meetings may be held.
BERT FISH,
Candidate for State Senator from Volusia county.

OVER 200,000 VISITED FLORIDA LAST SEASON

EDITOR OF MANUFACTURERS' RECORD ESTIMATES THAT THEY LEFT AVERAGE OF $5 EACH PER DAY.

Over 200,000 people from the north visited Florida resorts last winter and each person left at least $5 a day while here, according to estimates made by Richard H. Edmonds, editor, in the Manufacturers' Record. Mr. Edmonds further estimating that the tourists, on the average spent 30 days in the south. Says the Record:

"It is impossible to get any definite facts as to the amount of money expended in the state by these 200,000 tourists. A careful canvass and a study of the situation in all parts of Florida make it very conservative to estimate that the average length of the tourist's stay in the state was 30 days. A large proportion of the people who went to Florida last winter spent the entire season there. The number runs far into the thousands. A large number spent a month or more, while a considerable number stayed only a week or ten days. But the movement of travel into the state during the winter season, and the heavy rush of outward travel in the spring shows that it will be very conservative to estimate 30 days as a minimum for the average time spent by each tourist in the state."

"It is not possible to get exact figures on this point, so it is not possible to do more than speculatively estimate as to the amount of money expended by the average tourist. There are thousands of people who at the elaborate, costly hotels, run their daily expenditures into big figures. There are some who spend very moderate amounts at boarding houses and the smaller hotels and between these two extremes there are tens of thousands who at the average Florida hotel pay $5.00 a day or more for hotel accommodations. To hotel and boarding house expenses should be added the expenses for motoring, yachting, fishing, the purchase of souvenirs, and the thousand and one things which absorb the tourist's money. It is safe to estimate that the average expenditure for a tourist for the winter was $5.00 a day. Some estimate the amount considerable above $5.00 a day and some a little lower, but $5.00 is at least a conservatively low figure. On this basis, the average cost to the winter visitor while in Florida was $150 for the 30 days and for 200,000 visitors this would mean $30,000,000 expended in Florida last winter by tourists. These figures, except as to the arrivals by transportation lines furnished to the Manufacturers' Record, are estimates. Others can speculate as to the average length of the tourist's stay and as to the average amount expended and make their calculations as to whether $30,000,000 is too much or too little. We believe, based on a rather wide study of the subject, that it is a low figure. Its magnitude, however, is far beyond any estimate that we have ever seen as to what the tourist travel means to the state of Florida."

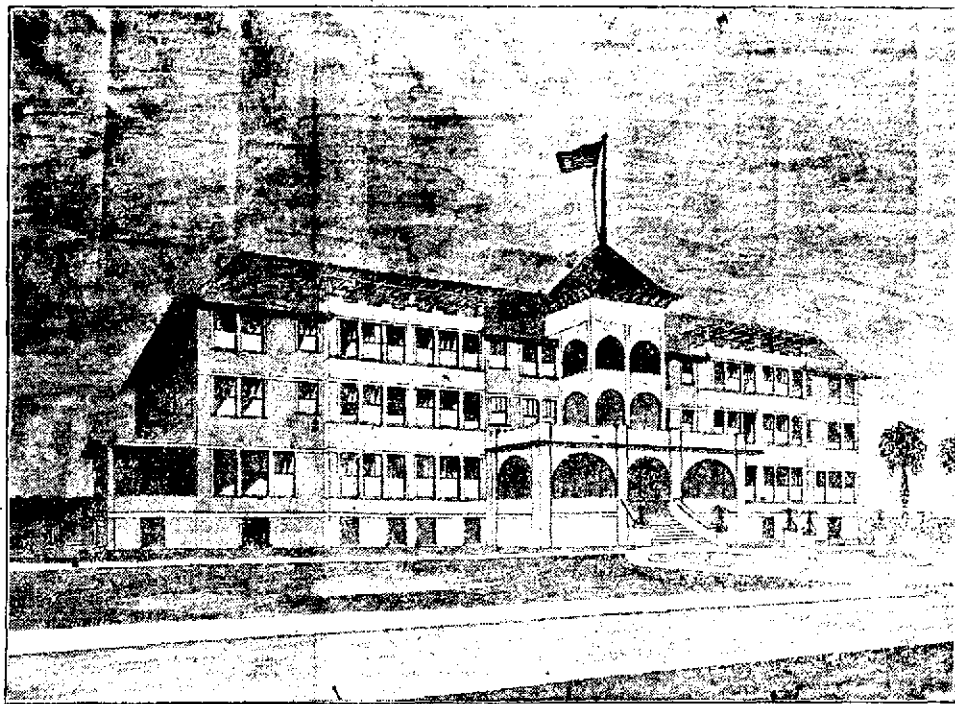

"Many people have looked upon the tourist trade as merely a passing event of no particular importance to the commercial or industrial life of the south, whereas it is a most vital factor in the development of the south."

"It was the tourist traffic that made California."

"Henry M. Flagler was a tourist who, spending the winter in St. Augustine to escape the rigors of New York's climate, became enamored of the climate and in the 25 years following that tourist trip, he expended more than $75,000,000 of his own money in the development of Florida."

"Mrs. Potter Palmer was a tourist to the west coast of Florida. She became enamored of the country and she and the Potter Palmer Estate and members of her family now own nearly 200,000 acres of Florida lands which they are developing for colonization purposes, for city building and resort creating activities. One of the Deering plow manufacturers was a tourist to Miami, and becom-

RIO VISTA HOTEL, NOW IN CONSTRUCTION, AS IT WILL APPEAR WHEN COMPLETED

Construction work on the new hotel now being built by the Rio Vista Hotel company, is progressing rapidly, and the above picture shows how the new hotel will look when completed.

The brick walls of the new building are now practically completed and the contract for the carpenter work will be let in the next few days. Estimates on this work are now being obtained by the directors.

As the hotel building takes on more definite shape more interest and confidence in the success of the hotel company is being manifested and more stock is being taken by business men who believe the new hotel will be a decided boost to this city and community. There is every prospect that the plans of the company to have the building completed, furnished and ready for guests by the first of next January will be successfully carried through.

The new hotel is located on the river front between what would be 11th and 13th streets, if the streets were numbered south from Canal street. The hotel lot has a frontage of 300 feet on the river, this lot extending through to Magnolia street. In addition to this the hotel grounds will include all of the block west of Magnolia street. The building is three stories high, with a substantial basement, with a frontage of 128 feet on the river and two wings, 96 feet in length, extending westward toward Magnolia street. The grounds in front of the building will be made attractive and beautiful, with a gradual slope from the building to the seawall, where a substantial pavilion and dock will be established. Between the hotel building and Magnolia street will be a circular automobile drive, giving an entrance from Magnolia street, and these grounds will also be made attractive and beautiful.

On the grounds west of Magnolia street will be located the tennis courts, croquet grounds, and all other recreation grounds. The plans of the company also call for a golf course to cover 50 acres of ground to be constructed along the railroad track immediately west of the hotel.

CARRIGAN HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

BLAZE STARTS FROM GASOLINE STOVE IN BASEMENT AND BUILDING IS BURNED TO THE GROUND SATURDAY.

Fire evidently originating from a gasoline stove in the basement, entirely destroyed the home of James Carrigan at Coronado last Saturday, just after the noon hour. A few of the furnishings were removed from the house, but the building was entirely consumed.

When first discovered by a neighbor the blaze could have been extinguished if sufficient help could have been gotten together, but the inability to spread the alarm and fight flames at the same time gave the fire a good chance to get a start.

Telephone calls for help from this city called a number of men across the river, but by the time they arrived there was nothing that could be done but watch the flames eat their way through the building.

This is the third serious fire that has visited Coronado during the last few weeks. The first one was when a strong wind carried the blaze from a scrub fire across the peninsula to the beach and burned up eight cottages. The second one was the destruction of the Atlantic hotel.

The Daytona-New Smyrna road is now partly closed to traffic while the new bond district road is being constructed.

ing enthused over that section he is spending $1,000,000 in the building there of a winter home and the beautifying of its grounds. Carl G. Fisher, one of the leading manufacturers of Indiana, was a tourist to Miami. He too, fell in love with the attractions and promptly undertook the reclamation and development of nearly 1,000 acres of overgrown lands, with plans looking to the building of a city, into which he has poured a vast amount of capital."

MUCH CITRUS FRUIT HANDLED THIS YEAR

REPORT OF TREASURER SHOWS LOCAL PACKING HOUSE IS IMPORTANT BUSINESS FACTOR IN THIS CITY.

That the Smyrna-Hawks Park Citrus Growers' association, a branch of the Florida Citrus Exchange, is an important business factor of New Smyrna is clearly shown by the following report of Treasurer E. A. Latham recently compiled for the season 1915-16:

Total number of boxes of fruit shipped through the Smyrna and Hawks Park Citrus Growers' association the past season under the "Goldenrod" brand:

	Net f. o. b.
Oranges	20,248 1/2 $40,664.04
Grapefruit	5,600 11,202.80
King oranges
and Kumquats	234 676.76
Tangerines	522 1,314.07
	26,604 1/2 $53,857.68

In addition to the above the association packed and shipped under private brands 11,079 boxes, making a grand total of 37,783 1/2 boxes.

The average price per box, netted by the growers, were for oranges, $2.00; for grapefruit, $2.00; for King oranges and kumquats, $3.00; for tangerines, $2.50.

The local exchange was established two years ago, and for two seasons fruit has been handled through the packing house here. The amount of fruit shipped this year is against a total of 31,000 boxes shipped the first year the packing house was in operation.

The sub exchange, which was also established two years ago, with headquarters at Titusville, was moved here last fall, and during the season a total of 41,352 boxes, which netted f. o. b. $81,836.07, were handled through this branch in addition to that accounted for in the local exchange.

The last season was a prosperous one for the fruit growers and the local association is justly proud of its second year's record.

R. S. BLANTON WEDS OMA CHAMBERLAIN

TWO WELL KNOWN AND POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE JOINED IN MARRIAGE AT ORLANDO THIS WEEK.

Wednesday at Orlando Miss Oma Chamberlain, of Bowling Green, O. was united in marriage to R. S. Blanton, for the last two years principal of the New Smyrna school.

Both these young people are well and favorably known here. Miss Chamberlain was a popular teacher here one year ago, and much to the regret of the patrons went to Orlando last year to fill a better position. She has visited here several times this year, and has a host of friends to wish her much happiness.

Mr. Blanton has successfully managed the school here the last two years, and it is regretted by his many friends that he is not to return for another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Blanton are spending a few days at Mr. Blanton's home, Knights, Fla., from where they will go to Mrs. Blanton's home in Bowling Green, O. They plan to spend the greater part of the summer in the north, returning to Live Oak in the fall, where they will reside.

Yesterday's Orlando Sentinel gives the following account of the ceremony:

"Miss Oma Chamberlain, of Orlando, and Robert S. Blanton, of Knights, Fla., were united in marriage last evening at the Baptist parsonage, Rev. Edw. T. Foulson, D. D., officiating. Immediate relatives only attended the ceremony. Mr. Blanton is principal of the schools at New Smyrna and the bride has been a teacher in the Orlando schools. This fall the happy couple will make their home at Live Oak where Mr. Blanton becomes principal of the high school. Mrs. Blanton formerly lived at Bowling Green, Ohio."

The foundation of the new high school building at Titusville was laid last week. There will be 14 class rooms, four laboratories for domestic science, three shops for manual training, an auditorium to seat 400 people and a gymnasium.

CLOSING EXERCISES ATTENDED BY MANY

THEATRE TASTEFULLY DECORATED AND SPLENDID PROGRAM MARKS CLOSING OF NEW SMYRNA PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The closing exercises of the public school were held Friday night at the Palace theatre, when a class of five girls and one boy was graduated from the twelfth grade.

The theatre was decorated in the class colors, pink and gray. The class motto "Out of School Life, Into Life's School," made in Spanish moss and pink oleanders extended across the front, and back of it the stage was arranged to represent the out of doors. Ferns and greens were banked tastefully about giving it a most comfortable appearance.

The class appeared on the stage from either side and were accompanied by Principal Blanton and the high school teachers, the retiring and newly elected secretary of the local board, the ministers, and the lecturer of the evening.

The program was composed of the salutatory and valedictory given by Floyd Murray and Fearn Hibbard, each of whom represented this fine class in a most creditable way, a piano solo by Mrs. E. L. Greer, and a vocal solo by Miss Irma Greer, each executed in the usual entertaining manner, and an address by Dr. H. W. Cox of the state university of Florida.

Rarely has it been New Smyrna's good fortune to listen to such a splendid address at the commencement season.

Dr. Cox's theme was dreams in youth and their fulfillment, and was embellished with many pretty word pictures to develop it. It contained much good food for thought, not only for the young but the old as well.

Mr. Blanton deserves much credit for securing Dr. Cox, as his services as a commencement lecturer are much in demand throughout the state.

The presentation of diplomas was made by G. L. Branning, and Rev. A. Bell and Rev. O. T. Eselman assisted in the opening and closing. The exercises were free of charge and the theatre was filled to capacity with patrons and friends of the school.

The young people receiving diplomas of graduation were: Fearn Hibbard, Floyd Murray, Lois Gause, Bytha Remington, Harriette Crane and Genevieve Mathews.

School Year Successful.
The commencement exercises last Friday night without doubt mark the closing of the most successful year in the history of the New Smyrna public school.

Although it had been expected that the new building would be ready for occupancy before the closing of the year, and this had been one of the inducements in bringing Principal Blanton back for another term, it was early seen that this would not be possible.

Nevertheless, Mr. Blanton and his corps of assistants labored untiringly for the interests of the school, and succeeded in raising the general standard in many ways.

One of the most commendable marks of improvement has been in the matter of regular and punctual attendance. Every grade has shown a decided improvement in the general average. This in itself is one of the best indications of advancement.

In the matter of general deportment of pupils, it is also said that there has been a general raising of the standard of good behavior.

The Parent-Teacher club has proven itself a substantial support for the faculty, and has aided materially in many ways. The payments on the piano purchased last year were assumed by this body, thus relieving the teachers of the responsibility of raising the money. Through the efforts of Mr. Blanton and the high school pupils quite a sum was spent for library books, and through the assistance of county superintendent Sheppard, the laboratory equipment was increased considerably.

The general condition is better in every way and it is to be hoped that next year's faculty will not be disappointed in having a chance to occupy the new building early in the school year. We have a school now that when properly housed, will rank with any of its size in the state.

Lawrence Pace was in the city Monday from Jacksonville.

WILLIAM BOWMAN CARRIES OFF PRIZE FOR ORATION AND JULIA
DILZER WINS FOR THE BEST ESSAY.

At the beginning of the school year last fall the local board of school trustees announced that to stimulate the work of the high school pupils in oratory and literary work two prizes of gold medals would be offered, one prize for the best oration delivered by a high school boy during the year, and the other medal for the best essay written by a girl student in the high school.

This matter was taken up by the Agathedon Literary society and the high school pupils have been working during the year with this aim in view. At the final meeting of the literary society was announced that William Bowman had been awarded the gold medal prize for the best oration, and Miss Julia Dilzer had been awarded the gold medal prize for the best essay.

The oration delivered by William Bowman, on the subject, "Shall We War with Germany?" was as follows:

Future citizens and probable soldiers of the United States:

One of the greatest problems confronting our government today is the question, "Shall we war with Germany?" The reasons in the minds of the majority of the people who want war are few, but the main reason seems to be the sinking of the Lusitania.

When the news of the sinking of this magnificent liner reached the United States a wave of indignation swept the country and the impulsive American people looked forward to an immediate declaration of war upon Germany. But let us look a little deeper into this affair, as our government did. It is true that a hundred American citizens perished in the sinking of this liner, but were they not fully warned before embarking upon the doomed vessel as to her probable fate? The steamship company fully warned these passengers both publicly and personally, of Germany's declaration to sink the Lusitania, but in spite of all warning these hundred adventurous, yet foolhardy Americans took the risk. The risk that was not only taking their own lives in their hands but by bringing

It is up to the people of New Smyrna and this vicinity to keep up the work of exterminating mosquitoes, following out the suggestions made by Dr. M. E. Heck assistant state health officer who recently made a survey of this city and the surrounding territory to locate the mosquito breeding places. With a little care and trouble the breeding places within the city limits can be entirely done away with and new ones destroyed as soon as they appear and New Smyrna will be much freer of these insect pests than it has ever been before. If each property owner and tenant will make it a point to go over his premises regularly to see that the work is kept up and suggest to his neighbor to do the same thing the good results will soon be noted. If city pride doesn't appeal to you in this matter personal comfort should.

Voters of the fifth community district who want to see New Smyrna (Coronado) Park and all other part of the district row and prosper along with the rest of Volusia county will be sure the man they elect as their representative on the board of county commissioners is a man who will use his every influence to hurry through the building of the roads provided for in the special bond issue voted last fall. The completion of these roads is a matter of importance to the people of this district and the voters of the district should make it their business to know how each candidate stands on this important matter before casting their ballots in the primary June 6th.

RUMORS OF CAR LINE

ORLANDO TO THE COAST

C. E. Denig of Narcoossee was a visitor in this city yesterday and brought the news that rumors are persistent that an electric car line is to be built from Orlando across Osceola county to the East Coast. Mr. Denig states that parties interested in the proposed line have been conferring with persons in St. Cloud with a view to passing through the Wonder City. Mr. Denig and other Narcoossee people are trying to get in touch with the promoters and want to route the car line through their section—Kissimmee Valley Gazette.

BLANTON TO BE PRINCIPAL OF SCHOOL AT LIVE OAK.

R. S. Blanton for the last two years principal of the New Smyrna public school left here Saturday for Live Oak to confer with the school board there in the matter of selecting teachers for the next year. Mr. Blanton has accepted the position of supervising principal of the Live Oak school. This is a promotion for Mr. Blanton being a considerable larger school and paying a better salary than the position here and is justly deserved by him. His many friends here are wishing him much success.

MARRIAGE CEREM'Y

NEITHER BRIDE OR GROOM
COULD SPEAK OR HEAR BUT JOINED IN WEDLOCK NEVER-THELESS.

How would you perform a marriage ceremony where both of the contracting parties are mutes? This was the problem that confronted Miss Sadie Hiserodt, clerk in the office of County Judge J. Lee McCrory last Friday, when Eugene Hogle, of Omaha, Nebraska, and Miss Lily Golden Holland, of Daytona Beach secured a marriage license and requested Miss Hiserodt by virtue of her office as notary public to perform the ceremony.

Not to be thwarted Miss Hiserodt wrote out the form of the ceremony on a typewriter and gave each of the contracting parties a copy of the ceremonial form. She then went through the ceremony the same as if the bride and groom could hear her and pointed to the passages as she read. When the question was asked of the flax-haired bride "Do you take this man to be your lawful wedded husband?" she smilingly assented with a bow. Both the mutes are well educated and all the communications between Miss Hiserodt and the bride and groom were made with pad and pencil.

The bride was not asked to "honor and obey," it being the practice of the county judge's office to omit these words from the marriage ceremony.

ORMOND

ORMOND MAY 27. Miss Margaret Shaw is spending the week at Winter Park and while there will attend the commencement exercises at Rollins College. Benjamin Shaw, who is a recent arrival in town, is spending his time here on his vacation.

Dr. John M. Richmond, Mrs. J. C. and the Rev. W. J. H. and Mrs. D. W. Davidson and Dr. and Mrs. C. A. of Ormond City will guests at a dinner given at the Hotel Ormond on Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Daub and daughter Dorothy leave for the north on Wednesday evening to spend the summer in Ohio and possibly Duluth, Minn. then return home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Platt entered delightfully at their home on Palmetto street on Wednesday evening of last week. After an elaborate luncheon was served the guests enjoyed whilst the remainder of the evening.

A very handsome bride set was awarded Mr. Mildred McCrory winner of the ladies prize. John A. Reilly, carrying off the gentlemen's favor, a package of fine cigars. Those present were Mrs. F. L. Watson, Mrs. Mildred McCrory, Miss Emma Weatherbee, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Reilly and Miss Lucy Reilly.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair accompanied their mother to her home in Clarinda, Iowa leaving on Wednesday of this week.

Mrs. Casper Baker with her daughter Miss Marion and son Edwin left on Saturday morning for their home at Sewickley, Pa. Edwin graduated last week from the Daytona High school, and Ormond may well feel proud of the young man's record and standing in his class. He took a prominent and most creditable part in the commencement week program.

Mrs. J. D. Price entertained the Ladies Air society at Hammock Home on Wednesday and as always when entertained at this beautiful home spent a very delightful afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Webb who have been spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. George N. Rigby on Pine street left in their auto for Jacksonville on Saturday morning taking the boat from there to Baltimore and again taking their car and driving to Warren Ohio stopping at Sewickley, Pa. for a short visit with Mrs. Baker and family.

Those interested in the case of little Lewis Stanton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Stanton who had been at the children's hospital Jacksonville for some weeks will be glad to know that the heavier part of the plaster cast has been removed from his limb the surgeons now feeling very much encouraged over the results of the operation. Miss Ella Foulke is still in Jacksonville where she can be in touch with the brave little lad every day.

Alfred G. Weatherbee left for his summer home at Westboro, Mass., on Wednesday, going by way of the Savannah Line. Miss Weatherbee and her sister, Mrs. L. C. Pinkerton with Lewis and Helen, expect to join Mr. Weatherbee later in the season.

Mrs. A. D. Sheppy and Mrs. Blackburn, of Washington, D. C. who have been spending several weeks at the Vining cottage on Palmetto street, left for the north on Saturday last. It is hoped that these delightful ladies will be in Ormond again next season.

The commencement exercises of the Ormond public schools were held in the auditorium of the Memorial building on Thursday evening of last week. After the invocation, which was given by Dr. John M. Richmond, a miscellaneous program was rendered. This included songs, piano solos, duets, recitations, tableaux, drills, etc. These were all excellent, the Sunflower, Shepherdess and Japanese drills all being especially well rendered and beautiful. A farce in one act, entitled "Jumbo Jim" then followed, young Jack Delaney, who took the negro character of "Jumbo Jim" being particularly funny, but all the parts were well taken. Mrs. Arthur Adams made the presentation of the class, after which Dr. Richmond, in the absence of the principal, awarded the diplomas to the eighth grade graduation class. The class consisted of Gladys Dressner, Pearl Adams, Myrtle Hull, Mario

Christian Science Church—

Christian Science services will be held each Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the Woman's club room on Magnolia street.

Sterlhaus, Nellie Jones and Robert Dressner. The work and painstaking training of the corps of teachers Mrs. Archer Adams, Miss Lillie Seabloom and Miss Johnnie Dimpier was most creditable in every way and was commended upon and commended most favorably by everyone at all interested in the education and advancement of the children of Ormond.

SEVERAL CASES HEARD

IN THE MAYOR'S COURT.
The following cases have been disposed of in the court of Mayor Newell during the last week.

Tom Watts, Ed Norman, Will Cook, Kid Riley, Ben Robinson, Tom Garner, Jim Holman and John Boyd, all charged with gambling were found guilty and fined $5 and costs.

Henry Simpson charged with selling liquor was fined $25 and costs.

In Justice Newell's court John Boyd appeared on a charge of selling liquor and was bound over to the criminal court to trial.

TITUSVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

WILL GIVE PLAY HERE.

For the benefit of the local Woman's club the talents of the Brevard county high school will present a play here tonight (Friday) at Guild hall. It is the Greek comedy Pygmalion and Galatea and includes a cast of nine characters. The young people come with the highest recommendations from their home town where it was presented a few weeks ago, and no doubt will furnish an evening of pleasure to all attending. The doors will be open at half past seven and performance to begin at eight o'clock.

THANKS

Dr. M. M. H. wishes to thank the members of the senior class of the New Smyrna high school for their very beautiful and acceptable gift, presented to him for assisting them in their class play. He wishes to state that it was a pleasure to be with the class and that he at all times found them bright and willing. He takes this means of thanking the members of the class and wishes them every success and a bright and prosperous future.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors who were so kind to us both in words and deeds during the sickness of our wife and daughter. We thank you for the beautiful flowers sent and assure you that your many good deeds will never be forgotten.

The Most Healthful Carriage for Baby

We believe you will not find anywhere a carriage better designed to protect baby's health than the Keywood-Wakefield Sleeper shown in this picture.

It has rubber-tired wheels and light, flexible springs which insure easy riding. The large, comfortable body gives baby plenty of room to sleep, and there is no bumping to jar his delicate nerves and make him fussy and fretful. The carriage is equipped with a reversing gear so that it can be pushed from either end.

In beauty of design and style, this Keywood-Wakefield will compare favorably with any other make of baby carriage. Come in to see it and the other new models we have just received.

Guild Party at Coronado—

Mrs. F. M. Allen royally entertained the Grace church guild, Wednesday at the Coronado Beach hotel for the entire day, and every lady present had a most enjoyable time.

Luncheon was served in the new dining room through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty, who had assisted Mrs. Allen in arranging and preparing the bountiful repast.

Several of the ladies went over in the afternoon and expected only "light refreshments" for their, but when called to the table at four o'clock, found it loaded with good things such as only Mrs. Allen knows how to prepare. The morning guests were also served again and all did ample justice to the feast, excepting Mrs. Canova. (?)

The unfortunate ones who remained at home unwillingly know well what they missed for it is always a treat when Mrs. Allen entertains the guild.

The new hotel is a gem, and just what New Smyrna needs at the beach, and the genial host and hostess are ever ready to make all their guests happy. Success to them and to the Coronado Beach hotel. The guild hereby returns thanks for the happy day spent there and hope to be invited again every year. * * *

Eighth Grade Exercises—

The closing exercises of the eighth grade were held at Guild hall last Friday afternoon, and a class of four boys and eight girls received certificates of graduation from the grammar school. The stage was prettily decorated in the class colors, green and white, and the whole program carried with it the dignity of a high school commencement.

Each member of the class had an original part on the program, which was well delivered. Musical numbers were furnished by Maud Roach, Ruby Yarbrough and Kathryn Lutz. Mrs. W. C. Chowling and Miss Ira Skipp also assisted with the music.

Miss Welch, the teacher, spoke individually of each member of the class, assuring the audience of their preparedness to enter high school.

Such exercises are an inspiration to those in the lower grades to continue on, and an incentive to the graduates to enter high school. A good sized audience was present. The members of the class were: Eva Mae Rogers, Ruby Yarbrough, Maud Roach, Alta Webster, Susie Burnett, Lonita Lamboly, Ruby Alfred Newberry, Edwin Sealf and Thorne, Carroll Howe, Carl Langford, Kathryn Lutz.

Junior League Holds Meeting—

After several weeks without a meeting, the Junior Civic League was called together Monday by their former chairman, Mrs. W. B. Eckler, and responded with a good attendance. Mrs. Van Dusen entertained with a talk on Cuba. The league is at present without a head and no arrangement has been completed for its continuance. It is very much regretted that Mrs. Eckler feels that she cannot continue the work since she was a general favorite with the members, and accomplished a great deal.

Ocean House Closes—

The Ocean House closed this week with no announcement as to its operation next season. W. J. Lewis and Jack Sams, who have operated it the last two seasons, have bought the hotel at Stuart and will take charge next fall. During the summer they will run a summer place at Oyster Bay, N. Y. The Ocean House will probably not remain closed as it affords a good opportunity for tourist and commercial trade.

Cooper to Leave City—

W. A. Cooper, who has been manager of the telephone exchange here for some time, has resigned his position and will leave the first of next month for California, where he has accepted a position and where he will make his future home. During their residence here Mr. and Mrs. Cooper have made many friends, all of whom regret to learn of their plans to leave New Smyrna.

W. C. T. U. Enjoy Outing—

The members of the local W. C. T. U. were the guests of their president, Mrs. John Silsby, at her home at Coronado yesterday. The day was spent in visiting and talking over the work of the organization. A picnic dinner was served. The affair was one of the pleasantest socially that this organization has enjoyed.

Dr. Fogarty in the City—

Dr. J. N. Fogarty, candidate for congress from this district was a visitor in the city for a few hours Wednesday, stopping over here on his way to Daytona, where he was scheduled to speak that night. Dr. Fogarty will be here again next Thursday to attend the big barbecue.

Bells Go to St. Petersburg—

Rev. A. Bell and family left Tuesday for St. Petersburg, where they will make their home in future. Rev. Mr. Bell's resignation as pastor of the local Congregational church took effect April first, and they have decided to return to St. Petersburg, where they own a home.

A NEW KIND OF A PLUMBER

In the construction of ordinances governing plumbing, the frequent use of Trade phrases and names that are necessarily used will naturally confuse anyone not familiar with sanitary plumbing.

We have both undergone an examination by the Master Plumbers association of the state of New York where we attained the High Standard of Excellence.

If there is any point that is not entirely clear to you, if you will call on us we will gladly without cost or obligation on your part explain it so as you will understand it, and also give you a practical demonstration of the point involved.

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1916.

We pay our deepest respects. All honor to these boys and girls who acquitted themselves so nobly. This is a most important event in the history of their lives. It is not only an honor to themselves, but reflects much credit to their parents as well as their teachers, and should be a stepping stone to higher and greater things, satisfied with no less ambition than attaining the highest degree of efficiency.

It means much to a person to be prepared for the position which they are to fill in this busy world. It means much to be in position to talk intelligently about the kind of articles you are selling. We sell only the best and therefore like to boast of the stock of goods we carry, because we know they are sure to please the most particular person. Our prices are right, therefore this feature is sure to please the most careful buyer. A call at our store will be appreciated, whether you make a purchase or not.

Where the Teachers Went—

With the annual closing of school there was the usual exodus of teachers, most of them going to their homes in other places.

R. S. Blanton went from here to Live Oak, where he will occupy the position of principal next year.

Miss Ellen Wallace, high school, went to her home in Gainesville. She was accompanied by Miss Harriet Welch, eighth grade, who will visit her for a time and then go on to her home in Greencastle, Ind.

Miss Rosalie Dorth went to her home in St. Petersburg. She was accompanied by her mother who had spent the winter here with her.

Mrs. Mattie King, seventh grade, is still here.

Mrs. C. W. Murray, sixth grade, is at her home in Hawks Park. She will later visit in New Jersey.

Miss Annie Patullo, fifth grade, has gone to her home near DeLand.

Miss Lenora Frier, third grade, will visit at Palatka and Gainesville for a few days and then go on to her home at Lee. Later she will attend the state university in Gainesville.

Miss Susie Darby, fourth grade, has gone to her home at Starke.

Miss Frances Dilzer, second grade, and Miss Alice Read, first grade, are at their homes here.

Miss Annie Bouchelle, first grade, has gone to her home in DeLand.

Pastor Voted a Vacation—

At an official board meeting of Trinity Methodist church Wednesday evening it was voted to give Pastor O. T. Uleman a vacation during the month of June. During that time however, the pulpit will be supplied each Sunday. Mr. Uleman will spend his vacation visiting relatives and friends in and near Cincinnati, Ohio. Mrs. Uleman and her mother and the children will remain here.

New Officers Named—

removal of Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Capo to St. Augustine by electing Gwendolyn Roach, secretary, Mrs. C. G. Herrick, treasurer and Lindsay Howe, librarian.

Picnic Party at Eldora—

A jolly party made the trip to Eldora, Tuesday, in the boat, Pyxis. The scarcity of men in the crowd allowed the ladies to have their own way, and it is said that the two male attendants were badly imposed upon, however, they have already signified their willingness to take another such trip. The party was made up of Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Capo, Mrs. E. L. Greer and daughters Irma, Eva and Rosebud, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Crane and daughters, Mary Louise and Harriette, Mrs. Maurice Ashton, Mrs. Arnold Pursley and Mrs. W. R. Healey.

The day was spent in fishing and frolicking, and dinner was served on the boat.

B. Y. P. U. Social Postponed—

The B. Y. P. U. social that was announced for this evening, Friday, to be held at the home of Miss Ruth Tucker at Coronado, has been postponed one week, when it will be held at the same place.

Mrs. E. A. Kelly and daughter, Mrs. Kate McKeown, who have, as usual, been spending the winter at the Ocean House, left Saturday on the return trip to their home in Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Woodward closed their winter home on the river front, Saturday and left for their home in Hendersonville, N. C.

Plans are being made for a big union Sunday school picnic to be held soon. The plans will be announced next week.

in the world but he consented, as he said, out of courtesy.

About a week later he had another invitation to spend the evening with this crowd of young men. This continued for some time. Each time the card game grew a little nearer gambling. One evening our young friend lost heavily and had spent all of his salary so could not pay back this money which he had lost. He had promised to pay the one to whom he had lost the next night. How was he to get the money? He did not know but it was simply strong in his mind that he must have it.

The next morning a wealthy gentleman came into the bank to deposit a large sum. Before the customer had gone he wondered why he could not borrow part of this money. No one would know the difference and he would return it in a couple of days at least. Oh, blind that he was to yield to this temptation. That evening he paid out this sum but lost even more before he stopped playing.

This time it did not puzzle him quite so much about where the money was to come from. Why not borrow the rest that he needed? His salary would come in a week or he might even win enough the very next night to pay it all back.

The next day he got the necessary sum from the bank and the next evening the same thing happened. However, this could not continue.

When he went to work the next morning he was told all about the case. He had been caught up with and was arrested. He was given five years in prison.

Just think of it! A young man's promising career ruined. Why? Because he was not true to himself. If he had heeded conscience and said no the very first time he was invited out with doubtful company he would perhaps have had a prosperous career and have been a well liked man.

It was not a great thing that he was called upon to decide at first. But it is not the great things that make the foundations always. It is an army of small things which make the wonderful things of the world.

A man must be able to rely on himself if he is ever to do anything worth while. We can not go through the world on another's back. We must think and act for ourselves. In our own thoughts lie our success. Then if we are afraid of them how can we ever accomplish anything? If we have failed once, do not make it worse by being a coward. Meet the defeat squarely and you will be strong enough to find the remedy.

Every one of us loves to have a great many friends. Emerson tells us that one of the two essential things for friendship is truth. He says we must not be afraid to think out loud to a friend. Then if we are to be true to them we must first of all be true to self.

If you have not been entirely truthful in your thoughts before, now is the time to begin this truth. Let every man be brave. Every one hates a coward. Of course we are brave in the way the word is usually taken but had you thought before that it was cowardly to fear conscience? Well, if you had not, it is. So do not do it again.

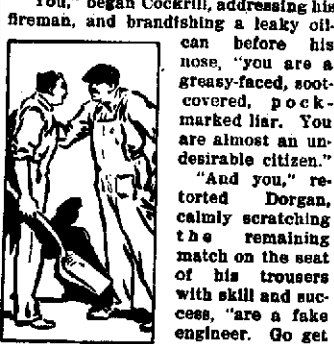

Let us all practice this truth in the little things which come up every day and we will find that we will be honest in every thing else, and then as honesty is the best policy our life will be a happy one. With these many friends life will be a success well worth the living, for if we are true to self, we cannot be false to anyone.

CIVIL WAR IN THE CAB

By FRANK CONDON.

truck. Throttle-pull on a Brooklyn perambulator. Hire out to the push-cart trust. Bah!

"You run this old cow-killer into the turntable pit one day. You forget you ever heard of injectors the next. You let her water fall two feet below the glass, and she drops a crown-sheet.

"And then you try to Adam it off on this poor Eve," pointing to the fifth button of his waistcoat. "I get called up on the carpet, and accused of negligence on duty. And me peacefully and innocently eating lunch when it happened."

"Yes, eating lunch," Cockrill went on, trying to be calm and judicial; "eating it on that very seat where you're sitting now. 'Twas your fault, and you know it; and if I didn't defend you, and plead for your job with tears in my eyes, you'd been fired, you good-for-nothing loafer. Then you go and blame it all on me!"

"Weren't you under the engine?" asked Dorgan, with frigid politeness. "Hadden't you just left the cab? Was I any where around when you left?"

"I was not," said Dorgan. "You were," retorted Cockrill; "and if you get me any madder than I am I'll drop this can and lick the everlasting blazes out of you."

"Yes, you'd drop the can," said Dorgan scornfully, "and pick up the shovel. You couldn't lick a stick of candy. You're wrong about my blaming it on you, anyhow."

"Our genial and lovable superintendent, John Flathead McKinney—worse luck to him—asked me distinctly who was to blame, me or you; and who did I say? Who did I say, you ungrateful, bum engineer?"

"You said me, of course," responded Cockrill. "You turned and betrayed me and lied about me, and I ought to have you fired. I think I will yet."

The rattle of mutilated English overcame even the sharp hissing of steam in the engine-cab. Fireman and engineer were having it out for the sixty-first time, and it was now four weeks since the locomotive had blown off an upper sheet.

The roundhouse door swung open on creaky hinges, and attention to duty prevented further war for the moment. Cockrill opened the throttle, and the big engine glided softly into her stall.

In the perpetual dusk of the roundhouse a fat, red-faced man picked his way among the tracks and over the pilots. It was Superintendent McKinney.

"Where's Cockrill?" he asked of a wiper. "He just came in, sir," answered that mental person. "His engine is on the last track."

McKinney strode forward, and Cockrill saw him coming.

"Shut up, now," he cautioned the suddenly mute Dorgan. "Here's the old snake himself, with more questions to ask."

The cinders crunched under McKinney's tread. "Are you up there, Cockrill?" he asked.

"I am," replied the engineer.

"So am I," put in Dorgan, his sarcasm totally lost on the florid superintendent, who climbed heavily into the cab.

"Now," began McKinney judicially, when he got his breath, "for the last time, I want to find out about that crown-sheet. That thing cost one hundred and eighty dollars to fix up, and I want to find out why it happened, and which of you let it happen?"

"Mr. McKinney," Dorgan broke in contritely, "there's no use obscuring the issue, as they say in law. I am to blame. I did it. Mr. Cockrill here had nothing to do with it any more than you. If there's any punishment, I deserve it, and I'm ready to take it."

Before he had finished the "I" in "it," Cockrill's voice filled the cab.

"Mr. McKinney, this young fellow is giving you the finest example of loyalty to a comrade you ever heard of. He is deliberately lying to save me."

"The truth of the matter is that Dorgan was eating lunch in the station when the sheet blew off. It was due solely to my own negligence, and I'm ready to suffer the consequences."

There was a brief pause. The silence was broken only by the cluck-cluck of the air-pump. McKinney turned right-about face, and laid his hand on the rail. A half grin wrinkled his face and deepened its ruddy bloom.

"You two are the cheerfulest liars I ever saw," he said. "Don't let it happen again." Thereupon he descended from the cab.

LEIDERSDORF LOCATES IN BUSINESS IN MILWAUKEE.

Friends of Max Leidersdorf have received cards announcing his engagement in the real estate business in Milwaukee with a partner of several years standing there. His many friends here wish him much success in his new business venture. Mr. and Mrs. Leidersdorf who resided here several years, left Daytona where they have spent the last few months, for the north a short time ago, intending to locate in Milwaukee if conditions were favorable. They expect to spend a part of their winters in Daytona.

Child's Birthday Party—

Little Margaret Lees Ranew celebrated her fifth birthday Wednesday, and in honor of it gave a party to her little friends in the afternoon. Many enjoyable games were played, and pictures of the group taken, after which refreshments were served. Those present were Katherine Robinson, Elizabeth and Virginia Chowning, Sherwood Spencer, Gertrude, Phyllis and Helen Nelson, W. C. Cole, Jr., and Carl McCullough.

Kroon Makes Change—

In a recent letter from Jesse Kroon, renewing his subscription to the News and calling for a change of address, he says: "As you note, I am not at La Isabella, but the change was for the better in every respect. We like Porto Rico and are happy and contented, especially since we have learned, if not to master the language enough of it to help us."

Mr. and Mrs. Kroon went to Porto Rico a little over a year ago, where Mr. Kroon took charge of a big orange grove. He has a similar position in their new location, and their many friends here are glad to hear of their continued success.

Reception for Essayists—

The W. C. T. U. gave an informal reception Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. A. Jernigan to the pupils of the New Smyrna high school that took part in their prize contest with a temperance essay. Those present were Misses Alma Disbennett, Julia Dilzer, Ruth Jones, Ruth Courtney, Claribel Godfrey and Lindsey Rowe. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. E. L. McAuley. Mrs. Silsby gave a few interesting selections of reading and a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon was spent by the winners.

This is the group of young people in which Miss Alma Disbennett won first prize and Miss Julia Dilzer second a few weeks ago.

ALLANDALE

ALLANDALE, May 22.—The Allandale Improvement association has been granted a charter by the circuit court, and is now in a position to start carrying out its plans for the betterment of Allandale. There are so few members here now but little can be accomplished until in the fall when the people return.

The library building has been progressing nicely. The frame is up and the roof is on and as soon as the doors and window frames arrive the cement blocks will be put up. The building will be very attractive and quite an addition to this place.

Mrs. M. O. Hicks, mother of A. C. Hicks, passed away last Friday night, and was laid to rest on Saturday, funeral services being conducted by Rev. H. S. Rightmire, pastor of the First Baptist church of Daytona. Mrs. Hicks was in her 88th year and had been in fairly good health up to the time of her recent illness being taken to her bed about a month ago.

Work on the new road is going on in a satisfactory manner and will be pushed now that the start has been made.

Allandale appears deserted, still there are about 10 families here yet.

at this time. "Miss Gussie" has many friends here who earnestly hope she may speedily recover her wonted health. Mr. Hunt, Kenneth and Mrs. I. J. Wells, Jr., expect to start for Long Island on Wednesday.

Mrs. Clara Zimmerman came from Jacksonville on Monday for a short stay.

Mrs. G. W. McDonald, who with Mr. McDonald, recently went to Logan, Utah, in a letter just received writes they had a pleasant trip, but that the weather is very cool. Fruit trees were in bloom and were being sprayed for insects, and the night before the letter was written, the spray froze solid on the trees and hung in icicles, and many people were afraid of a short crop.

The school house was crowded on Thursday night at the closing exercises of the Port Orange school, by an enthusiastic audience who appreciated the well rendered program, and vigorously applauded the various numbers. The members of the graduating class were Miss Hazel McDonald, who gave a fine recitation that was well received, and Harold Lamphear, Henry Morgan, and Albert Yelvington who received diplomas. Mrs. Adams, the principal, in well chosen words presented the class. J. B. Case in response dwelt on the earnest, well directed efforts of the pupils, and the efficient work of the teachers that resulted in the well merited diplomas being bestowed upon the faithful pupils.

Miss Bertha Wellman, who so ably conducted the primary division of the school during the past term, left on Saturday for her home. She has been engaged for next year. Miss White, who taught the intermediate department for the past year, also left on Saturday for her home, she having likewise been engaged for the next term of school. Mrs. Adams will leave for Tallahassee in a few days to attend the graduating exercises of the Women's college, where her daughter is to graduate.

The showers are coming very seasonably, and all vegetation is growing fast and coming out in fine green colors, and nature is rejoicing in the abundant rains that promised a cessation of the long drought.

Chaffin fishing is on. Several large ones having been caught recently.

Bruce Perkins is reported seriously ill, which his friends regret to hear.

Herbert Carrow has moved into Mrs. Milburn's cottage, opposite W. L. McDonald's on Dunlawton avenue. J. H. Bennett has moved his family to Wilbur for the present as he is working on the hotel at that place.

There was a dance with quite a large attendance at Van Hall on Thursday night of last week.

Two cars of asphalt have arrived for the new road. Cars of gravel, rock of various sizes, sand and other material have been coming in for several days.

Uses and Abuses of Fertilizers

By Prof. R. J. H. De Loach, Director of Georgia Experiment Station.

6. FERTILIZERS AND THE HOME GARDEN.

The Last of a Series of Six Articles.

A farmer that we used to know quite well always put on his garden plot a sack of guano and three or four loads of stable and other kinds of barnyard manure. His garden covered about one-fifth of an acre, and was good land to begin with. In fact, he had selected a good, rich spot of ground for his garden. The fertilizer he applied amounted to a thousand pounds per acre, and the barnyard manure to about seven or eight tons. Of course, he grew a good garden, as most people do, and yet he often wondered why his garden was so much better than other parts of his farm. He was a good farmer and made plenty of everything, and to spare. He knew that he made liberal applications of fertilizers and manures to his garden, but was never quite willing to acknowledge that these made all the difference in the yields.

Our gardens are usually the richest spots on the farm, and are so only because we make them so by fertilization and cultivation. Every acre in the average farm could be made just as rich if we tried to make it so. We do not consider sufficiently the factors which make fertile land. We do not strive to do intensive farming, but rather make it as extensive as our acres will allow. When we wish to make an additional bale of cotton, or bushel of corn, we take in more land instead of enriching what is already under cultivation.

Dr. L. H. Bailey has given in his book, "The Principles of Vegetable Gardening," some valuable suggestions on the use of commercial fertilizers. "The kind and amount of fertilizers," he says, "are to be determined by several circumstances: (1) The earliness or quickness with which the crop is to be obtained; (2) the intensity of the operations to which the man is committed; (3) the character of the land as regards tilth and texture; (4) the character of the land as regards richness in plant food; (5) the kind or species of crops to be raised." Whatever the condition of the land, or the nature of the crop, it must be fertilized if the gardener meets with success. Competition in the truck-growing business can be met in no other way than by liberally fertilizing the ground on which the crops grow. Dr. Bailey has wisely said that fertilizers must be applied in excess of the actual needs of the plants. It is impossible to distribute a very small quantity of fertilizers over a large area.

Vegetables are such rapid growing plants that one need not fear that much of the fertilizer will leach out through the soil on account of rain. If it is applied close to or in the drill row, all of it should be saved. The plants will absorb it before it gets away. The formula generally recommended consists of a complete fertilizer, though the acid phosphate and nitrogen should come from different sources, even in the same fertilizer applied at any given time. The mixture for gardens should be composed of as many kinds of ingredients as possible, carrying the three fundamental elements of plant food—potash, nitrogen and phosphoric acid.

Voorhees recommends heavy applications of such mixtures to the commercial gardens and to truck patches. He says 1,000 to 5,000 pounds per acre of such mixture should be applied to asparagus, and as much to beets and turnips; less than that to peas and beans. With any amount an after application has been found profitable. This is sometimes called the second application, which is not generally a complete fertilizer, but is composed of nitrogen, or one of the other elements alone. The second application of fertilizers may be composed of ammonia and acid, or other formula to suit the immediate crop.

Garden vegetables need large applications of fertilizer because any check in their growth produces inferiority in quality. It is said by Dr. Bailey that any delay in the growth of lettuce or radishes will generally cause a pungent flavor or sharp taste that is undesirable. It cuts down the market value. The way to remove any cause for this is to fertilize well and properly and then cultivate. The turnip is made very inferior when there is a check in growth. The vegetables that are thus stunted seem to revert to the original type from which they were derived, especially with regard to taste, and hence should be carefully looked after in regard to fertilization and cultivation. Fertilizers should be applied to the vegetable garden as early after the spring breaking as possible, as the soil ought to be saturated with rich plant food before the plants begin to grow very much. Then they will grow much more rapidly and make far better vegetables. The second application should be made about the time the young plants are half grown. This is as definite as a statement regarding this practice can be made. For all prize crops, a third and fourth application is made, and with telling effects. No one can deny that the vegetable garden is the one place in which large dividends can be made from the use of commercial fertilizers.

HOW CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS STAND ON FEDERAL OWNERSHIP OF EAST COAST CANAL

Secretary H. I. Hamilton of the Florida East Coast Canal Association Asks Each Candidate to Declare Himself so People of East Coast and Fourth District May Be Guided Intelligently in Casting Ballots.

Without question the most important proposition now before the people of the Florida East Coast is the question whether the United States government can be induced to take over and operate the East Coast canal. The matter has been agitated for some time without definite result and the people most interested in the matter realize that without some strong influence at Washington the chances for having the government purchase and hold the inland waterway along the East Coast is remote.

With the idea of determining just how the candidates for congress stand on this matter, H. I. Hamilton, secretary of the Florida East Coast Canal association, which has strongly endorsed the proposition of government ownership of the inland waterway along the all East Coast route, wrote each of these candidates asking for their stand on this important matter, the letter of the secretary to the candidates being as follows:

Dear Sir:

We want you to state plainly your stand on the question of Federal ownership of the Florida East Coast Canal. You know that this association is comprised of all the counties along the East Coast of the state from one end to the other, in fact every county in the Fourth District except Osceola, Orange and Seminole come within the workings of this association. It has many members and friends from one end of the state to the other and we need relief in our transportation facilities. We believe that in as much as the ALL EAST COAST route is 36 miles shorter than any other, is all sea level, doing away with the necessary lock or locks of any other route, and in all salt water, doing away with the possible obstruction from floating vegetation on fresh water routes, it is far more advantageous to the people living along the East Coast of the state and will be of far greater saving capacity to them than any other route could possibly be.

We therefore ask you, will you if elected to serve as a member of Congress use your every influence at all times both on the floor of the House and out, to secure favorable action on this project from the Engineers and Congress?

Your prompt reply to this letter will be appreciated.

Yours very truly,

H. I. HAMILTON, Secretary.

The replies from some of these candidates are given in the parallel columns herewith. Evidently the question of whether the people of the East Coast are to be seriously considered in their demands for an adequate inland waterway to give them the same competition in freight rates enjoyed by some other sections of the state, did not appeal to the candidates for United States senator, as the only reply received was a curt note from the clerk to Senator Bryan, saying the senator favors "the government taking over an inland waterway from Jacksonville to Key West."

Voters of the fourth congressional district, which is mostly the East Coast section, should read these replies carefully, and in reading them it will be noted that but one candidate announces strongly and definitely that he will use every effort to bring about a favorable report from the board of engineers and an appropriation from congress to turn over to the people of the state the free use of the East Coast canal.

Voters are urged to read these replies carefully in order to be fully informed as to what to expect from a representative in congress as regards the most important matter before the people of the East Coast at this time.

A government-owned inland waterway along the East Coast means lower freight rates and better business for all cities and towns and the Florida East Coast Canal association is using every means to bring about a favorable report from the board of army engineers.

Fogarty Favors Ownership.

Key West, Fla., May 4th, 1916.
Hon. H. I. Hamilton,
New Smyrna, Florida.

Dear Sir:

In response to yours of May 3rd, I am pleased to state that of all the candidates in this race for Congress, from the fourth congressional district, I was the first who publicly declared for the federal ownership of inland waterways. In making this declaration, I had in mind, more particularly than any other project or water route, the East Coast canal. I am unalterably opposed to private ownership of waterways, either in our district, state or nation. You can assure your membership that should I be honored by their vote to the seat in Congress, that they will then be able to boast of a friend at court. My every effort will be directed along such lines as will bring about a favorable report of the corps of engineers and a sufficient appropriation by the act of congress to turn over to all people of our state the free use of the East Coast canal. I do not understand how anyone, after understanding conditions of exorbitant freight rates exacted from the people of the East Coast, could consistently oppose any move toward a federal ownership of the waterway in question.

You can count on my undivided support in your behalf along these lines. Hoping that your association will see fit to give to me an undivided support in the coming election, realizing that a vote for me means a vote for yourselves, I am

Very truly yours,

J. N. FOGARTY.

Reply from W. J. Sears.

Kissimmee, Fla., May 15, 1916.
Mr. H. I. Hamilton,
New Smyrna, Fla.,
Dear Mr. Hamilton:

Yours received last Saturday, upon my return to the city, in reply thereto, will state that I wrote Mr. H. L. Rood, editor of the News, stating fully the stand I took on the matter mentioned in your letter. As your present Congressman and as your future Congressman, I may be wrong, but I take the position that I should not commit myself until this matter has been thoroughly gone into by the proper department and their report made. I will be in New Smyrna and speak on afternoon of May 26th, and will be glad to go into the matter fully with you. I have about one hundred letters to write today so that I can leave for the East Coast tomorrow.

With kind regards and best wishes, I am,

Very truly yours,

W. J. SEARS.

The part of the letter to Mr. Rood referred to by Congressman Sears above is as follows:

"I believe you know me well enough to know that I am not a grandstand player, nor do I advocate measures solely for the purpose of getting votes. I will, therefore, frankly state to you the position I have taken on the matter of the canal proposition, and this was done long before I dreamed of having opposition, and therefore, with no ulterior motive; and in fact same was stated to those interested in the Sanford-Jacksonville route. That position was as follows: While I would naturally prefer the route which would come nearer my home town, it was not a matter for me to consider from a personal view point, and that to do so in my judgment would make me unworthy to represent the District. This being the case, I would not commit myself until I had an opportunity to go into Lake's Numerous Replies.

Sanford, Florida, April 29, 1916.
Hon. H. I. Hamilton,
New Smyrna, Florida,
My dear Mr. Hamilton:

In replying to your letter of recent date, relative to the development, etc., of the Florida East Coast Canal, I beg to state briefly and emphatically, my position:

This matter, as you are aware, has first to be passed upon by the United States Engineers, who report to the Secretary of War, and his recommendation is laid before Congress for its action, and the records of recent years show that Congress acts pretty much in line with the recommendations of that Department in the matter of harbors, waterways, etc. Therefore, you will of course realize that until such a recommendation is made, there is little that a Congressman can do. Already, (I am informed), a Commission has been appointed to report on the advisability of the government's taking over the East Coast canal, and should its report be in favor thereof, I shall be glad to use my best efforts to see that the Commission's recommendations are carried out. To all who know the actual condition of the East Coast canal; that, as it stands, it is of no use or value to the people of that section, it must be evident that such a measure as would ensure its proper development is a step that will benefit not only the East Coast, but the whole state of Florida.

Trusting that I have made my position clear, and thanking you for calling my attention further to the matter, which, by the way, you will recall, I have already stated definitely

Health and Politics

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH BULLETIN

At the first thought you may say there is no connection between the two but it's there just the same especially in Florida.

In as much as most men and women are selfish—they won't sacrifice personal comfort and convenience for the general good—it becomes necessary to make laws (and to enforce them) by which the greatest good for the greatest number shall be secured.

Some housekeepers won't keep their premises clean, they insist on scattering garbage all over the back yard to invite flies and spread disease, and unless the law intervenes to protect the neighbors, they become a nuisance and a menace to the community.

Laws are of no particular use if they are not enforced. Once a law finds place on the statute books it is there for the protection of the people, and no public official charged with the administration of laws has the right to choose which shall and which shall not be enforced. A good many officials are like the slovenly housekeeper and there is no law to compel them to their duty excepting the power of the people who elected them to their office.

It is essential that such men can be placed in office as will legislate intelligently for the public good. They may be entirely honest but if they are ignorant and can't or won't absorb wisdom, they have no right to hold office. It is a duty that the voter owes himself and his neighbors to see that his legislator, his sheriff and county commissioner are honest, intelligent and progressive. And there is quite as much to be feared from ignorance as from crookedness.

It is the duty of every voter to inform himself as to the attitude of every candidate for office toward the health matters of Florida. Every candidate from aspirant for the governorship to those who want to be constables, should be asked to declare himself in public utterance on health matters. Each should state whether the administration of the state health department in his opinion, has been satisfactory, and whether or not he is willing and will, when called upon, support reasonable measures for the protection of public health in the state. There should be no trading for votes by candidates where the health of the state can possibly be made the basis of exchange or influence. If the people of Florida are dissatisfied with the conduct of the health department through its progressive and successful management of more than twenty-five years, let them express themselves to that effect in their votes. If the candidates, representing the people favor a change, let them be honest and fearless in saying so. Make them tell the voters what they believe can be enacted into law to improve present conditions in the health status of Florida.

Florida's state board of health has been instrumental in securing the enactment by various legislatures of a considerable number of laws, whose sole and unselfish object is to conserve public health. These laws have been the results of years of close study of the conditions that they aim to remedy. Some of these laws are practically dead because they have not been generally enforced. The state board, not being clothed with executive authority, is powerless to force the observation of these laws, powerless beyond the power that belongs to every citizen to bring notice and proof of violation to the attention of administrative officials. Oftentimes, and repeatedly, it has entered such complaints and it has asked those in power to enforce the laws which would bring relief from avoidable evils and its complaints have been ignored.

The board asks cooperation among the voters of Florida at the elections in June to secure the selection in every county in the state of men who appreciate the fact that health is the biggest asset that the public or the individual possesses or can possess who will conscientiously and actively and aggressively remember this fact after election as well as before and who will have the welfare, the healthfulness of their communities as a burden on their souls as long as they hold public office.

IT WAS A TOUGH STEAK.

But the Restaurant Man Easily Fixed It When the Kick Came

It happened in a downtown restaurant. A well-dressed—as he always must be to make a good story—young man ordered a steak. The waitress, rather pretty—which qualification she must possess in writing a story of this kind—handed the order, and the young man started in to devour the feast which had been set before him.

The young man had no sooner started in on the steak than he discovered that he had a kick coming, and as the restaurant proprietor passed he stopped him by saying "I can't eat this steak, entirely too tough. I wish you would see that I get better meats when I come in here."

"Too bad! That steak looks all right. But let me get you another." And the restaurant proprietor took the steak, the silverware which had been served with it and departed. He soon returned with a steak which looked exactly like the first one. The young man picked up his knife and started at his second order. "I'm!" he said as his knife cut it apart without the least effort. The customer was pleased beyond words, and that he enjoyed the steak was evident, for he left only the plate.

As the reporter passed out he met the proprietor again and this is what was said.

"That steak was all right, but the girl made a mistake in not giving him a sharper knife. All I did was to put the same steak on another plate and bring him a sharp knife. You have no idea what a difference a sharp knife makes with a steak from a beef of questionable age."—Columbus Dispatch.

THE FLORIDA CITRUS EXCHANGE A POTENT FACTOR IN INDUSTRY

Nine out of ten of the citrus growers of Florida, whether affiliated with the Florida Citrus exchange or not, will state that they regard this organization as the most potent factor for the general good of the industry that has ever existed in Florida. A similar attitude toward the exchange is held by bankers, merchants and business men generally, even though they may have no direct association with the body. Newcomers to Florida often are puzzled by the freedom and apparent sincerity with which favorable expressions regarding the work of the exchange are made on every hand, when these are considered in connection with the comparatively small volume of fruit marketed by the organized growers.

Persons who have lived in Florida for a sufficiently long time to be personally familiar with the development of the citrus industry in the past twenty years, recall that, following the freeze in 1895, the production of oranges in Florida for some years was not on a sufficiently large scale to make the marketing of the fruit present any problems. Grapefruit was practically unknown and the orange crop was the only one in the citrus field that offered anything to be sold at the north. The supply did not at all meet the demand, and growers had no particular trouble in disposing of all they had for sale. Before the freeze, the orange production of Florida had reached such a volume as to make the marketing a matter of considerable concern, and just a year or two previous, an organization had been formed to handle the matter.

In less than ten years after the time of the freeze Florida orange production had "come back." In fact, it had reached a volume greater than that had been attained in the old days. With no system whatever in the marketing, the question of securing returns that would make the crop profitable became serious. The growers could sell their fruit "on the tree" to speculators who advanced a few cents per box early in the season. These speculators sometimes were able to dispose of the fruit later at a great profit, sometimes they were not so fortunate. Sometimes the growers got more than the amount advanced; more often nothing else. If the grower did not choose to dispose of the crop in this way, he could consign it to a commission house in some northern city, depending upon the honesty of the latter for the returns.

In many cases, there were no returns. A few growers producing superior stuff, went north and established marketing connections which enabled them to get in a fair average of instances, enough out of their fruit for their groves to be profitable. As the production increased, the number of crops sold at prices which gave the growers adequate returns for their investments and labor, decreased proportionately. Finally, grove owners were contributing to the prosperity of the manufacturers of materials, which they used in the production of citrus fruits and to that of the transportation companies, which carried the fruit to the market, as well as enriching commission men and speculators, but returning very little to themselves.

Following this awakening, there was discussion all over the state as to the best means for the protection of the growers. A committee, composed of a score or more of the most intelligent men in the industry, made a trip of investigation to California. In that state, the same problems had been confronted and in large measure, solved, through the California Fruit Growers' exchange. Upon their return from the Pacific coast, the Florida investigators determined to follow out the same general plan of operation. The Florida Citrus exchange was formed as a result of this determination, its basic law differing only in some minor details from that of the California organization.

The growers generally came into the exchange, expecting it to prove the salvation of the industry without other activity on their part than turning over to it their fruit to be sold. At that time, the average of the grade and pack of Florida citrus fruit was very much below that of California and far behind the standards of today. The exchange found itself confronted with the problem of selling fruit not properly prepared for market through a sales force that was lacking in equipment and training, and under the heaviest of grower expectations on the part of the growers which it was out-of the question to realize upon. The results were disappointing. Many growers withdrew from the organization, and it entered a period of severe struggle.

It was necessary first to educate the growers in the matter of properly preparing their crops for market. To retain even a small percentage of those in the organization, required that it should get considerably better prices for their products than could be obtained through outside marketing agencies. That this was done, year after year is a remarkable tribute to the justice of the idea on which the exchange is founded, as well as to the business ability of the men who have directed its destinies. Controlling in the past two or three years not much to exceed 20 per cent of the fruit grown in Florida, the exchange has been marvelously successful in putting the industry upon a substantial basis. Unquestionably it is responsible in a large degree for the constantly increasing demand for Florida oranges and grapefruit, as it is for the growing tendency to the maintenance of equitable prices. Growers not directly affiliated with the organization, participate in these benefits almost as fully as those who are members and the human nature, which manifests itself in the disposition to take advantage of them so long as possible without contributing to the defrayal of their cost is the principal reason why no larger proportion of Florida citrus producers have joined the exchange.

The headquarters of the Florida Citrus exchange is in Tampa. It is the largest single business in the state of Florida, having an annual turnover at this time of approximately $5,000,000. The business is conducted on careful lines under the supervision of the board of directors, composed of one member from each important citrus county. Twelve of these directors meet monthly or oftener. Capable employees under bond, careful audit of the books monthly by the directors and audits by outside experts, protect the growers absolutely in the handling of the funds. Each grower receives an account sales for his fruit which, in definite detail shows him just what it was sold for, just what has been the cost of selling, just what the central office has retained for the cost of its operation and just how much he nets. The exchange is different from most every other marketing agency in that instead of making a flat charge to cover administrative expenses only and not including other items of outlay connected with selling of fruit, its retain covers all these expenses, averaged for the season. While apparently its marketing charge is higher than that of some of the private agencies, careful investigation has shown that in reality it is lower.

Has Well Arranged Sales Department. The detail work of handling the business of the organization is not the most important or most interesting of its functions, however. The sales department also registers cost of buying and disposition of the product of the members, is a vast and complicated organization in itself. Among the duties of the sales department is the development of demand for Florida oranges and grapefruit. Naturally, this requires educational effort with the consumer. For some years, the exchange has conducted an advertising campaign with the end in view of building up a greater consumer demand for citrus fruits, grown in Florida. This demand is the foundation of all its other work, as obviously the wholesale dealers will not care to stock, nor the retail dealers to buy fruit about which the consumer is uninformed and indifferent. The advertising of the exchange is doing along several lines, each having been carefully tested out before any considerable amount of money was put into it. Great care is exercised to see that as consumer demand is developed, there is such distribution as may be depended upon to take care of its supply. Magazines are used in a limited way, daily newspapers more extensively. Window display material, cut-outs, signs, recipe books, etc., are liberally employed. Unfortunately for the exchange, but fortunately for the state at large, the good results of the advertising and sales effort cannot be confined absolutely to the products of the members of the exchange. In telling of the superior merits of Florida oranges and grapefruit, it is not wholly practicable to convey the idea that quality fruit can be had only when exchange brands are bought, even if this were strictly true. It has been a difficult matter to educate the average consumer to the exact meaning of the Florida Citrus exchange or to keep in mind the name as a means of identifying the fruit which it ships. In the past season, the use of a trade mark phrase, "Seedswest," short and easily remembered as a synonym of the name of Florida Citrus exchange, has gone a long way to a solution of this difficulty. Many people, who could not remember Florida Citrus exchange, or who did not understand just wherein the organization differed from other marketing agencies for Florida fruit, now make all their purchases of "Seedswest" oranges and grapefruit and the disposition in this direction apparently is increasing rapidly. The idea of buying fruit grown by a co-operative body of producers conveyed in the advertising, more and more each year has been found to have a great deal of appeal to consumers. Still, the grower outside the exchange remains the beneficiary of its promotion work to a considerable extent. His marketing agency can undersell the exchange, in sections where the latter's work has built up a demand for Florida fruit to the extent of a few cents a box and still, if complete returns are made to the grower, he will figure that he comes out as well or better than if he had shipped through the exchange and borne his proportionate part of the cost of developing demand.

In the marketing methods of the exchange, as little as possible is left to chance. Every day the salaried and bonded representatives of the organization in all important citrus markets, telegraph a synopsis of the situation in that territory. These wires cover the conditions actual and prospective of the market, detail the amount of fruit on sale and in transit for that point etc. On the information gathered in this way the sales manager bases his offerings for the next day. If in any city the demand promises to be in excess of the supply fruit is diverted from other points. Market centers to which there appears to be going an excessive supply are relieved by those diversions. If the dealers of any town are indisposed to pay prices that are considered fair and which are in line with those prevailing elsewhere, fruit may be withdrawn after it has been offered for sale and still further diverted if it is impracticable to hold it for better market conditions. Much the same methods now are in use by the independent agencies, though none of these has as complete or aggressive organization as that of the exchange, and all of them are largely depending upon its pioneer work to build the demand for Florida fruit which they fill in part.

What of the future? Will a certain proportion of the growers continue to bear the burden? May these growers not grow weary in well-doing and conclude that they will no longer make possible the prosperity of their neighbors? Undoubtedly there is a tendency in this direction, and many exchange growers are impatient with the present situation. The moment that they consider in detail just how this can be modified for their benefit and protection they come up squarely against a stone wall. However, if they should abandon in any considerable degree the educational work that they are now doing, or the organization for marketing efficiency which they have built conditions unquestionably would revert to the former low level. Growers now outside the exchange as well as those in the organization and the state at large, would suffer alike. The industry would go on the rocks, and there would be no profit in the growing of oranges and grapefruit until a new organization of like purpose and performance grew up. Most of the exchange growers figure that in taking any such step as this they would be cutting off their noses to spite their faces, hence the prevailing policy of going ahead and trying to persuade the co-beneficiaries of the movement to become directly affiliated with it and assist in bearing the expense of its maintenance. Some recent events are considered by prominent exchange men as indicating that there is reason to believe that the patriotic appeal of the organization will not much longer fail to be heeded by at least one half of the growers of Florida.

What the Florida Citrus exchange really means to the state hardly can be estimated in dollars and cents. A faint indication is found in a comparison of the prices secured by the organization for the fruit of its members with those obtained by the privately owned marketing agencies, in such of the markets of the country as have a system which gives official figures on all citrus transactions. While the claims of the friends of the exchange, based on these comparisons are, of course, disputed by the partisans of the other marketing agencies, the preponderance of evidence apparently is very strongly in favor of the former. If the average gross returns of the growers in the exchange are but 25 cents a box more than the corresponding average of the unorganized growers, it is clear that the exchange is a profitable investment for the former since the per box assessment for educational and selling work is very much less than that sum. The broader view of the matter is that which takes into consideration the better prices secured by all growers, regardless of whether or not they are affiliated with the exchange by reason of its existence. A keen business man of this city who has varied and successful experience recently made the statement that, comparing the condition in the citrus industry today with those which prevailed previous to the organization of the exchange, he was firmly of the belief that as a result of the efforts of the organization, the growers of Florida this year were receiving not less than $4,000,000 more for their orange and grapefruit crops than they would have received if the old order had been in existence.

Candidate for County Judge

To the Democratic voters of Volusia County

I am again a candidate for County Judge and if you believe I have discharged the duties of that office faithfully honestly and impartially, I again ask for your support in the primary of June 6th. I was first elected as your County Judge in the year 1900 and am now serving my fourth term. I first entered public life as Mayor of the little city of Oglethorpe, Macon county Georgia. I was the first County Solicitor of Macon county, Georgia, and served as such County Solicitor under Hon W H Fish now the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia. I was a member of the Board of Public Instruction of Volusia county Florida from 1897 to 1900, inclusive.

I have served six years as one of the local trustees of the DeLand schools. I am a member of the Methodist Episcopal church South and have served as steward and Sunday school superintendent for more than 30 years.

I was never accused of crime but once in my past life and that was on the 4th of April 1873, when I stole the daughter of a Methodist minister and the old Justice who passed sentence upon me committed me to hard labor for the term of my natural life which sentence I have been performing to the best of my ability for more than 43 years.

During the last 42 years I have led somewhat of an active business and professional life, and I have never charged a widow or a minister of the gospel one cent for any professional work I have ever done for them. I have charged the estates of deceased husbands of widows a legal fee only for administration papers upon such estates, but in many, very many instances where the estates were small I have not charged them a penny. In many other instances I have cut the legal fees to one-half. Again I have on numerous occasions at my own expense traveled to various sections of this county to transact business pertaining to the duties of my office where my actual expenses were not more than covered by the fees received for such services. I am a poor man and worth little more than when I took the office of County Judge. No man can make more than a living out of this office.

I am over 66 years of age and I have tried to live an honest and upright life. I have been your County Judge for several years during which time of course, the duties of the office of County Judge have not permitted me to build up a law practice or to lay aside anything for the "rainy day." The people of Volusia county have been kind to me in the past and I appreciate it from the bottom of my heart.

I am not entitled to your votes because of these things but I know I have tried to discharge the duties of my office honestly fairly and impartially. I have tried to live a manly and upright life and if you feel that I have done these things and that I am capable still of making you a fair and honest Judge, I ask for your support and influence for another term.

Yours sincerely

J LEE McCRORY.

FLORIDA CITRUS EXCHANGE

The Florida Citrus Exchange is composed of the citrus fruit growers of Florida who believe that they have the capacity and the ability to market their own product so that it will yield them adequate returns for their investments and labor.

Other growers who are of like mind are invited to join the Exchange, in the management of which each one of them will have equal voice with every other member. The Exchange is absolutely a co-operative organization. It is operated solely for the profit and benefit of its members.

SIMMONS OF DELAND FOR MEMBER STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

What the Volusia County
Record says about him:

This week J. P. Simmons announces as a candidate for member of the state executive committee from Volusia county. In his announcement he assures us he will uphold only such actions of the committee as will strengthen the Democratic party. We believe him. We believe him for he has, in this community where he is well-known, a reputation for honesty, industry and sobriety. We have known Mr. Simmons for some time. We have heard of him in the church, in business, in school and can say of him that he is a young man who looks life in the face, not seeing men as trees walking, but with that love and charity which sees goodness in all mankind. He believes that if you wish to succeed in any enterprise excel in what you undertake. There is a right way and a wrong way in doing everything and we believe Mr. Simmons possesses that tact which makes each act and word tell for good. He was born a Democrat, and that is to his credit to start with. He moved to Volusia county when 18 years old. He attended Stetson University and graduated from the college of law in 1914 and has been in the legal practice since that date, besides being actively associated with other business in the county for five years. Mr. Simmons is a progressive young man and accepts truth wherever he finds it and rejects nothing because of its source.—Volusia County Record.

VOTE FOR

FINANCIAL SENSE.

Take Care of What You Earn and Then Invest It Wisely.

The greatest financial genius I ever knew and the richest man I ever knew personally once said to me:

"There is no greater financial genius possible than taking care of what you earn, and there is no better or surer way of taking care of your surplus than to invest it in sound securities paying 5 or 6 per cent. And such securities are easy to find any day of any year. So any man may be a financial genius if he will exercise the simplest common sense."

I protested that it would be said of such a man that he was narrow and selfish.

"Nonsense," the financial genius replied. "I have money invested in railroads, in packing houses and in manufacturing enterprises. Could money be invested more usefully? Yet it is as safe as government bonds and pays a better rate of interest. I invest my own money, but a man without financial experience may secure safe investments without difficulty. If a man has a bank account his banker will find safe investments for him. Bankers are men of financial experience, and 99 per cent of them are intelligent and honorable. There is no excuse for a busy man losing his savings. Many women, when they come into possession of money, lose it because they invest it in schemes bankers would not trust, or else the women loan their money to men who could not borrow money at a bank. Everything in life is simple and easy if we would only accept experience and be careful of big and sentimental notions. Financial sense is knowing that certain men will promise to do certain things and fail. Therefore when you invest your savings get security. And it is no more trouble to get good security than it is to get bad if you are guided by common sense and experience."—American Magazine.

Fat Crystals.

If small quantities of butter, lard and beef fat be separately boiled and slowly cooled for, say, twenty-four hours, the resulting crystals will show very marked differences under the microscope. The normal butter crystal is large and globular. It polarizes brilliantly and shows a well marked St.
Andrew's cross. That of lard shows a stellate form, while that of beef fat has a foliated appearance. In course of time, as the butter loses its freshness, the globular crystal degenerates and gradually merges into peculiar rosettelike forms.

A Forgetful Poet.

Arthur Coleridge related that the poet Coleridge once journeyed from Highgate to Holford to visit a nephew, Sir William H. Coleridge. It was very cold weather, and the poet had on a double breasted waistcoat which met just below his neck. It was discovered that he had got no shirt. His nephew remonstrated with him, to which the poet replied, "I'm very sorry, William, very sorry, but I've forgotten my shirt." Upon this Sir William kindly lent him a shirt, and said the speaker, "I regret to say that very necessary garment was never returned to its original owner."—London Saturday Review.

Tigris Means Swift.

The Tigris appears in the book of Genesis at Hiddkel, one of the four "heads" into which the river of Eden was parted. The name by which we know it does not exactly mean "tiger."
For the correct way of putting it is that both "tiger" and "Tigris" mean in Persian swift as an arrow. "Euphrates" is a Greek version of the Persian hufrut, which signifies "the good abounding" and represents the old Assyrian hufrut, akin to our verb
"pour."—London Standard.

TROUBLES OF A DOUBLE

By CARL SALOMON.

Blair had just pulled on his overcoat and was on the point of leaving the cave, when a heavy hand fell on his shoulder and a hearty voice shouted in his ear, "Hello, Jenkins! Going to meet with the boys tonight?"

He turned and faced a jovial looking man whom he did not remember having ever seen before. "Who do you think I am?" he snapped. "My name is Blair."

The other looked surprised, then sheepish. "Scuse me," he apologized.
"I thought you were a friend of mine.
You're just his build. But, come to look closer, your hair is darker than his."

Haughtily Blair stalked out, having gathered an unfavorable impression of his double from the unpolished manner of his professed friend. Further, it rather galled him not to be able to choose his own double, for Blair prided himself on the irreproachable character of his friends, as well as on his own impeccability.

He soon forgot the matter, however, and was thoroughly surprised a few days later, when he was again accosted by a stranger. He was hanging by the strap of a crowded elevated train, when some one at his elbow murmured, "Say, Henry, could you lend me a ten-spot? I'm broke."

Now, Henry is Blair's first name. He looked about sharply, but when he saw the man who had spoken he paid no further heed. But the voice persisted.
"You ain't goin' to turn down an ol' friend are you?" There was reproach, nay, grief, in the tones.

Blair looked down and into the pleading face of a shabby little old man who was evidently a down-at-the-heel, musty old sport.

"What do you mean," he exploded,
"by asking me to lend you money? I never saw you before?"

The sporty person opened his red rimmed eyes wide with surprise. "Say, lones, I thought you was Jenkins," he explained. "You're the dead image of him. Only—I guess, his face is kinder redder'n yours."

Blair's opinion of Jenkins immediately grew much darker, and to the same extent he felt himself insulted.
From the several encounters and from the various greetings he had received he surmised that Jenkins and his friends were not of the elite, as Blair liked to think that he and his were.

One day at noon he entered one of the parlors of a downtown hotel, where he had agreed to meet Mrs. Blair. Before he even caught sight of his wife in the opposite corner of the room a too fashionably attired young woman arose from a davenport near the door and addressed him.

"Now, Henry, you might've come sooner. I've been waiting."

Blair looked unconcerningly at her.
His discomfort lasted but a moment, however, for she interrupted herself with an exclamation of distress. "Oh, beg pardon. I thought you was Mr. Jenkins, a gentleman friend of mine. Stoop-id of me, for his eyes are brown."

There was a flash of annoyance in Blair's gray eyes as he crossed over to his wife. "I seem to have a double," he told her, "though his hair, eyes and face do not quite match mine. Besides, unlike me, he's not punctual. I'm going to wait here and find out wherein my double and I resemble each other."

Shortly thereafter a burly but quiet, inoffensive looking man hastened into the parlor and greeted the damsel on the davenport. She took his arm coyly, and whispered something that caused her escort to look inquiringly over toward Blair. If he expected a genial response from the latter the cold glance that met him must have been a disappointment.

"Well, do we look anything alike?"
Blair asked his wife.

"Certainly not," Mrs. Blair held her aristocratic head high with indignation at the idea. "I suppose it's just a stupid story that you invented."

"If I were trying to be funny I could think of something more humorous than that," said her husband, as they went on into the dining room.

"I should hope so. Yet, come to think of it, there is a certain likeness in your bearing. Besides, he wears the same peculiar cinnamon brown overcoat that you do."

"I'll give mine to the janitor tonight," declared Blair, as a load was removed from his mind.

Origin of the Argentine Flag.

Mr. Fraser, in telling of the origin of the Argentine flag says: "The en-phatic patriotism of the American is tepid alongside the hot-blooded nationality of Argentina. It is daily inculcated in the schools; the blue-and-white striped flag is honored on every occasion. When the Argentines were in revolution against Spain in 1810, and needed a banner to flaunt against the red and orange of the enemy, they got pieces of blue and white cloth (intended for garments) from an English warship lying at Montevideo, and made a flag of it. So the Argentine flag, like much of Argentine prosperity, is due to Great Britain." Mr. Fraser holds that, in proportion to the population, there are as many millionaires in Argentina as in the United States.

FORREST LAKE

Candidate for Congress, Fourth District

In offering himself as a candidate in the Democratic Primary of June 6th to represent the Fourth Congressional District after March 4th 1917, Forrest Lake of Sanford has given the people of the Fourth District an opportunity to elect a big, broad-minded man to look after their interests. His Platform is written on the assumption that in this day every man who is a man at all stands for all that is cleanest, best and most expedient for his people.

He has ever been an advocate of a square-deal for Labor. His work in the Florida Legislature shows that he has never lost an opportunity to advance the interests of the working man.

He was one of the main advocates of, and fighters for, the creation in this State of a Child Labor Inspector, and the work of the official at the head of that office has proven conclusively his benefit to the State.

The exceedingly friendly manner in which the people generally and especially the laboring man have welcomed his advent in this race is much pleasing to Mr. Lake; and from the many utterances that have been heard from labor and from all classes and all organizations, it is confidently expected that all will rally to his standard and unite in giving him a most hearty support in return for what he has done for the State.

Forrest Lake is no unknown man. His three terms' experience in the Legislature has given him a wide acquaintance throughout Florida; and that acquaintanceship has in countless instances ripened into the warmest of friendship.

He is a man who has been a success in his every undertaking; and his prominence in business in the State today shows not only his sound business ability, but the high regard in which he is generally held by the business world.

He is making this race on his own merits alone—"Friendship for all, untangling alliance with none," is his motto; Not merely a motto to be hung on a wall, but a rule of conduct that has been strictly adhered to through his campaign. Those who know him realize that his campaign has been a vigorous one, for he is a fighter; but nothing in this campaign has ever edged to the scurrilous or common mud-slinging which is sometimes injected into politics during a heated race.

From Key West to Jacksonville have come sincere and strong assurances of support; and he is without a doubt the leading candidate for this office in the race today.

HOW CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS STAND ON FEDERAL OWNERSHIP OF THE CANAL

the matter thoroughly and until the matter had been thoroughly investigated by the engineers and officials of the government. Then after a careful study of the report my vote would be cast in favor of the route, which I believe would be of the most benefit to my District, and which I believe would be the most practical one for the government to adopt.

Bryan's Clerk Writes.
Jacksonville, Fla., May 6, 1916.
Mr. H. I. Hamilton,
New Smyrna, Fla.,
My dear sir:
In the absence of Senator Bryan, I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of May 3rd.

Senator Bryan has not been in Jacksonville, for several days, but I expect to see him during next week and will call your letter to his attention.

Regarding the matter of taking over the Florida East Coast Canal, I beg to call your attention to a paragraph in his campaign literature which is as follows:
"I favor the government taking over and maintaining an inland waterway from Jacksonville to the lower East Coast of Florida."

However, I am sure he will be glad to give you a plain statement regarding the position he will take on the matter in which you are interested.
Sincerely yours,
J. L. KELLY, Clerk.

The mayor of DeLand, by order of the council, has issued a proclamation for a special municipal election to be held May 30, to decide whether the city shall contract a loan of $35,000 for the purpose of widening and paving the city streets.

The Kissimmee Citrus Growers' association affiliated with the Florida Citrus Exchange, has been so prosperous during the first year of its existence that plans are now maturing for the erection of a new packing house to be ready for use next season.

Honorable Forrest Lake,
Sanford, Fla.,
My dear Mr. Lake:
I have yours of the 29th also copy of letter of 29th to Mr. Hamilton. I note in your letter to Mr. Hamilton, in the first paragraph where you say, "I beg to state briefly and emphatically my position," and I read your letter through and the only thing that I find stating your position is where you say, "I shall be glad to use my best efforts to see that the commission's recommendations are carried out," that is all I see in this letter that states your position and it really strikes me, Mr. Lake, that you have not defined your position sufficient for us to get right square behind the position.
You will recollect that I asked you in the presence of Mr. Hamilton, if you would give our Canal association a letter stating your position to the effect that you would stand for the purchase, maintenance, etc., of the F. E. C. Canal from Pablo Creek to Biscayne Bay, and you stated that you would.
The canal proposition as you know as it has been discussed via the head of the St. Johns River, is a very indefinite proposition for us to get behind, unless we know your stand in the matter.
I really and truly have not asked Mr. Fogarty or Mr. Sears to commit themselves in any way on this subject, although I am quite confident that Mr. Fogarty would be glad to support it, if we were desirous of having him do so but being exceedingly friendly to you, I wanted to see you carrol all the votes possible, but unless you were to come out flat-footed and state your position relative to the purchase, maintenance, etc., of the canal from Pablo Creek to Biscayne Bay, I do not believe that I could get those men in the southern end to turn about much for you; on the other hand, I think if you will give me that letter as you agreed to do, that we can pull quite a few votes and it will be my pleasure and desire to do this. Even though you do not give us this letter in question, I expect to support you, but I feel as though I could have our secretary address the influential men and make it very beneficial to you when the vote is counted. Of course, I may be mistaken in this, but an attempt on my part could do no harm. I do not feel as though you have defined your position only as you have stated and it sounds rather indefinite.

Wishing you well, I beg to remain,
Yours very truly,
A. W. CORBETT.

Hamilton Demands Stand.
New Smyrna, May 3, 1916.
Hon. Forrest Lake,
Sanford, Fla.,
Dear sir:

Your letter of April, 29th received, and carefully read and I must say that it is well worded. It is not at all in accord with the way you talked to Mr. A. W. Corbett and myself in St. Augustine, nor the way you talked to several of the boys in my office here in New Smyrna. They know what you said and have read your letter and believe me you have got to put yourself in plainer language than your last letter before you can get their votes.

You know Mr. Lake that this association is comprised of all the counties of the East Coast of Florida and takes in every county in the Fourth District except Seminole, Orange and Osceola. We have many friends who are not members and we are in position to assist very materially the man whom we wish to represent us, but that man must not hide behind the English language when he tries to tell what he will do for us.

Now then come out in the open. The majority of your District is on the East Coast and not on the St. Johns River. We are not fighting any other man's project but we want relief on the East Coast and by way of a system that will afford the greatest relief. It is not enough for you to say that you will support a favorable report of the Engineers. Will you use your every effort to make that report of the Engineers favorable? Will you use your influence in the House with other members of Congress for their support of Federal ownership of the East Coast Canal? In other words, if elected to a chair in the Federal Congress will you use your every influence in every way that you can and at all times for the Federal ownership of the Florida East Coast canal?
Your reply to these questions will

New Smyrna, May 3, 1916.
Hon. Forrest Lake,
Sanford, Florida,
Dear Sir:

Your statement in my office a few days ago that the people of the interior of the state believe me to be a large stock holder in the Florida Coast Canal and Transportation company sent here for the purpose of unloading the Canal on the Federal Government at a big price and then kissing goodbye to Florida is founded on absolute falsehood and misrepresentation.

I came to Florida four years and a half ago to make it my home. I had been in Florida three winters before that time. I had never heard of the Florida Coast Canal and Transportation company until I came here. I do not know a single stockholder in the company. I never owned a single share of their stock and I don't want to. The work I am doing as secretary of the Florida East Coast Canal association is for the good of the whole state of Florida and the decided benefit of the East Coast. As an individual this means nothing to me. I own my own home, which happens to be on broad river, but I haven't a single acre of land to be benefited by the improvement of this waterway. I have no financial interests to be enhanced thereby, I am not making a dollar out of the association while working for them. I have been many times called a d—u fool because I have spent my own money and given my time for the good of the state and the good of the people and get just such thanks for my efforts as you handed me the other night from the people of Sanford and other places in the interior.

If this letter is of any use to you among your people you are at liberty to use it.

Yours very truly,
H. I. HAMILTON, Secretary.

Hon. H. I. Hamilton,

My dear Mr. Hamilton:

sending you another which will state more clearly my position.
Very truly yours,

Repeats Previous Reply.
Sanford, Fla., May 4th, 1916.
Hon. H. I. Hamilton,
New Smyrna, Fla.,
My dear Mr. Hamilton:

In replying to your letter of recent date, relative to the development, etc., of the Florida East Coast Canal, I beg to state, briefly and emphatically, my position:

This matter, as you are aware, has first to be passed upon by the United States Engineers, who report to the Secretary of War, and his recommendation is laid before Congress for its action, and the records of recent years show that Congress acts pretty much in line with the recommendation of that Department in the matter of harbors, waterways, etc. Therefore, you will of course realize that until such a recommendation is made, there is little that a Congressman can do. Already, (I am informed) a Commission has been appointed to report on the advisability of the Government's taking over the East Coast Canal, and should its report be in favor thereof, I shall be glad to use my best efforts to see that the Commission's recommendations are carried out. To all who know the actual condition of the East Coast Canal; that, as it stands, it is of no use or value to the people of that section, it must be evident that such a measure as would ensure its proper development is a step that will benefit not only the East Coast, not only the Fourth District, but the whole state of Florida. I shall therefore advocate to the full extent of my ability the Government ownership of the East Coast Canal from Pablo Creek to Biscayne Bay.

Trusting that I have made my position clear, and thanking you for calling my attention further to the matter, which, by the way, you will recall, I have already stated definitely in my platform, as evidenced by the enclosed copy, I am,
Sincerely yours,

When the Afghans Lured the British Into the Jaws of Death.

Of 16,000 Persons Who Left the City Under Pledge of Safety Only One Man, Except a Few Prisoners Taken, Escaped Massacre.

In this wondrous day of wire and wireless we learn, half across the world, the events of the day almost instantaneously, and the very elements carry abroad the news. It is more than romance; it is a miracle, but a miracle that may banish forever from the pages of the future historian and romancer one of the most dramatic figures of the past—the messenger bringing first news from the battlefield.

Long even before Phidippides of Marathon ran to Athens from the immortal battlefield, cried "Victory!" and fell dead the messenger held a place in myth and chronicle that he has maintained for centuries. Sometimes he is merely the swiftest rider or runner, sometimes a hero of the fight, chosen as an honor to bear glad tidings; sometimes a hard pressed refugee, sometimes even a lone survivor.

Lady Elizabeth Thompson Butler, the distinguished woman painter of wartime scenes, of which "The Roll Call" is most famous, once illustrated in a less known painting one of the most tragic episodes in the history of modern England—the arrival of Dr. William Brydon at Jalalabad, Jan. 13, 1842. Her terrible little picture shows the young Scotch surgeon, dazed, desperate, exhausted, clinging half-conscious to his wearied horse as the walls of the city loom in sight.

He had come from Kabul, through the mountains, in midwinter, one of a retreating army of British and native troops, accompanied by swarms of attendants and camp followers. With them at first were also nine English women, wives of officers, including Florentia, Lady Sale, wife of Sir Robert Sale, the commander at Jalalabad, and his daughter. There were also fourteen children. A long, intricate and hideous series of blunders, treacheries and murders had brought the tremendously outnumbered British in Kabul to the point where evacuation of the city and acceptance of a promised safe conduct to Jalalabad seemed to their leaders the best that could be hoped for, and the retreat began.

But the Afghans did not keep their word, and soon there were no leaders. Before the march was half over many were slain and conditions were so hopeless that the others yielded to a proposal to surrender the commanding general himself, General Elphinstone, together with the women and children, into the care of the Afghan chief, Akbar Khan, as hostages, but not until the Kurd Kabul was passed.

The gorge of the Kund Kabul is a five mile ravine between high mountains, so narrow, lofty and grim that in winter the sun scarcely reaches its depths. That January it was deep in snow, the rocks were glazed with ice, and upon every mountain slope, in every crevasse, behind every bowlder, lurked the fanatical Afghan tribesmen, with their long guns and long knives. Weary, crowded, half crippled by frost, the confused and formless masses struggling through the gloomy canyon soon lost all semblance of an army, as the slaughter soon lost all semblance of battle. It became simply the massacre of a rabble, and the snow grew red.

"Three thousand men," says the historian Sir J. W. Kaye, "fell under the fire of the enemy or dropped down paralyzed and exhausted to be slaughtered by Afghan knives. And amid these fearful scenes of carnage, through a shower of matchlock balls, rode English ladies on horseback or in camel panniers, sometimes vainly endeavoring to keep their children beneath their eyes and then losing them in the confusion and bewilderment of the desolating march."

After the general became a captive with the women the rout and slaughter increased in horror. The Jugguluk pass succeeded the Kund Kabul; a dark, steep, winding track ascending high among frowning crags, and barricaded at its narrowest point. It was a trap. The fugitives were caught beyond escape. A more painful emergency arose.

Within sixteen miles of Jalalabad only six of these remained. Before those sixteen miles were covered five of the six had been killed by struggling marauders.

Dr. Brydon alone, one man out of 16,000, reached the goal and bore the awful news.

Later, when England awoke and avenged, the women and children and a few prisoners were rescued. Dr. Brydon himself lived to share and survive the famous siege of Lucknow, another terrible episode in his country's

POISON KILLS BLISTER BEETLES

Blister beetles, sometimes called Spanish flies, old fashioned potato bugs and yankee bugs, feed on a number of plants. They are most destructive in cultivated plants, such as potatoes and tomatoes. They may be controlled by spraying with lead arsenate. J. R. Watson, entomologist to the University of Florida experiment station, recommends 1½ pounds of lead arsenate powder or 3 pounds of the paste to 50 gallons of water. Zinc arsenite may be used instead of the lead arsenate. Paris green, 1 pound to 50 gallons of water and 1 pound of quick lime, may be used on plants that are not easily burned.

It is necessary to spray thoroughly because these beetles will avoid the poison unless the plant is covered. Since the larvae feed on the eggs of grasshoppers, it may not be desirable to spray them. On limited areas they may be driven out of the patch with a brush or whip made of twigs. They may be hand picked or collected in a pan containing water overlaid with kerosene.

history, but one as honorable and inspiring as the retreat from Kabul was humiliating and disastrous.—Youth's Companion.

Concentrated Sun Rays.

Archimedes once arranged a number of mirrors so as to bring the rays of the sun to a point called a focus, which means a hearth. The heat thus gathered together from the sunshine is said to have been sufficient to set fire to the Roman ships, which were besieging the harbor of Syracuse.

D. P. SMITH

Candidate for Re-Election as TAX COLLECTOR OF VOLUSIA COUNTY

During the time Mr. Smith has served as Tax collector of this county he has handled in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 in money belonging to the taxpayers and every cent has been accounted for. The experience he has had in handling the books of this office is worth much to the taxpayers.

Mr. Smith has never used his office to punish his political enemies or reward his friends, but has always treated every man alike. He is grateful for the confidence the people have placed in him and will continue to merit that confidence if re-nominated in the primary June 6th.

A Leading Candidate for Member Legislature

David Sholtz, of Daytona, who bids fair to be one of the nominees of the Democratic primary for member of the Legislature. Two representatives will be nominated, and from present indications it is almost safe to assume that Mr. Sholtz will be one of them. He is one of the most promising young lawyers of Volusia county and has many friends all over the county.

NEW FLORIDA INDUSTRY MAKING FAST PROGRESS.

The growth of the Florida Soft Phosphate & Lime Company's business has really been phenomenal, and the success of this home industry has been commented upon in flattering manner by the Florida press. The company's mines are at Phoslime, Fla., and its general offices are located in Ocala. The company now occupies new and larger offices and as a business enterprise is constantly developing. J. D. Rooney, the enterprising salesmanager, is well known in southern business and development circles and his connection with the Florida Soft Phosphate & Lime Company is of interest to many friends and acquaintances in Florida and adjoining states. His publicity and selling campaign in behalf of Phoslime has been notably successful.

Phoslime can be used to advantage in the growing of the following plants: Corn, cotton, citrus trees, spinach, lettuce, beets, okra, salsify, celery, onions, parsnips, cauliflower, cucumber, eggplant, cantaloupe, asparagus, cabbage, rhubarb, peas, pumpkins.

summer squash, beans, hemp, tobacco, barley, wheat, oats, timothy, sorghum, alfalfa and clover. It is said to be especially adapted to the needs of corn and the claim is made that Phoslime has given better yields on corn than any other source of phosphoric acid.

TRADE MARK REGISTERED PHOSLIME FOR NATAL HAY

"That this Phoslime finely ground and applied to the soil will yield to the plant exactly as much phosphoric acid as needed, and that the balance which is actually soluble in solid water, will remain in the soil, permanently enriching it for the succeeding crops, which assertion has been fully verified by the different agriculture stations which have tried it."

VOTE FOR W. L. GAUSE

The People's Candidate FOR County Commissioner, Fifth District

The man who did not fight the bond issue, and the man who can be depended upon to use every influence to give us the roads covered by the bond issue.

ISAAC A. STEWART

Candidate for

A TAX PAYER SAYS, "VOTE FOR JUDGE STEWART."

Last but not least is Judge Stewart. By his bulldog tenacity and acut like a bloodhound he has unearthed all of the rascality of the court house ring and saved the tax payers thousands of dollars. Pepper has been thrown on the trail. All kinds of obstructions used to induce him to let go his hold, but all to no purpose. He has made all kinds of charges in public and private; a man of property and if the charges that he has dug up and published were not true he would have had heavy damages to pay. The ring's utter silence is double proof of the rottenness in our public affairs, and do you realize that he has done this for you? * * * Show your appreciation by your votes for a fearless upright man. Christ chased the grafters out of the temple. It is up to you to chase them out of the court house.

TAX PAYER.

Public money can only be misappropriated by the acquiescence, connivance or action of the public officials and friends of those who receive the money.

JUDGE ISAAC A. STEWART.

ROCKCASTLE CIRCUIT COURT
AUGUST TERM, AUGUST 19th, 1885.

At a meeting of the Mt. Vernon bar at the courthouse on Wednesday August 19th, 1885, Judge M. H. Owsley was called to the chair and W. M. Fish, clerk of the Rockcastle circuit court, was made secretary. The following resolutions were offered and adopted:

Whereas, Isaac A. Stewart a former member of this bar and county attorney of this county has become a citizen of Florida;

FIRST. Resolved, that it is the sense of the members of this bar that Isaac A. Stewart is a lawyer of honesty and ability, a faithful and efficient public servant and a citizen of good repute among the people who know him best and as such he is cordially commended to the good people of Florida;

SECOND These resolutions will be spread on the order book of this court and the clerk will forward to Mr. Stewart a copy.

Adjourned: M. H. Owsley, chairman; W. M. Fish, secretary; Samuel M. Burdett, John K. McClary, James G. Carter, committee; W. M. Fish, Clerk of the circuit court.

NEWSPAPERS HARD HIT WITH PRICES

Concerning the tremendous rise in prices of every thing used around a newspaper plant an Ohio paper says: Ever since the momentous August of 1914—especially in the last six months—the skyrocketing of the prices of necessities around a newspaper plant, has gone on with a beauty of consistency which arouses absolutely no enthusiasm among publishers throughout the country who have to foot the bills. Products essential to the publication of newspapers have jumped in price all the way from 10 or 15 to 3,000 and more per cent.

War, directly or indirectly, is given as the reason for this enormous increase in the publisher's bills. And should the war continue for some time, the market skyrocketing promises to go to heights even beyond the present astonishing prices. Nowadays it is next to impossible to obtain market quotations for even so short a time as "next week."

Press rollers, which are made chiefly of glue, glycerine and molasses, have gone up, so manufacturers notified the consumers last week. Pure white eighteen per cent. Glycerine, the quality used in newspaper plants is not the pure white glycerine one buys in the drug store, but a quality less refined—has taken one flying leap from antebellum price of 19 cents a pound to 64 cents.

Rags, which are being bought up by the powder manufacturers eagerly and are needed also by paper manufacturers in a cleaned and more or less sterilized form are a necessity in the mechanical department of newspapers. The prices of rags has jumped just 100 per cent, or from three cents to six cents per pound. Writing paper is an important item in a publisher's paper bill and it is worth noting that this item has gone up 25 per cent.

But it is when the consumer of anything to do with dyes or any other department of the chemical section of printing or photographic reproductions goes out with his shopping list that his hair grows gray. Metal, which the art department of a paper cannot get along without, cost $4.00 a pound before the war. Now it costs $50.00 a pound. Increases of 1,000 to 3,000 per cent and more loom up all over the printing plant.

As an ink manufacturer explained a day or two ago the acids and dyes and everything else used in coloring inks especially exploded from 1,000 to 3,000 per cent in a jiffy, once the exports from Germany had been blocked. Blue that cost 58 cents before the war now cost $14.00 and $15.00 per pound, with increases in yellows also all the way up to 3,000 per cent. And, what is more of moment, manufacturers of inks say that prospects of filling demands in the future look doubtful.

Violet coloring, used in the manufacture of inks, printing paper and wall paper has advanced from 60 cents per pound to $30.00 a pound, or an increase of 5,000 per cent.

Bulletins tell us that the limit has not been reached, and that should the war cease tomorrow, it will require not less than two years for the supply to be made ample to bring the prices to normal again.

Since the above was written printers and publishers have been informed of another increase of about 25 per cent on plain white print and poster papers, and several brands of bond papers are either priced beyond reach or eliminated from stock.

If prices continue to soar at the present rate for a few more months, newspapers and stationery will have to be classed among the luxurious necessities.

Instinct of the Muddfish.

The remarkable instinct which causes the muddfish to roll himself in a ball of mud when the dry season approaches is a wonderful provision of nature, intended solely it would seem, to prevent the extinction of the species. The most interesting fact about this fish is that it breathes by means of its gills when in its native element and by means of lungs during its voluntary imprisonment in the mud cocoon.

Strictly Business.

"I always read one of Thackeray's novels two or three times."
"I don't want mine read that way," said the compiler of best sellers. "By the time you finish one of my novels I have another ready at a dollar fifty."

In No Time.

Mary—Mrs. Delaney says her little girl has learned to play the piano in no time. Alice—Yes, I heard her playing just that way the other day.—Life.

Why Tennyson Wrote No Letters.
Tennyson once told Sir Henry Taylor that he thanked with his whole heart and soul that he knew nothing and that the world knew nothing of Shakespeare but his writings and that he knew nothing of Jane Austen and that there were no letters preserved either of Shakespeare or of Jane Austen; that they, in fact, had not been "ripped open like pigs."

WOULD YOU AVOID RED BUGS?

The first lap of the annual scratch is scheduled to begin soon after you make the first trip to the blackberry patch. Although the bureau of crop estimates has not reported the acreage of red bugs this year, a personal exposition will convince anyone that the crop is plentiful. This is one crop with which no problems of distribution are connected, as a self conducted tour among the habitations of this sociable organism will prove.

J. H. Watson, entomologist to the University of Florida experiment station, suggests the following precautions for those who are wont to wander through neglected fields, briar patches, shrubbery and weeds. A bath in hot water containing plenty of soap or salt, after one has visited the foregoing haunts of red bugs, will rid him of their company. Probably the best method is to dust flowers of sulfur in the stockings, around the belt and on other parts of the body or clothing which are apt to collect red bugs. Naphthalene may be used instead of sulfur.

Nothing may be relieved by application of ammonia, soda, a six per cent solution of formalin, alcohol, camphor, or peppermint in the swollen places. Red bugs do not stay on human beings long because man is not their natural host. Those who are unaccustomed to entertaining them need not be alarmed at the first attack. Eventually they will not demand so much attention.

Foundation of Cotton.

When the Leasowe lighthouse, England, was built on the sandy Wirral shore the builders were puzzled by the lack of a suitable foundation for the masonry tower. An ingenious way out of the difficulty was effected. In the vicinity an incoming ship, laden with a cargo of cotton, had gone ashore and had become a total wreck. The cotton was useless for its intended purpose, so the bales were salvaged and dumped into the sand at the point where the lighthouse was to be erected. The fleecy mass settled into the sand, and under compression became as solid as a rock, while its permanency was assured by its complete submergence. The stability of this strange foundation may be gathered from the fact that the tower erected thereon stood, and shed its welcome light regularly every night, for about a century and a half, only being extinguished two or three years ago, as it was no longer required.

Died as He Lived.

"Easeman is gone, poor chap. Died without a struggle." "Just like Easeman; he never was known to exert himself in anything."
